Too small to hack? Think again, says Computerworld

Writes Matthew Prewitt, partner at law firm Schiff Hardin, and chair of the firm's Cybersecurity and Data Privacy Team:

"The notion that a business might be too small or too boring for a cyber breach is a comforting fiction. The reality is that most cyber breaches are not the work of international criminal gangs or foreign intelligence operatives; they are attributable to the company's own employees. Mere negligence by even a well-intentioned employee can trigger substantial investigation and response costs, and an employee who is leaving to join a competitor or who simply carries a grudge against her boss can cause substantial competitive or reputational injury." Trump Draws Ire Of Legal Community With Court Criticisms

President Donald Trump called the U.S. judiciary "so political" and a Ninth Circuit hearing "disgraceful" in a speech Wednesday to law enforcement officials, the latest in a string of critical comments about the courts that have resulted in outrage from some in the legal industry.

Bill Would Nix Fed Transport Cash For 'Sanctuary' Locales

A Republican congressman has introduced a bill that would block federal transportation funds from being awarded to state and local governments that act as "sanctuaries" for unauthorized immigrants.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

FCC's Dem Slams States For Not Capping Inmate Call Rates

Federal Communications Commission member Mignon Clyburn silently implored states to "do your job" and cap out-of-control calling rates for inmates during a court hearing Monday in a case challenging the Obama-era FCC's attempt to limit them, according to her Tuesday blog post.

AT&T Pushes For FCC Enforcement Process Reform

Telecom giant AT&T on Wednesday said the Federal Communications Commission should focus on overhauling its enforcement efforts amid other process changes, pushing the agency to avoid rulemaking by enforcement, extreme and continuous penalties and empty "press fanfare."

Co. Stripped Of Lifeline Eligibility Hits Back At FCC

A Federal Communications Commission unit's recent revocation of nine companies' eligibility to provide broadband service under the low-income Lifeline program was "hasty" and done without advance notice to the public or to those affected, an attorney representing one of the companies told the regulator Tuesday.

DC Circ. Urged To Reverse FCC's Lifeline Change

A utility consumer advocacy group pressed the D.C. Circuit on Monday to reverse part of a move by the Federal Communications Commission to create a federal process that designates telecommunications companies as eligible Lifeline broadband service providers.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Whistleblower Protections: What To Expect In The Trump Era

While there may be a retrenchment in the scope of whistleblower protections and a decrease in the efficacy of whistleblower rewards programs under the Trump administration, it is unlikely that either will disappear given the strong support of key Republicans, as well as the availability of state-level whistleblower protections and whistleblower rewards programs, says Alexis Ronickher of Katz Marshall & Banks LLP.

The Abstract Swing: Major League Problems In Patent Law

Imagine if a baseball player developed a new swing — something in between a bunt and a fully loaded swing. It becomes popular, and the commissioner decides to ban these "abstract" swings but doesn't create a workable test for recognizing them. Ever since Alice, patent applicants have been befuddled with the concept of an abstract idea. Perhaps our new Congress will get our inventors back on base, says Darin Gibby of Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton LLP.

A Politically Feasible Approach To H-1B Reform

Legislation aimed at reforming the H-1B visa program recently proposed by Rep. Zoe Lofgren, D-Calif., includes disgraceful efforts to benefit companies in her district at the expense of the rest of the country. However, once such efforts are stripped out, her bill represents a major step forward in modernizing the United States' employment-based immigration system, says Brandon Meyer of Lewis Brisbois Bisgaard & Smith LLP.

The Quadrennial Energy Review And Grid Modernization

The most recent installment of the U.S. Department of Energy's Quadrennial Energy Review focuses on the electric grid as the "underlying framework that supports the American economy and society." While a product of the Obama administration's promotion of clean energy and advanced technologies, it arguably aligns with the Trump administration's priorities for infrastructure investment as well, say attorneys from Husch Blackwell LLP.

Inside The CFTC's New Advisories On Cooperation

The U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission's recent advisories on cooperation indicate how enforcement priorities have changed over time. But for all the additional guidance that these new advisories give, one of the most important pieces of information to potential cooperators is still missing, say attorneys with Skadden Arps Slate Meagher & Flom LLP.

Metro Chamber Endorsements in Local City Council Races

Today, the Las Vegas Metro Chamber of Commerce released its first endorsements in the upcoming municipal races. The Primary Election is slated for Tuesday, April 2, with early voting beginning Saturday, March 16. The General Election (if necessary) is Tuesday, June 11.

The Metro Chamber's initial endorsements are:

City of Las Vegas
Mayor: Carolyn Goodman
Ward 5: Cedric Crear

City of North Las Vegas
Ward 2: Pamela Goynes-Brown
Ward 4: Richard Cherchio

City of Henderson
Ward 1: Michelle Romero
Ward 2: Dan Shaw
Ward 4: Dan Stewart

State Senate Leadership Changes

Earlier today, the Clark County Commission appointed retired Clark County fire inspector, Marcia Washington, to fill the vacant Senate District 4. Washington will serve out the reminder of former State Senator Kelvin Atkinson's senate term. Atkinson resigned on March 5 due to accusations of using campaign funds for personal use and pleaded guilty to wire fraud earlier this week in federal court.

State Assembly Changes

Yesterday, Mike Sprinkle resigned his seat from the Nevada State Assembly due to accusations of sexual harassment claims. The resignation was effective immediately. The Washoe County Commission is expected to appoint a replacement to Assembly District 30 as soon as possible. Per state law, the individual that is appointed to the seat must be at least 21 years old and a Democrat.

Metro Chamber Releases Education Legislative Priorities

The Metro Chamber recently released its education legislative priorities. The focus of the Metro Chamber's education legislative agenda is "Why Education Matters to Employers," which highlights why employers support education initiatives that align with workforce development, capital investments for Nevada State College and College of Southern Nevada, and the UNLV School of Medicine, career and college readiness for students, and accountability and transparency in K-12 education spending. Click here to read "Why Education Matters to Employers" and the Chamber's legislative agenda.

Upcoming Major Legislative Bill Deadlines

March 18 is the deadline for bill introduction by legislators and March 25 is the bill introduction by committees' deadline. If bills are not introduced by these deadlines, they are considered to be "dead" and will not be processed by the State Legislature.

Legislative Committees Agendas

Members can watch committees live from Carson City or view the list of committee hearings and agendas for next week here: https://www.leg.state.nv.us/App/Calendar/A/

Updates on Legislative Bills

Assembly Bill 221
Revises provisions to gaming employees

Legislative Summary: AB 221 would allow students between the age of 18-20 years to work in the gaming manufacturing industry. Currently, state law prohibits anyone under the age of 21 years to work in the industry. The Metro Chamber supports the bill because it will allow for the development of a talent pipeline for the industry. It would also provide an opportunity for internships and apprenticeships for students, which is important to career development opportunities.
Primary Bill Sponsor: Assembly Committee on Judiciary
Position: Support

Assembly Bill 224
Revises provisions to the NV Grow Program

Legislative Summary: As introduced, the Metro Chamber is supportive of the changes to the program proposed in Section 2 of the bill, which transfer the responsibilities to the Division of Workforce and Economic Development of the College of Southern Nevada. The Metro Chamber is also supportive of the conforming changes in Sections 3-5 of the bill. Since the NV Grow Program is designed to help small businesses grow by providing local demographic and industry data to business owners, the Metro Chamber believes that this administrative change is appropriate to economic development alignments.

Primary Bill Sponsor: Assemblywoman Dina Neal
Position: Support

Senate Bill 171
Provides for the collection of information from certain providers of healthcare

Legislative Summary: SB 171 would expand on current efforts by the University of Nevada, Reno School of Medicine to collect data to better understand trends and needs in healthcare by expanding how and what data is collected. Current law state and requiring that certain health care professionals complete an electronic data request as part of licensure renewal. The Metro Chamber supports this bill has it will help provide reliable data which allow the healthcare sector to to better serve our community regards to public health.
Primary Bill Sponsor: Senator Joe Hardy
Position: Support

Senate Bill 245
Revises provisions relating to civil actions

Legislative Summary: SB 245 would increase the amount of damages that may be awarded in tort action lawsuit against a governmental entity or its officers or employees from the existing limit of $100,000 to $250,000 and $1,000,000 if the act is found to be gross negligence. The Metro Chamber opposes the bill because it long-standing concerns related to increasing punitive damages and the cost to taxpayers.
Primary Bill Sponsor: Senator James Orhenschall
Position: Oppose

Senate Bill 254
Revises provisions relating to carbon reduction

Legislative Summary: As proposed SB 254 would require the State of Department of Conversation and Natural issues to issue an annual report of greenhouse gases released by the state and a projection of annual greenhouse gas emissions for 20 years following the date of the report. Existing law calls for a report to be issued every 4 years. The Metro Chamber does not disagree with the intent of the bill as many companies are incorporating climate action plans, making commitments to low-carbon initiatives and setting energy efficiencies goals as part of their corporate objectives. However, The Metro Chamber believes that economic factors, feasibilities and impacts should be part of the annual reports criteria and information that collected by the state.
Primary Bill Sponsor: Senator Chris Brooks
Position: Oppose

U.S. Department of Labor Releases Proposed Overtime Rule

The U.S. Department of Labor (DOL) has issued a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking to increase the minimum salary for certain “white-collar” administrative, professional, and executive employees to be classified as “exempt” salaried employees and, therefore, ineligible to receive overtime pay.

The proposed new salary basis is $35,308/year ($679/week). The current employee salary threshold is $23,660/year ($455/week).

The proposed rule also increases the total annual compensation requirement for “highly compensated employees” (HCE) from the currently-enforced level of $100,000 to $147,414 per year.

The proposal would also allow employers to use non-discretionary bonuses and incentive payments (including commissions) that are paid annually or more frequently to satisfy up to 10 percent of the standard salary level

There are no changes to the job duties test or automatic adjustments to the salary threshold by the U.S. DOL.

The U.S. DOL is recommending that employers should evaluate employee job positions and compensation and determine whether to convert affected currently exempt employees to non-exempt status or to increase salaries to meet the new minimum salary if and when the new rule is released and finalized.

The proposed rule is subject to a 60-day public comment period by the public. Chamber members may submit their comments about the proposed rule electronically at www.regulations.gov, in the rulemaking docket RIN 1235-AA20. After the comment period closes, the U.S. DOL will issue a final rule, which will include the effective date of the rule for employers to compile with.

Subject: Rescinding Dianetics Day or Month

Dear Mayor,

I believe that you in the past your city inadvertently made a horrible mistake by issuing a proclamation for Dianetics Day. I am sure your Mayor at the time did not know that by doing so you were condoning the actions of the author L.Ron Hubbard, who has proven to be a liar and fraud and who's organization actively destroys families and has infiltrated many government agencies to spy on them which resulted in nine of their members going to jail including L Ron Hubbard's wife!

Currently The Church's uses the proclamation your city has given them as evidence of your support for what they do and how. Mayor Roy of Calera, Alabama rescinded theirs and I am asking you to do the same. I have included some different information here to substantiate what I am asking for and why so you have facts that your city may not have been provided with before agreeing to having your city be supportive of this organization. Mayor Roy rescinded their proclamation based on only the following:

Dianetics and Scientology are inseparable; the former is used as a technique in the practice of the latter, and the doctrines of the former are incorporated in the latter."
– The Lee Report on Dianetics and Scientology by Professor John Lee

"(a) The claim is made for dianetics, which is part of scientology, and inferentially for the whole of scientology, that between them they can positively cure all psychosomatic ailments, which it is claimed represent 70 per cent. of man's illnesses.

(b) These claims are entirely unjustified.
(c) On the contrary, scientology techniques, beyond the elementary stages, are potentially and, in some instances, positively harmful to mental health.
(d) Scientology is practised by "auditors" who have no medical training; they use dangerous techniques; they are unable to recognize symptoms and diagnose particular mental and physical conditions of ill health; they indiscriminately apply dangerous techniques irrespective of the circumstances; they not only administer the wrong treatment, but also poison their patients' minds against orthodox medicine and thus prevent them from obtaining proper medical treatment which they may require."
– Conclusions The Anderson Report, Chapter 30, point 8
Kevin Victor Anderson, Q.C. Published the State of Victoria, Australia

Despite Hubbard's claim his poor eyesight, ulcers and arthritis were never resolved and he petitioned for and received disability payments from the Navy reserve which he continued to receive while making millions of dollars from the Dianetics book that claimed to cure all of these for himself and others.

In a California Judge Breckenridge ruled;
"In addition to violating and abusing its own members civil rights, the organization… has harassed and abused those person not in the church whom it perceives as enemies .The organization clearly schizophrenic and paranoid, and this bizarre combination seems to be a reflection of its founder L Ron Hubbard. The evidence portrays a man who's been virtually a pathological liar when it comes to his history, background and achievements.

In another court case Justice Latey wrote " when comparing the truth about Hubbard with the churches published claims and said to promote himself in the cult he made these amongst other false claims:

1- Hubbard's claim was: That he was a much decorated war hero.
The truth is: He was not.

2- Hubbard's claim :That he was awarded the Purple Heart a gallantry decoration for those wounded in action
The truth is: He was not.

3-Hubbard's claim: That he was crippled and blinded in the war and cured himself with Dianetic technique.
The truth is: He was not crippled and he was not blinded.

Hubbard claims " That he was a graduate of George Washington University an atomic physicist.

The truth is: He completed only one year of college and failed the one course on nuclear physics he enrolled in.

Mr. Hubbard is a charlatan or worse. Scientology is both immoral and socially obnoxious…In my judgment it is corrupt sinister and dangerous. It is corrupt because it is based on lies and deceit and has as its real objective money and power."

Kenneth Robinson a past British Minister of Health has stated that: "The government is satisified…that Scientology is socially harmful. It alienates members of families from each other and attributes squalid and disgraceful motives to all who oppose it; it's authoritarian principles and practice. Are a potential menace to the personality and well-being of those so deluded as to become its followers: above all,its methods can be a serious danger to the health of those who submit to them.

I think you have more than enough information here to rescind your city's proclamation. I am more than happy to discuss this further with you should you have any questions.I have LOTS more disturbing information that I am sure will help you make this decision to rescind

I have also sent this to the editors of your cities your main newspapers as they to might want to rescind any positive story they had run when you gave Dianetics this original proclamation .

Thank you for your consideration of this matter,

Brian J Sheen

Importance: High

Hello Cissy,

Oscar has this event on his calendar, but he said he is only welcoming group and not staying for lunch. He did not mention that he is a keynote speaker. How long were you expecting him to speak and was he to speak with Mayor Carolyn Goodman or separately? Can you please answer the below questions as well.

Spot/Arrival Time:
Speaking Time and Duration:
Rio Ballroom Location:
IMLA On-site Contact:
Rio Hotel On-site Contact:

Since this is a conference, the Host Committee would have Oscar's signature showgirls with him during welcome and the Rio hotel would need to provide his signature Bombay Sapphire martini with whole jalapeno.

Please advise at your earliest convenience. Thank you.

Groupon to Pay $57 Million For IBM Patent Infringement

For years, IBM has accused Groupon Inc. of infringing on innovations — including a sign-in method dating back to the dawn of the internet. In July a jury awarded IBM $83 million in the case. IBM initiated the suit in March 2016, encompassing both a patent infringement claim and the cost of licensing IBM e-commerce innovations in the future.

Obama's Competition Order Could Be Mainly For Show

President Barack Obama has ordered a governmentwide push for pro-competitive regulatory action and touted the Federal Communications Commission's cable box proposal as a model, but some antitrust lawyers say the executive order could reflect the political popularity of competition more than a well-considered policy shift.

18 Ex-Treasury Officials Say Inversion Regs Aren't A Real Fix

A group of 18 former officials from the U.S. Department of the Treasury on Monday asked Treasury Secretary Jacob Lew to reconsider regulations issued earlier this month to curb tax-motivated inversion deals, saying they are likely to make the problem worse.

Justices Appear Split In Obama Immigration Action Row

The U.S. Supreme Court grilled both sides during oral arguments on Monday in the closely watched suit over the president's executive actions on immigration, which could give deportation relief to over 4 million people, with the justices' tough questions hinting at a possible split in the case.

CMS Axes $220M Cut Over Hospital 2-Midnight Rule

In a surprise move Monday, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services scrapped a $220 million pay cut tied to the agency's controversial "two-midnight rule" on inpatient admissions and offered to refund three years' worth of reduced reimbursement to hospitals.

British Exit Threatens Banking Access To EU, Gov't Warns

The U.K. government warned Monday that London's powerful financial center could lose its European Union regulatory "passporting" rights for banks if the country votes to leave the bloc in a June 23 referendum.

ENERGY & ENVIRONMENTAL

Texas Pushes 5th Circ. To Delay EPA's Haze Plan

Texas on Monday told the Fifth Circuit the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's regional haze plan for the state would impose irrational costs and inflict irreparable harm on the state electric grid and state sovereignty with little to no public benefit.

EPA Tells DC Circ. Coal Ash Rule Isn't Too Tough Or Weak

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on Monday urged the D.C. Circuit to uphold a rule regulating coal ash disposal, saying its technical judgments should be shielded from an industry coalition that's attacked the rule as too tough and environmental groups that say it's too weak.

Pa. Justices Asked To Block Drilling Site Rules Ahead Of Vote

An industry group contending that rules governing surface operations at oil and gas wells violate Pennsylvania law urged the state's highest court Monday to enjoin the rulemaking process ahead of a final review meeting this week, days after a lower court declined to do so.

EPA Drops Proposed Emissions Limits On Race Cars

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has deleted language about race car pollution from its final rule on vehicle emissions, on Friday saying after an outcry against the proposal from the racing industry and legislators that the EPA's focus is not on motor vehicles built exclusively for racing but rather on vehicles used on public roads.

EPA Urges DC Circ. To Leave Farm Pollution Rule Intact

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on Monday asked the D.C. Circuit to toss challenges to a rule exempting some businesses from animal feedlot pollution reporting requirements, saying environmentalists and industry groups opposed to the rule don't have standing to dispute it.

DOE Floats New Regs For Access To Nuclear Material

The U.S. Department of Energy has proposed a set of changes to rules surrounding access to nuclear material and classified information, a plan that includes introducing a one-year waiting period in which an applicant denied access cannot reapply for authorization.

Calif. Says Shark Fin Ban Doesn't Warrant High Court Review

California and the Humane Society of the United States said the U.S. Supreme Court needn't consider a dispute over California's ban on shark fin sales, arguing that the state law doesn't conflict with federal fishing rules and the decision is in line with other circuit courts.

Texas Voter ID Law Isn't Discriminatory, 5th Circ. Told

Texas Gov. Greg Abbott and other state leaders Friday told the Fifth Circuit that the state should prevail on all claims in defense of its controversial voter identification law because even after extensive discovery, no evidence has been found that the law is racially discriminatory.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

New State Laws May Authorize More Than Just Fantasy Sports

The definition for fantasy contest in recently enacted Indiana and Virginia bills — and in other states' proposed bills based on the Fantasy Sports Trade Association's Fantasy Contests Act — appears to expand authorized gambling under state law beyond traditional fantasy sports. A broad definition in state legislation is an avenue for the daily fantasy sports industry to increase the appeal of the products it offers, says Andy Moore of Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck LLP.

Obstacles And Opportunities Within CMS Mental Health Rule

Although the standards outlined in the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services' final rules implementing mental health parity mirror those in the rules for commercial plans, applying the new policy will present unique opportunities, but also challenges that could drive more states to fold their mental health and substance use disorder benefits into packages covered by managed care organizations, say attorneys at Covington & Burling LLP.

A Look At China's Draft Antitrust Rules For Auto Industry

China's recently released draft antitrust guidelines for the automotive industry comprehensively address all antitrust-related issues but provide particularly strong guidance on how to ensure compliance with vertical monopoly regulations, say attorneys with Tian Yuan Law Firm.

Inside Proposed Amendments To GAO Bid Protest Regulations

Although the Government Accountability Office's introduction of "an electronic filing and document dissemination system" undoubtedly will garner much attention, the other newly announced "administrative changes" to the GAO's bid protest regulations also are very significant, says Aron Beezley of Bradley Arant Boult Cummings LLP.

Another Take On Reed Smith, Pepper Hamilton Merger Talks

It is no accident that last year was a record year for law firm mergers. And while most of them involved smaller firms, there were some big tie-ups too. Thank Dentons for contributing more than its fair share to the latter category. This year, projections are that a new record for law firm mergers/acquisitions will be established. That again begs the "why?" question, says Mark A. Cohen, founder of Legal Mosaic LLC.

Good morning, everyone. After all the speculation that GateHouse Media was going to turn my favorite "newspaper" into an online ad vehicle, this could be good news. Could be, if it's not just a PR move or prelude to tendentious projects that are not so special. I'll suspend my disbelief for now.

With the Sun setting, it would be nice to see the RJ really embark on some quality investigative pieces. The paper has some excellent young reporters and, perhaps, it will hire some good people. There is so much to do here, so I hope this joke is not prescient.

What's below: Faraday dreams, Cliven returns, Morning Flash nuggets and a trivia question about a Nevada pioneer.

Heidi Gansert tonight on "Ralston Live."

The weekend. Oh, how I need the weekend. Never gets old.

WILL IT BE A FARADAY IN NEVADA SOON?

Lots of talk Thursday about Faraday at a state economic development meeting. But what's more important is what was not said publicly and what is happening privately. After a couple of months of lawmakers being briefed and then shooting their mouths off and of North Las Vegas Mayor John Lee redefining non-disclosure, the silence may be golden. I'm told progress is being made, that the company's move to Apex is still very possible. But not quite soup yet, a few more boxes to check. Remember where you heard about all of this first. (Flash, of course.)

GOING TO BE A LONG CAMPAIGN YEAR

The Nevada Conservation League has served notice that people will not forget Cliven Bundy. Especially people who supported him at a ridiculous spectacle during the Legislature, where he was treated like some kind of hero before an even more ridiculous and unconstitutional bill was entombed. Hey, Michele, I hope you and your friends campaign on that issue.

A COUPLE OF MORNING FLASH NUGGETS

Nugget No. 1 – Here's some news I bet you didn't know: Right before the Paris attacks, a great organization, the Northern Nevada International Center, submitted an application to the State Department to receive refugees. The proposed nationalities on the application: Colombia, Cuba, Dem. Rep. of Congo, Iraq, Ethiopia, Eritrea, Syria. Maybe Dean Heller should publicly criticize the group? Reno as a resettlement center for refugees. Timing is….everything.

Nugget No. 2 – Hey, everyone, remember Nathan Sproul? My pal, George Knapp, reported on the controversial operative's dealings here 11 years ago. And there are plenty of other examples of voter fraud allegations against the Arizona man. Well, Sproul's name popped up Thursday in Phoenix as a member of a fundraising host committee for none other than presidential candidate Marco Rubio. Nice vetting, guys.

FLASH FACTS OF THE DAY

Austin in Lander County is one of my favorite towns in Nevada. Silver ore was discovered at Pony Canyon in 1862. The community of Clifton was established at the initial mining camp. A post office opened there on March 26, 1863. A town site was platted up the hill from Clifton by Indian Agent turned prospector David Buell, who named the town after his partner, Alvah C Austin (some sources say Buell named the town after the city in his home state of Texas, or after the "father of Texas," Stephen Austin, for whom Austin, TX was named). Austin, NV became the center of the Reese River Mining District. The town experienced a population boom. The US Post Office did not open in Austin until November 20, 1863. By that time, Austin had a population of about 500 with at least two hotels, five saloons, a telegraph office, and a newspaper (Reese River Reveille). The Post Office at Clifton closed on February 20, 1864, with postal services moved to the Austin Post Office up the hill. The Post Office in Austin, NV is still open (six days a week). The Reese River Mining District population pushed 10,000 at its peak. According to the 2010 Census, Nevada still had a population of 192.

Side note: Interestingly, the November 21, 1863 edition (the first after the opening of the Post Office) of the Reese River Reveille, and a supplement of the same date, did not mention the opening of the Post Office.

TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE DAY

Today is the birthdate of a Nevada pioneer who spent some time behind bars in the Midwest and of whom it was once said: "He went from street thug to top gangster to respected businessman to revered civic pillar, which I believe is unmatched in the history of American criminal justice." Who was he?

Thursday's winner: R&R's Lorne Malkiewich

The question: Who am I? I chaired the most powerful committee in the Assembly. I served as a state senator. I served in local government. I now occasionally sue government.

The answer: Matthew Callister

MOVIE TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE WEEK

He was in a movie in which Martin Sheen wanted to be president; he played a guy who ended up playing a dangerous game that killed him; he has a scene about a watch; he tries (unsuccessfully) to kill Michelle Pfeiffer.

Amazing my one-liner response justified this lengthy litany of his perspectives.
Two things (actually 3) since he's thinking himself king and thus is most judgmental:

1. "acknowledgement" should be acknowledgment
2. Hasn't he studied enough history to realize we (the historical "we") are all immigrants and probably most were church-mouse poor at one point?
3. who made him king?
4. Should we answer or not?

Mayor Goodman,
Thank you for your acknowledgement. Please read my summary of "Adios America" below.
Also, because some people are more influenced by feelings than facts, I thought you might be interested in my summary of this NYT book review, "Against Empathy: The Case for Rational Compassion" by Paul Bloom:
"Empathy, he argues, is a poor moral guide.... favouring the one over the many... empathy is untampered by reason, emanating from the murky bayou of the gut. He prefers a kind of rational compassion - a mixture of caring and detached cost-benefit analysis. ... To those who say empathy is essential to morality, he would reply that morality has many sources. Many 'wrongs' - like littering or cheating on your taxes - have no distinct victims to empathise with. Nor does it appear that the most empathetic people behave the most ethically. There have been hundreds of studies... the results are 'meh'. ... empathy is generally a bad tool to use for allocating resources. ... is part of the reason why governments and individuals care more about a little girl stuck in a well than about events that will affect millions. Consider parenting... almost all parents have a terrible time tolerating the discomfort of their children. Yet it's often essential (going to the dentist, doing homework, spending a night away from home). ...rationality in political domains often does seem to be in short supply."

"Adios, America!" by Ann Coulter. Excerpts below:

1. For forty years, the people have tried to tell politicians they want less immigration, but the politicians won't listen. Every single elite group in America is aligned against the public - the media, ethnic activists, big campaign donors, Wall Street, multimillionaire farmers, and liberal "churches." They all want mass immigration from the Third World to continue. Both political parties connive to grant illegal aliens citizenship and bring in millions more legally, and the media hide the evidence. ... How immigration is changing our country is a lot more important than most of the "news" we hear about endlessly. The media will pound away at Chris Christie's 'Bridge gate', apocryphal fraternity rapes, the Augusta National Golf Club's membership policies, 'white privilege... But getting the truth about immigration is nearly impossible. The media tell us: ... Immigrants are doing the jobs Americans just won't do: Americans are perfectly happy to do all manner of jobs - they just won't do them for $7.00 an hour. Unions used to care about that, but now they just want political power.... Amnesty will be Fantastic for the Economy: Unless we're talking about the Mexican economy, this is patently ridiculous. Adding another 30 million poor, unskilled, non-taxpaying, welfare-receiving people to America is good only for government workers and employers who refuse to mechanize their operations or pay Americans one dollar more. ... The problems stemming from unchecked immigration are all over the news. You'll just never be told they are problems of immigration - children living in poverty, childhood obesity, teen pregnancy, out-of-wedlock births, abysmal high school dropout rates, income inequality, 'homegrown' terrorists, massive Medicare frauds, internet crime, identity theft, prison overcrowding, the vast number of uninsured used to justify Obamacare, sex trafficking, the epidemic of child rape, the destruction of our national parks, drunk driving casualties, drug-resistant tuberculosis, measles and other viral outbreaks, bankrupt government pension, low reading and math scores and shorter 'Americans'. ... why is it a crisis that illegal aliens are 'living in the shadows'?... It's supposed to be uncomfortable to break the law. ... How did all those illegal aliens get into the shadows in the first place? They weren't kidnapped and dragged across the border... But 'living in the shadows' is evidently better than living in Guadalajara, otherwise, there's an easy solution. Democrats aren't big on amnestying other lawbreakers. they don't hysterically demand amnesty for accounting cheats or polluters - not even for "the children" of accounting cheats and polluters. Enron executives were hard workers. They loved their families and wanted the best for them, just I'm sure MS-13 gang members love their families.... When the bathtub is overflowing, the very first thing you do is: TURN OFF THE WATER. ... obviously, any amnesty functions as a magnet for more illegal aliens. Nothing shows the bad faith of amnesty advocates with more blinding clarity than their steadfast refusal to seal the border. Ordinary people see this and know they're being lied to. ... China built a thirteen-thousand mile wall several centuries before Christ, and it's still working. ... For whom is a 'world without borders' an ideal? People who don't much care for America, I gather. ... Congress has repeatedly voted to build a border fence. But somehow, the fence never gets built - and Congress does nothing. ... amnesty supporters tried a surprise argument: To stop illegals pouring across the border, congress had to pass amnesty. They were hoping to stun us into silence with the stupidity of their argument. ... The 1986 Simpson-Mazzoli Act was supposed to end illegal immigration forever: Give us amnesty one time, then: Never again. As with all laws that combine the bitter with the sweet, such as tax hikes and spending cuts, we got one and not the other. The amnesty came, but the border security never did. Illegal immigration sextupled. There have been a half dozen more amnesties since then... . "The moral thing to do" is usually defined as "following the law." ... To paraphrase what President Bush used to say about terrorists: The anti-amnesty side has to be perfect every time; the pro-amnesty side only has to win once. Then the country is finished. 2. ... shouldn't politicians be more concerned with what citizens think of them than what foreigners do? ... Wouldn't any sane immigration policy be based on the principle that we want to bring in only immigrants who will benefit the people already here? ... Try calling another country's embassy and asking to immigrate there. Consulate: What do you want? You: Well, I can't read or write, I have no skills, and I've got nine kids. Oh and by the way. If I can't make it in your country, would you mind cutting my family a check once a month? ... Our "family reunification" policies mean that being related to a recent immigrant from Pakistan trumps being a surgeon from Denmark. Our government does such a terrific job at choosing who gets to immigrate to America that 52 percent of legal immigrant households with children are on government assistance. In all, nearly 60 percent of immigrants - legal and illegal - are on government assistance, compared with 39 percent of native households. Why would any country voluntarily bring in people who have to be supported by the taxpayer? ... The immigrants get a taxpayer subsidy to work for the rich, and the rich get a break on the maid. This cozy deal is funded by the long-suffering middle class. The anti-American crowd used to dash off to fight with Communist insurgencies in Third World jungles. But the fun of being self-righteous was sometimes cut short when they ended up in prison.... Rather than hating America from abroad, today's radicals can hate it right here at home by bringing the Third World to America! ... Being openly hostile to America has become a part of ethnic pride. US Rep Luis Gutierrez calls on his own country (technically the USA) to "stop the deportation of our people . ... Gutierrez told Newsweek that he has "only one loyalty, and that's to the immigrant community."

Whose taxes will be raised to make up the shortfall? Not the people who don't pay any taxes at all. Employers don't care. They want the cheap labor NOW.... We're seeing exactly what Vladimir Lenin is supposed to have said about capitalists: 'They will sell us the rope with which to hang them.' ... Whey shouldn't employers be on the hook when their cheap labor becomes a public charge or commits a crime? ... An immigration law premised on the idea that America owes the rest of the world would be bad enough. But Third World immigration + massive welfare state + political correctness = The end of America. 4. America is not the natural state of the world. The natural state of the world is Darfur. The British Empire spread Anglo-Saxon culture around the globe - Protestant morals, individualism, and the rule of law. Most British colonies rejected those values. Only the ones populated by actual British people -

America, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand - managed to hold on to them and, as a result, prospered. The empire's most successful experiment was the United States. Anyone who hesitates for a moment to recognize that some groups have it over other groups in producing free and prosperous nations has been brainwashed beyond reclamation.
5. America has already taken in more than one quarter of Mexico's entire population. ... Is that diverse enough yet? Why is it better that the ethnic population of our country be changed? ... Immigration of the past half century has been a homicide made to look like a suicide. ...a natural process? ... It's more like Americans are trying to stop an Army Corp of Engineers project that will flood the valley where they live in order to build a hydroelectric plant that will help one powerful corporation.
6. ... Until 1970, American immigrants did better than the natives - as any sane immigration policy would require. They made more money, bought more houses, and were more educated. By contrast, the post-1970 immigrants are far more likely to be unemployed and live in poverty that the native Americans. More that a third of the post-Kennedy act immigrants don't even have a high school diploma. ... In some bizarre notion of turn-about-is-fair-play, it is assumed that backward societies have the right to relocate to the countries of their former colonizers. I thought they hated those guys (the colonizers)? ... In just a few decades, Minnesota has gone from being approximately, 99 percent German, Dutch, Finnish, Danish, and Polish to 20 percent African immigrant, including at least one hundred thousand Somalis. And that's not counting the Somalis who have recently left the country to fight with al Queda and ISIS. One hundred thousand is just an estimate. We don't know precisely how many Somalis the federal government has brought in as "refugees" because the government won't tell us. ... Kate Towle, the parent leader of a high school group called "Students Together as Allies for Racial Trust" explained that diversity skills "have to be developed like math, history." Maybe it would be better for students to be learning math and history, rather than the important skill of getting along with Somalis. It doesn't seem to be working anyway. There are still violent ethnic brawls that send students to the hospital. What did we do to Somalis? ... absolutely nothing. But now these immigrants, who arrived yesterday, will get affirmative action over white Americans. ... Luckily, every Somali in Minnesota who has a job works for an ethnic grievance outfit - for example, the Somali Justice Advocacy Center, the Somali Resources Aid Associates, the African Development Center, and the Confederation of Somali Community in Minnesota. (And those are just some of the jobs being created by immigrants!). ... half of Somalis in Minnesota unemployed and 80 percent living at or below the poverty level... Recent mass murders committed by legal immigrants: The seven people murdered by Chechen immigrants Dzhokhar and Tamerlan Tsarnaev, who planted a bomb at the Boston Marathon, the four people fatally shot in a Carson City IHOP by... the Mexican-born Eduardo Sencion, the thirteen soldiers killed at Fort Hood by Major Nidal Malik Hasan, son of Palestinian immigrants, the thirteen people murdered by Vietnamese immigrant Jiverly Wong, at an American Civic Association in Binghamton, New York, the thirty-two people murdered at Virginia Tech by Seung-Hui Cho, a South Korean immigrant.... no one notices the immigrant crime wave because the media hide the evidence.
8. When did Americans get together and decide we want 30 percent of all immigrants to be from a single country and that country should be Mexico? If we're going to take almost all our immigrants from a single country, why not Denmark? There appears to have been only on Danish prisoner in New York State in decades - and, again, that was a Muslim. ...nearly 90 percent (of criminal aliens imprisoned in the states in 2009) were from one of eight countries: Mexico, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Cuba, Jamaica, El Salvador, Honduras, and Guatemala. ... What other country on earth would be so stupid? We have studies showing Hispanics are underrepresented in Hollywood, at top colleges, in the federal government, and in the national media... You know where else Hispanics are underrepresented? In the US military. You'd never know it... but Hispanics are half as likely to enlist in the military as either whites or blacks. ... Hispanic males in the US are more than three times as likely to spend time in prison in their lifetimes than white males. ... The vast majority of all drugs in America - heroin, cocaine, marijuana, and increasingly, methamphetamine - are brought in from Mexico. Most of the heroin sold in the US is grown south of the border, and Mexican cartels transport nearly all of it. ... More than 40,000 Americans were killed from all illegal drug use in 2010, surpassing car accidents and shootings as a cause of death. ... Today, China is once again battling drug smuggling because like America, it also has a poor, corrupt nation with a massive humanitarian crisis on its border; Not Mexico, but North Korea. Guess what China did? It built a fence! Despite stern warnings from the New York Times, China put a thirteen-foot barbed wire fence on its border, patrolled by armed guards. And you know what, it's working! ... Is an American citizen more likely to be murdered by a Muslim terrorist or by a Mexican? According to CNN, 29 Americans have been killed in Islamic terrorist attacks in the US since 9/11. I don't know why they excluded 9/11, so by my count, it's 3,029. In fact, let's round it up to 4,000 to cover the last several decades. According to the GAO's extremely conservative figures, Mexicans alone - forget other immigrants - have murdered a minimum of 23,000 Americans in the last few decades. ... If this were happening in Israel, forget a fence - Netanyahu would be bombing Mexico. ... President Eisenhower put a general in charge of the INS, who proceeded to round up and deport illegals in an operation dubbed "Operation Wetback." HBO's Bill Maher would be saying of our southern neighbors: "Americans have 349 Nobel Prizes; Latin Americans have 16. That seems like kind of a big advantage for Team America." ... Far more Americans are murdered by Mexicans, per capita, than Israelis are murdered by Palestinians. 11. The three young girls kidnapped and held as sex slaves for more than a decade in a boarded-up house in Cleveland had been held by Ariel Castro. ... But then it turned out Castro wasn't the only Hispanic raping young girls - on his block. ... While investigating the Castro case, detectives happened upon Acevedo... he had raped and killed two of his neighbors...

Chandra Levy's killer turned out not to be Democratic Congressman Gary Condit, but Ingmar Guandique - an illegal alien from El Salvador, given temporary amnesty by President Bush. (Does that guy have any brothers? I'd love to see another one like him in the White House!). The one Central Park rapist that even liberals admit was guilty was Hispanic Matias Reyes. After the other attackers had finished with the victim, Reyes came across the joggers beaten and bloody body, and raped her himself.

12. ... environmentalists used to care about gridlock, overcrowding, loss of parkland, and exhaustion of natural resources. Not anymore. Today's environmentalists turn a blind eye as 25 million people tramp through delicate ecosystems, set fire to national parks, kill livestock, dump tons of soiled diapers and Pepsi bottles in the desert, and deface ancient Native American sites. Political correctness demands that no one notice immigrants' toll on the environment. ... Of the 77 human-caused fires on federal or tribal land in Arizona between 2006 and 2010 investigated by the GAO, a cause could be determined in 60 cases. Fully half of those were caused by illegal aliens. ...One of the reasons the GAO was able to review only 77 fires was that the BLM and the Forest Service couldn't spare any agents for investigations. They were too busy protecting 'firefighters and their equipment from illegal aliens.' Apparently, when illegals see border patrol agents, they try to distract them by throwing lighted matches in the brush to start fires. Not only do illegal immigrants intentionally set wildfires, but they violently attack firefighters trying to extinguish the blazes. Firies are allowed to rage, because fire crews are forced to wait for law enforcement protection. ... The Forest Service had once gamely suggested trying to identify 'the group most likely to start fires,' but once the evidence was in, they buried it. To blame illegal aliens would be playing the 'blame the perpetrator' game. ... Because of new border restrictions after 9/11 - I guess it was possible to tighten the borders! - our dear friends in Mexico moved their drug cartel operations directly into America's parks. ... 'These guys shoot people'... Armed illegal aliens were in control of our national parks, so government officials leapt to action by shutting down the parks. A majority of Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument was closed to US citizens for more than a decade because it was too dangerous.

... For a glimpse into America's future, consider how Mexicans treat their own environment. In Mexico's most famous national park, a ten-thousand-year-old evergreen forest designated by presidential decree as a biosphere reserve, illegal loggers chop down about seventy mature tress a day... While environmentalists from around the world send millions of dollars to Mexico preserve the forest... For decades, Mexican refuse ended up on San Diego's world-famous beaches by way of the Tijuana River. ... One solution would have been for Mexicans to stop throwing their garbage in the river. ... Instead, US taxpayers funded a sewage treatment plant on the border at a cost of $239.4 million. Mexico chipped in $17 million. ... Where are the environmentalists? For 50 years, they've been carrying on about overpopulation; promoting family planning, birth control... The Sierra Club began sounding the alarm over the country's expanding population in 1965 - the very year Teddy Kennedy's immigration act passed - and in 1978, adopted a resolution expressly asking Congress to 'conduct a thorough examination of US immigration laws.' For a while, the Club taked about almost nothing else. "It is obvious" the Club said two years later, "that the numbers of immigrants the US accepts affects our population size and growth rate," even more than 'the number of children per family.

Over the next three decades, America took in tens of millions of legal immigrants and illegal aliens alike. But suddenly, about ten years ago, the Sierra Cub realized to its embarrassment that importing multiple millions of polluting, fire-setting, littering immigrants is actually fantastic for the environment! The advantages of overpopulation dawned on the Sierra Club right after it received a $100 million donation from hedge fund billionaire David Gelbaum with the express stipulation that - as he told the LA Times - 'if they ever came out anti-immigration, they would never get a dollar from me.' It would be as if someone offered the Catholic Church $100 million to be pro-abortion. But the Sierra Club said: Sure! Did you bring the check? Obviously, there's no reason to listen to them on anything.

... Not only did the Sierra Club never again say another word against immigration, but, in 2004, it went the extra mile, denouncing three actuals environmentalists running for the Club's board, by claiming they were racists who opposed mass immigration. The three 'white supremacists' were Dick Lamm, the three-time Democratic governor of Colorado; Frank Morris, former head of the Black Congressional Caucus Foundation; and Cornell professor David Pimentel, who created the first ecology course at the university... America's premiere hate group, the Southern Poverty Law Center, jumped into the fray, with multimillionaire con man and SPLC head Morris Dees running for the Sierra Club board simply to smear the three real environmentalist candidates... But, evidently, what poor Southerners need most is a massive influx of foreign poor people competing for their jobs. ... In 2012, Sierra Club executive director Michael Brune announced that the Club officially supported mass immigration - amnesty, no borders, more legal immigration, the whole nine yards.

13. Normally, (Carlos) slim is the kind of businessman the (NY) Times - along with every other sentient human being - would find repugnant. Frequently listed as the richest man in the world, Slim acquired his fortune through a corrupt inside deal giving him a monopoly on telecommunications services in Mexico. But in order to make money from his monopoly, Slim needs lots of Mexicans living in the US, sending money to their relatives back in Oaxaca. Otherwise, Mexicans couldn't pay him - and they wouldn't have much need for phone service, either, other than to call in ransom demands. Back in 2004, before the Times became Slim's pimp - a Times article stated: "Clearly... the nation's southern border is under siege." But that was before Carlos Slim saved the Times from bankruptcy. Ten years later, with a border crisis even worse that in 2004, and Latin America pouring across the border, the Times indignantly demanded the Obama "go big" on immigration and give "millions of immigrants permission to stay". ...

Republicans are terrified of saying anything about immigration for fear of being called 'racist.' ... The fact that most immigrants are Hispanic provides excellent cover for the elite's monumental self-interest. Here's a tip for the GOP: Don't talk about the illegal aliens. Talk about Carlos Slim, Talk about rich Americans finding a solution to 'the servant problem.' Talk about one-hit wonder Mark Zuckerberg underpaying his computer programmers while 32 percent of American graduates in STEM fields can't get job and the rest haven't seen their salaries rise for more than a decade. Talk about how Bill Clinton couldn't find someone to be his attorney general because of the prevalence of illegal alien employees in households of the '1 percent'. Determined to appoint a woman attorney general, Clinton kept producing women with illegal alien nannies (Zoe Baird, Kimba Wood). ... The elites just can't grasp that most Americans raise their own kids, make their own beds, cook their own food, and drive their own cars. ... America will be Brazil, with a well-pampered, itty-bitty upper class, amid an ocean of poor people. ... It's a sweet deal the elites have: They get to have cheap nannies and lawn boys in the whitest towns in America - and feel morally superior at the same time!

14. The vast majority of all legal immigrants - two thirds- get in on "family reunification" policies each year. In other words, America has no say about the single largest category of immigrants... Entire villages from Pakistan are dumped on the country, based not on their expertise in nuclear engineering, but because everyone in the village is related to the first guy who got in. If they're not, in the strict sense, related, they'll lie. In 2008, the State Department suspended the family reunification part of the African refugee program because DNA testing showed that only 20 percent of 'family members' were actually related. We'll still take as many refugees from Africa, but they won't have to lie about being related anymore. ... The special agricultural amnesty of 1986 is a good example of how even the most reasonable-sounding immigration law will inevitably be turned into a pipeline for criminals, welfare cases, and terrorists. ... illegal alien farmworkers who could prove they had done seasonal farmwork for a total of ninety days between May 1, 1985 and May 1, 1986, would be granted temporary legal status. what could go wrong? In the first three years of the program, 888,637 agricultural amnesty applications were identified as fraudulent - but only 60,637 of those were denied. Overwhelmed with amnesty applications under just this one provision, the INS found it to be a big time-saver to simply ignore fraud. ... Mohammed Salameh, another terrorist convicted in the 1993 World Trade Center bombing, was also in the US because of Schumer's special agricultural worker amnesty. The unskilled 19-year-old first came to the US on a tourist visa because, as the US consulate later explained, someone in the office "took a chance" on Mohammed. Mohammed not only had never worked on a farm, but he was not even in the country until 1988, two years after the special amnesty became law, though it was explicitly limited to those who had worked on farms in the US in the year before May 1, 1986. By the most basic definition of the law, Mohammed was not eligible, but he was allowed to stay in the US and obtain a work visa - while the INS processed his petition. Moving with the lightning speed of a government agency, the INS rejected his petition for amnesty as a farm worker three years later. Then, Mohammed applied for a general amnesty, claiming he had been living continuously in the US from 1980 to 1986. Actually, he was a teenager in Jordan then, but again, Mohammed was allowed to stay while the INS considered his request. As it considering, Mohammed bombed the World Trade Center.

How about all those brainy, high-tech H-!B immigrants that Senator Orrin Hatch keeps telling us about? ... the cheap-labor advocacy group Partnership for a New American Economy excitedly tweeted that two - yes two - of the five LindedIn founders were "born in Europe"!... Here's my counter tweet: 98.7% fo the founders of important Silicon Valley companies were born in America! 99 percent are white men! ... Professor Norman Matloff: 'The vast majority of H-1B's, including those hired from US universities, are ordinary people doing ordinary work, not the best and the brightest. On the contrary, the average quality of the H-1Bs is lower that theat of the Americans. ... The main advantage of foreign labor over native workers, Matloff explains, is aht H-1B workers are indentured servants: They can't quit without risking deportation. so American employers get to pay less for standard computer programming work. ... They want cheap people. Mass-immigration advocates push ethnic stereotypes about high-IQ immigrants, but then go crazy whenever anyone suggests we actually bring in high-IQ immigrants. ... The average Indian IQ is staggeringly low: 82. That's about the same as the average IQ in Afghanistan - 84; Panama - 84; Dominican Republic - 82; Paraguay - 84; Yemen - 85; and Tonga - 86. We take more immigrants from India than from Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Sweden, Switzerland, Spain, and the Czech Republic put together. Why are we discriminating...? The answer is: Because those immigrants would tend to fill the kinds of jobs rich people have.

15. The only thing that stands between America and oblivion is a total immigration moratorium. ... It's evident that the government can't be trusted to use three brain cells in admitting immigrants, so its discretion has to be completely revoked. No matter how clearly laws are written, government bureaucrats connive to confer citizenship on people that a majority of Americans would not want to let in as tourists, much less as our fellow citizens. ... No other fix will work. Congress could just insist that immigrants pay taxes, learn English, not collect welfare, and have good moral character, except the problem is: It already has. All those laws were swept away by INS officials, judges, and Democratic administrations. Doing it again won't produce a different result. ... Even if we could trust the government on immigration - and we can't - there are the legions of immigration lawyers, lobbyists, nonprofits, and general miscreants whose single-minded mission is to turn America into the Third World hellhole of liberal fantasies. ... The billion-dollar immigration industry has turned every single aspect of immigration law into an engine of fraud. The family reunifications are frauds, the 'farmworkers' are frauds, the high-tech visas are frauds - and the asylum and refugee cases are monumental frauds. ... the only result of our asylum policies is that we get good liars. Taxpayers subsidize sleazy immigration activists who coach immigrants to lie to immigration officials. Document mills produce phony passports, school records, and medical reports. ... immigration judges approve 92 percent of all "credible fear" asylum applications.
16. ... if Romney had won 71 percent of the Hispanic vote in 2012, instead of 27 percent, he still would have lost. On the other hand, had he won just 4 percent more of the white vote, he would have won.
17. America's suicidal immigration policies are the single biggest threat facing the nation. What happens with immigration will determine whether America continues to exist or becomes a Third World republic...

Mayor Goodman,
I was disappointed to watch you on your KCLV show Friday evening supporting illegal aliens. Worse yet was the inclusion of two guests, both of who were also advocates of illegal aliens. Wouldn't it have been fair to host an equal amount of speakers in opposition? Is the care and feeding of illegal aliens a part of the city charter? I doubt it. We need the illegal immigrants to return to their native countries. Your positions lure more of them here and encourage them to stay. Why don't you start looking out for US citizens first? Don't you realize that the reason people from third world countries sneak into the US is ultimately because they can't stand being around other third world people. Plenty of skilled people from developed countries are waiting patiently for admission to the US. Is it fair to reward those whose very first act into this county is illegal? You can disguise the problem by saying they are fleeing high crime rates, violence, rotten economy... but this deception hides the real reason. Why would you want to turn us into a third world country? If you feel so concerned about them, there is an easy solution: move to a third world country to help them where they are.

Please read:

The Immigration Solution, by MacDonald, Hansen & Malanga

While the cheapness of the immigrants' labor may benefit a very few industries and provide some upper and le-class families with cut-rate gardeners and nannies, it adds very little to our national standard of living. On the other side of the ledger, the costs these immigrants impose on US taxpayers for health care, schooling, welfare, and (all too often) incarceration far outweigh the benefits they offer. In California, the National Academy of Sciences found immigrant families cost each native-born household an additional $1,200 in taxes per year. Although a net loss for the US, such workers are an unalloyed boon for Mexico. Their ability to find work north of the border is an essential safety valve for Mexico's failed economy and stubbornly unreformed political culture, and the remittances these workers send home are indispensable to Mexico, constituting its second largest source of hard currency. No wonder the Mexican government – especially through its consuls in the US – vigorously fosters the illegal migration of its nationals into its northern neighbor. … But those earlier huddled masses of immigrants yearning to breathe free, however tired and poor they may have looked, were in fact on average more skilled than the native-born population of a century ago. In addition, the less-developed economy of that era also had a vastly greater need for immigrants without skills than does today's knowledge economy. More important, the US immigration system of that period was a machine for selecting the most enterprising and energetic migrants. With no welfare system whatever, those who came were those who thought they could make use of the opportunity and freedom America offered by their own efforts. Grateful for the chance, these newcomers were only too glad to assimilate to their new land as best they could, and their children did so wholeheartedly. Not so today. The first child born in America to an immigrant entitles his or her family to child-only welfare payments – a hefty-looking sum to a recent migrants from a peasant village. … Deprived of work, illegals would return home, just as 60 percent of immigrants from the first great migration eventually left these shores when they couldn't make it here. ...our new policy should select newcomers not because they are someone's brother or adult child or elderly parents, or because they successfully sneaked into the country some years ago, but because they have some special skill... that will enrich our nation. … Thousands arrive illegally from Mexico into California each year... They come in such numbers because a tacit alliance of Right and Left has created an open-borders policy, aimed at keeping wage labor cheap and social problems ever fresh, so that the ministrations of Chicano studies professors, La Raza activists, and all the other self-appointed defenders of group causes will never be unneeded. … nearly one quarter of California's inmates are aliens from Mexico. The pro-labor left found that the industrious new arrivals whom it championed eroded the wages of its own domestic low wage constituencies - the Labor Department attributes 50 percent of real-wage declines to the influx of cheap immigrant labor. … when I was ten, in 1963, all suburbanites mowed their own lawns – many with push mowers. Now almost everyone hires the job out. Nannies for toddlers and grannies, unheard of then, are now ubiquitous... Rural schools used to begin in mid-September to ensure that we natives could pick grapes to earn our school clothes and shoes. Today not a single student in California would do such hot, dirty work, now considered demeaning. … So we allow illegal aliens to obtain California driver's licenses – the foundation for all other means of legal identification – and to pay reduced in-state tuition at the University of California, thereby providing several thousand dollars in discounts not available to American citizens from out of state. Whether you break the law to reach California or immigrate legally, it makes little difference in how you drive, send your kids to college, or draw on the public services of the state. … I often suggest to teachers who tell aliens that our culture is racist, exploitative, and sexist that they should live in Mexico themselves to fathom why millions are dying to obtain what they so casually dismiss.

… America does not have a vast labor shortage that requires waves of low wage immigrants to alleviate; in fact, unemployment among native-born unskilled workers in high – consistently about double the nations' overall unemployment rate. … an unusual coalition of business groups, unions, civil rights activists, and church leaders thwarted the call for restrictions with passage of the inaptly names 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act, which legalized some 2.7 million unauthorized aliens already here, supposedly in exchange for tougher penalties and controls against employers who hired illegals. The law proved no deterrent, however, because supporters, in subsequent legislation and court cases argued on civil rights grounds, weakened the employer sanctions. Meanwhile more illegals flooded here in the hope of future amnesties from Congress, while the newly legalized sneaked their wives and children into the country rather than have them wait for family-preference visas. The flow of illegals into the country rose to between 300,000 and 500,000 per year in the 1990's, so that a decade after the legislation that had supposedly solved the undocumented alien problem by reclassifying them as legal, the number of illegals living in the US was back up to about 5 million. … In many American industries, waves of low-wage workers have also retarded investments that might lead to modernization and efficiency. Farming, which employs a million immigrant laborers in California alone, is the prime case in point. Faced with a labor shortage in the early 1960's, when President Kennedy ended a 22-year-old guest-worker program that allowed 45,000 Mexican farm hands to cross over the border and harvest 2.2 million tons of California tomatoes for processed foods, farmers complained but swiftly automated, adopting a mechanical tomato-picking technology created more than a decade earlier. Today, just 5,000 better-paid workers – one-ninth the original workforce – harvest 12 million tons of tomatoes using the machines. The savings prompted by low-wage migrants may even be minimal in crops not easily mechanized. … If the benefits of the current generation of migrants are small, the costs are large and growing because of America's vast range of social programs and the wide advocacy network that strives to hook low-earning legal and illegal immigrants into these programs. A 1998 Nationals Academy of Sciences study found that more than 30 percent of California's foreign-born were on Medicaid... compared with 14 percent of native –born households. The foreign-born were more than twice as likely as the native-born to be on welfare, and their children were nearly five times as likely to be in means-tested government lunch programs. Native-born households pay for much of this, the study found, because they earn more and pay higher taxes – and are more likely to comply with tax laws. Recent immigrants, by comparison, have much lower levels of income and tax compliance.

... This call for 'human rights' is a clever one, for it hides its radical status in a rhetorical safe harbor. What, exactly, are the 'human rights' that the US is denying illegal aliens? They have unfettered access to free medical care, free education, welfare for their children, free representation in court when they commit crimes, every due process protection during criminal prosecution that the Constitution guarantees citizens and legal immigrants, the shelter of labor laws, and the miracles of modern industrial society like clean water, the control of infectious diseases (including the ones they bring with them), and plumbing. The only putative 'right' they lack - and that, of course, is the 'human right' to which they and their ambassadors refer - is the right to legal status regardless of illegal entry. ....

No one will take the assurance that 'this time we mean business' seriously. If the executive branch is not willing to enforce the current law against violators, a new set of laws will not suddenly strengthen its resolve... border defenses have been fortified over the years, but the drill has been: if you can get past the border patrol, you are home free. The most important action the government could take to end illegal immigration would be to penalize employers that unlawfully hire illegal aliens... After 9/11, the department of Homeland Security deported fifteen hundred illegal Pakistanis. An additional fifteen thousand then left voluntarily, reports Jessica Vaughan of the Center for Immigration Studies. There is no reason to think this enforcement-through-attrition strategy won't work as well for Hispanic illegals. ...

It would be useful for open-borders optimists to spend some time in the Los Angeles Unified School District, which is 73 percent Hispanic, and where just 40 percent of Hispanic students graduate. (Nationwide, 53 percent of Hispanics graduate from high school...) Of those Hispanic students who do graduate, just 22 percent have completed the course work necessary for admission to a four-year state college - which means that of all Hispanic students who enter in ninth grade, fewer than 15 percent will graduate ready for college. Immigrant advocates have fiercely opposed in court a long-deferred California high school exit exam, which would require students to answer just over 50 percent of questions testing eight-grade-level math and ninth-grade-level English. The California Research Bureau predicts that if the exam becomes a reality, Hispanic graduation rates would drop well below 30 percent. ... Schools spend huge sums trying to improve the Hispanic graduation rate, even hiring 'outreach consultants' for dropout prevention. One Santa Ana consultant's approach is predictably multicultural. "We need to teach teachers that students need to be proud of where they are coming from," she told me. But, of course, Hispanic school failure derives not from ethnic neglect - the Sana Ana schools glorify the Hispanic heritage to a fault...
...a high level of immigration translates to increased levels of crime. Between the foreign-born generation and their American children, the incarceration rate of Mexican American jumps more than eightfold...
Pro-amnesty forces promote that illegal immigrants "risk everything for the dream of freedom"... However lousy the Mexican economy, there are few, if any, political freedoms enjoyed by Americans that Mexico denies. It is the Yankee dollar, not untasted freedom, that brings the vast majority of illegals here.

...in spring 2006 American witnessed millions of illegal aliens who not only were unapologetic about their illegal status but were demanding that their hosts accommodate their own political grievances, from providing driver's licenses to full amnesty. The largest demonstrations - held on May Day, with thousands of protesters waving Mexican flags and bearing placards depicting the Communist insurrectionist Che Guevara - only confirmed to most Americans that illegal immigration was out of control and beginning to become politicized along the lines of Latin American radicalism. I chronicled in Mexifornia the anomaly of angry protesters waving he flag of the country they vehemently did not wish to return to , but now the evening news beamed these images to millions. In short, the radical socialism of Latin America, seething in the angry millions who flocked to support Venezuela's Hugo Chavez, Bolivia's Evo Morales, and Mexico's Andres Lopez Obrador, had now seemingly been imported into our own largest cities. ...

Crippled America

We are the only nation in the world whose immigration system places the needs of other nations ahead of our own. … Too many people have forgotten the Mariel boatlift. … The Mexican government has published pamphlets explaining how to illegally emigrate to the US. … It's a great way for those governments to get rid of their worst people without paying any price.... Operation Wetback... was successful. It was a joint effort between the INS and the Mexican government. Special immigration teams were created to quickly process and deport illegal immigrants. One of the reasons it worked is that people who were caught were given to Mexican government agents, who moved them into central Mexico, where they could find jobs. ...In the first year, more than one million people were sent back. ...Why should we absorb the expense of keeping criminals in prisons? Let their countries of origin deal with the problems they sent us. If they refuse to take them back, we can stop issuing visas to those countries, preventing their citizens from legally visiting the US. I also would triple the number of immigration officers we currently employ until the wall is built. … Currently there are about 5,000 officers attempting to enforce the existing immigration laws against the more than 11 million illegal aliens. Compare that to the... 35,000 officers in the New York Police Department. Since 9/11 we have tripled the size of the border patrol but haven't substantially increased the number of ICE officers – the officers who enforce immigration laws. … We have to cut off federal grants to sanctury cities... We need to have real penalties for people who overstay their visas. … Most important is ending or curtailing so-called birthright citizenship, or anchor babies. … It is estimated that about 300,000 of these children are born here annually. That's 300,000 children who are entitled to all the rights and privileges granted to American citizens because their mothers entered this country illegally... There are businesses that specialize in making this happen! They call it 'birth tourism'…. And those people take advantage of the system and come here illegally should never enjoy the benefits of being a resident – or citizen – of this nation. So, I am against any path to citizenship for undocumented workers or anyone else who is in this country illegally. They should – and need to – go home and get in line. And you know who agrees with me? The Mexicans, the Chinese, and all the people from other countries who want to be here legally and can't get a visa or fit into a quota... We can be generous and do all of this humanely. But the security and prosperity of American citizens have to come first. .. (Chapter 3)

I believe in putting the needs of American citizens first, always.... There's an old phrase that, sadly, you rarely hear anymore, "Made in America". We will start saying this again. (Chap. 10)

Webinar: EMV Rollout Presents Unique Opportunities for Banks - Register Now >

The rollout of EMV (smart) cards and terminals in 2015 will have a significant impact on reducing card-present fraud. It may also cause a surge in card-not-present or other types of fraud as criminals shift to easier targets.

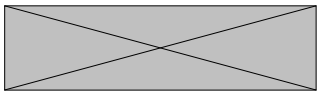
The smart-card rollout presents banks with a unique opportunity to engage with customers. Banks need to be prepared not only to explain what the new cards are and do, but discuss the possible outcomes, and how the bank can assist.

Join us for this 60-minute interactive webinar. We'll update you on the impact of EMV rollout and how best to engage with customers.

Register now for this free webinar >

This webinar will reveal how banks can:

- Be prepared for the possible outcomes of the EMV rollout
- Reinforce retail customers' trust by communicating with them about the significance of this change
- Strengthen ties with merchant customers



This webinar is brought to you by:

Subject: Do you support "International suicide Prevention"?

Mayor Goodman,

As a trained counsellor, I know Mayor Goodman must be in favour of evidence-based treatment. That's why I'm writing to ask you if you support the work of the organization "International Suicide Prevention" (EIN: 20-4671131) in the State of Nevada.

The President of that organization - who is not qualified to practice any field of medicine, mental health, Social Work, or related, and who is promoting treatments that are not supported by scientific evidence - says that you do.

I call attention to about half-way down this page (https://www.linkedin.com/pulse/psychopath-matthew-d-dovel) where the following text appears (italics mine):

b. These are state leaders from Nevada that have been listed on our web site for years and allow their names and photos to be listed. Note: do you think that our Governor, US Congresswoman, and Mayor would allow their names, and photo, to appear in a site that is perpetrating a fraud?

1. Congresswoman Representative for Nevada Dina Titus
2. Governor of Nevada Brian Sandoval
3. Mayor Carolyn Goodman of Las Vegas, Nevada

Not only are they supporting our work you can find them on this link standing with me:
http://www.supportisp.org/about.html

My qualifications are below to help establish my bona fides as qualified in this area:

- I am a Registered Social Service Worker (RSSW) with the Ontario College of Social Workers and Social Service Workers (OCWSSW), the equivalent to the Nevada Board of Social Work Examiners
- I am the Director of Online Support & Communications for Distress Centre Durham
- I am also the ONTX (Online Text and Chat) Facilitator for Distress and Crisis Ontario.
- I sit on a subcommittee of the National Suicide Prevention Service (NSPS) bringing a national crisis line to Canada
- I am a member of the Durham Region Youth Suicide Prevention (YSP) Action Group building a postvention (after a suicide) protocol to the Region
- I am Secretary and Chair of the Technology and Innovation Committee on the Literacy Council of Durham Region Board of Directors
- Professional development includes Applied Suicide Intervention Skills Training (ASIST), Online Counseling and Suicide Intervention Specialist (OCSIS) and suicideCare courses

White House On Guard Against Dodd-Frank Tweaks, Lew Says

Treasury Secretary Jacob J. Lew said in Senate testimony Tuesday that although the Obama administration supports easing regulations for community banks, five years of fighting over Dodd-Frank has “conditioned” the administration to be on the lookout for legislative changes that could gut the law.

Lynch Says High Court Nomination Would Disrupt Work As AG

U.S. Attorney General Loretta Lynch doesn’t want to be considered for a nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court to replace Justice Antonin Scalia, according to reports Tuesday, because such a nomination would inhibit her ability to do her job at the Justice Department.

DOJ Promotes Foreign Corruption Unit Leader

The head of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act unit of the U.S. Department of Justice’s criminal division, a prosecutor with 15 years of experience, has been promoted within the division’s fraud section, the DOJ confirmed Tuesday.

New Medicare Drug Pay Model Invites Industry Clash

Federal regulators on Tuesday proposed a nationwide, five-year test of new drug payment policies aimed at cutting costs in Medicare Part B, likely touching off a significant fight with drugmakers, doctors and hospitals.

Cornyn Blasted Over Claim High Court Pick Will Be 'Pinata'

Senate Minority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., and the White House on Tuesday slammed Sen. John Cornyn, R-Texas, over comments that any nominee to replace the late U.S. Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia would effectively be treated as a “pinata,” urging Senate Republicans to pull back on their “rhetoric.”

Amarin, FDA Finalize Free Speech Settlement

Amarin Pharma and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration on Tuesday finalized in New York federal court a long-awaited settlement of First Amendment litigation over restrictions on off-label promotion, capping a seminal case for oversight of prescription drug claims.

Making Agencies Revisit Regs Saved $28B, White House Says

States Can Divert 'Stranded' $2B To Transit Projects

The U.S. Department of Transportation said Tuesday that states can redirect unused portions of certain spending authorizations from more than a decade ago to nearby infrastructure projects, potentially making some $2 billion available for them.

Judge Denies Suit Over Calif.'s $64B High-Speed Rail Plan

California's plans for a $64 billion high-speed rail system don't violate the promises the Golden State's government made to voters to win funds for the project — yet, a state court judge said in a ruling made public on Tuesday denying a challenge to the project.

Maritime Officials Prioritizing Port Upgrades, Workforce Boost

U.S. ports buckling under the pressure of rising shipping demand and congestion will need additional investments to upgrade infrastructure and replenish a shrinking workforce of merchant mariners in order to maintain American competitiveness in global trade, maritime officials told a Senate panel on Tuesday.

Fla. Transportation Financing Bill Passes State Senate

The Florida Senate unanimously passed a wide-ranging transportation bill Monday, returning it to the state's lower chamber with amendments that include a $10 million funding boost for a seaport economic development program, an expansion of Florida Department of Transportation environmental review power and the creation of a financing corporation.

EMPLOYMENT

High Court Urged To Nix DOL Home Care Wage Rule

The Home Care Association of America urged the high court Monday to review a decision reviving the U.S. Department of Labor's rule extending federal wage-and-hour protections to most home care workers, doubling down on its assertion that the rule violates employers' statutory rights.

Sens. Call For Self-Bonding Probe Amid Coal Co. Bankruptcies

Two U.S. senators asked the U.S. Government Accountability Office on Tuesday to analyze $3.6 billion in self-bonds issued by coal companies to cover cleanup costs when mines close, saying bankruptcies at some of the nation's largest coal producers call the program into question.

IMMIGRATION

225 Lawmakers Back Immigration Actions At High Court

More than 200 Democratic members of Congress and more than 300 groups that include prominent unions and immigration organizations urged the U.S. Supreme Court on Tuesday to nix a block on President Barack Obama's executive actions on immigration.

O-1 Visa Comparable Evidence Policy May Burden Petitioners

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services adjudicators may soon change how they consider comparable evidence to prove extraordinary ability for O-1 visa hopefuls, but attorneys say forcing petitioners to first show why other criteria aren't applicable to foreign nationals' careers is unnecessary and burdensome.

Reps., Scholars, Advocates Back Samoans' Bid For Citizenship

Members of Congress, law professors and others have filed amicus briefs in support of five American Samoans who have asked the U.S. Supreme Court to decide whether people born in the U.S. territory have birthright citizenship, saying the D.C. Circuit's ruling preserving laws classifying them as noncitizen nationals is wrong.

A former senior director of operations at the Internal Revenue Service who oversaw the implementation of the Affordable Care Act has joined Holland & Knight LLP as a partner in Washington, D.C., the firm announced on Tuesday.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

A 'FAIR' Chance For Infrastructure P3s In Obama Budget

The Obama administration's fiscal year 2017 budget includes an innovative infrastructure finance proposal, known as the Financing America's Infrastructure Renewal program, that may gain traction in the 114th Congress, even if the clock runs out on the Obama administration. Cost-effective infrastructure investment is a policy idea that will always be able to find a constituency in Congress, say attorneys at K&L Gates LLP.

The Yates Memo: 6 Months Later

It has been six months since U.S. Deputy Attorney General Sally Yates announced the now well-known "Yates memo," which, at least initially, suggested a policy shift by the U.S. Department of Justice on the investigation and prosecution of individuals for corporate wrongdoing. Tracing the developments since the Yates memo's inception, it is clear that the policy has already had practical implications, say attorneys with Paul Hastings LLP.

The Regulatory Impact Of President Obama's Final Year

Whether or not one agrees with this president's policies, it has been impressive how he has marshaled his resources to get things done. Now, as we enter the last year of an eight-year presidency, there is a lot of unfinished business and an appetite in the executive branch to "make hay while the sun shines." And there will be little to stand in the administration's way, say attorneys with Crowell & Moring LLP.

LEGAL INDUSTRY

K&L Gates Losses Fueled By Clashes With Firm Management

K&L Gates LLP's stream of partner departures is being driven by concerns that the firm's management structure creates an autocracy that is unable to address partners' anxieties about the firm's financial future, former partners say, a contention the head of the firm slammed in an interview with Law360 on Tuesday, saying the firm takes great pains to give partners a voice.

5 Ways To Build Trust When Talking With Clients

Building trust is key to having successful client relationships. But experts say fostering trust takes more than just delivering legal solutions.

BigLaw's Racial Diversity Still Bleak

BigLaw firms slightly increased the diversity of their attorney ranks between 2007 and 2015, but the firms actually had fewer African-American lawyers and promoted Asian-American attorneys less often than was the case eight years ago, a survey found Tuesday.

3 BigLaw Firms Report 2015 Financial Figures

Gross revenue at Schiff Hardin LLP soared in 2015, up 14.7 percent over the previous year, McGuireWoods LLP posted a 5.4 percent increase in revenue and Covington & Burling LLP's London office made barely perceptible income gains, the firms confirmed on Tuesday.

Reed Smith LLP has given its first-year associates in London a £2,000 ($2,853) pay raise, hiking starting salaries at the firm from £61,000 to £63,000, the firm confirmed on Tuesday.

What GCs Need To Know About Ransomware Attacks

Hackers are increasingly holding systems and data hostage while demanding a payout, with one think tank calling 2016 "the year ransomware holds America hostage." But this new crime wave requires a different approach to cybersecurity than your standard data breach prevention plan. Here is how GCs can prepare their organizations.

Calif. High Court To Stream Oral Arguments, Top Judge Says

The California Supreme Court will start streaming oral arguments online in May, California's top judge told state legislators during the annual State of the Judiciary address on Tuesday.

Members of the Board:

We continue to make rapid progress towards our public opening of The Underground. Very much looking forward to seeing most of you at the celebration on the 19th.

I want to make you aware that Kathleen Hoy, our Controller, has announced her plans to retire in early May. Kathleen has been with us for almost five years and has contributed significantly to "shoring up" and managing our accounting processes. We are fortunate that Kathleen is staying in the community and not moving on to another job. She has graciously informed us that she could be available going forward on a part-time basis or for discrete projects.

We will be searching for a replacement immediately. With guidance from Ed, we have enhanced the position description (attached) to address the complexities of our operations, with particular emphasis on the business analytics that will be more important than ever as we evaluate and grow our separately ticketed experiences, new F&B activities, etc.

Referrals are appreciated and may be sent to Cristin Haught, Mark Achenbach, or myself – or simply directed to the employment section on our website. Thanks again to Ed who has offered assistance in the selection process.

Much appreciated,

Jonathan

By way of information to you both:

Until the legal/justice process is completed and a guilty verdict is assessed, the question at this time is moot. As you know, anyone can be indicted for any reason, and most importantly, one is presumed innocent until proven guilty in this country. As for additional information In regards to campaign contributions that came in over 4 years ago to fund my 2011 campaign (and were spent), each and all were recorded, made public and to my knowledge were either Nevada, Clark County, and/or City licensed business entities.

Hi Mayor! Two years ago (yes he kept the email!) Jon Ralston asked us about this whether you were considering returning the money he gave your campaign, and after talking with you we responded you were aware of the issue and would wait and see what the outcome of the investigation is,
Now that he has been indicted Jon wants to know whether you are planning to return the money he donated to your campaign.
Feel free to call me if you want to chat, I wanted to email you this so you had the PDF.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION

PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Gig Economy: Are Your Workers Employees? The 6-Part Test

Unfortunately, many sharing economy companies have tried to have it both ways — benefiting from the cost savings of calling workers independent contractors while at the same time treating them as employees in most other respects. Guidance from the U.S. Department of Labor suggests that many of these companies have misclassified their workers as independent contractors, say Rachel Bien and Cara Chomski of Outten & Golden LLP.

The Deemed Export Rule And Employment Nondiscrimination

For employers that are caught between complying with export control laws and anti-discrimination laws, the U.S. Department of Justice recently issued guidance to help companies navigate these seemingly contradictory requirements. But, while helpful in some areas, the guidance may add to the confusion in other areas, say John Burke and Sabrina Shadi at BakerHostetler LLP.

Treasury Regs Cause Issues For 'Lonely' Life Insurance Cos.

New proposed U.S. Department of the Treasury regulations on whether a domestic life insurance company may join in filing a consolidated U.S. federal income tax return with one or more domestic nonlife insurance companies could create new problems with respect to recently acquired domestic life insurance companies that are not allowed to join in the consolidated return, say attorneys at Sutherland Asbill & Brennan LLP.

Time To Stop The End-Arounds In Muni Market Regulation

The Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board recently issued a concept release suggesting that market transparency trumps the Tower Amendment — the direct congressional prohibition against federal regulations requiring filing of information by municipal issuers. This expansion of regulatory reach by tip-toeing around statutory prohibitions disserves us all, says Thomas Potter III of Burr & Forman LLP.

Quote of the Day

"Considering the fact that [NV Energy's] petition merely repeats the same arguments that it put forth in its testimony, the Commission finds that [NV Energy] has presented no basis for altering the determinations contained in the order, which are clearly delineated therein and which are clearly supported by the evidence presented in this docket."

— The PUC on the SLS exit from NV Energy

From the Editors

Be sure to read today's NV Energy/704B rundown, subtitled "Riley Snyder has spent a significant part of his 20s on the PUC website." (If you want Riley to be rewarded with continued employment and have never donated to The Indy, support his (and our) work here with a donation.)

ICYMI yesterday, Chancellor Thom Reilly will not seek contract renewal with the Nevada System of Higher Education.

Also, a new log was tossed on the dumpster fire that is the Nevada-DOE relationship.

Save the Date

On Saturday, Aug. 3, just a few days after the second round of televised presidential debates, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) will host the 2020 Public Service Forum in Las Vegas. Our fearless editor will co-moderate along with Washington Bureau Chief Amanda Terkel.

Confirmed candidates include:

- Sen. Cory Booker
- Former HUD Sec. Julián Castro
- Mayor Bill de Blasio
- Former Rep. John Delaney
- Rep. Tulsi Gabbard
- Sen. Kamala Harris
- Gov. Jay Inslee
- Sen. Amy Klobuchar
- Rep. Seth Moulton
- Former Rep. Beto O'Rourke
- Rep. Tim Ryan
- Sen. Bernie Sanders
- Billionaire activist Tom Steyer
- Sen. Elizabeth Warren
- Marianne Williamson

Claims Court A Quiet Victim Of Senate Nomination Deadlock

Although U.S. Supreme Court nominee Judge Merrick Garland has received the most attention amid a Senate logjam over confirming federal judicial nominees, experts say the plight of other pending nominees, including a quintet nominated for the U.S. Court of Federal Claims, also deserves broader attention.

Obama Slams Garland Delay In Wall Street Journal Op-Ed

President Barack Obama took to the traditionally conservative editorial pages of the Wall Street Journal on Sunday to again push for congressional consideration of Merrick Garland to the U.S. Supreme Court, excoriating Senate Republicans for “an unprecedented escalation” of the political stakes.

Obama Signs FAA Reauthorization Bill

President Barack Obama signed legislation Friday reauthorizing the Federal Aviation Administration through September 2017, locking in funding for airport improvement and security programs and additional regulations for drones.

NY Gov. Rolls Out Citizenship Assistance Initiative

New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo on Thursday kicked off an initiative deemed NaturalizeNY, which his office hailed as the "first public-private partnership of its kind" to help immigrants in the state on the journey to becoming American citizens.

DOJ Wants 9 Justices To Rehear Obama Immigration Case

The U.S. Department of Justice on Monday asked the U.S. Supreme Court for a rehearing before nine justices in the case over President Barack Obama’s controversial executive actions on immigration, highlighting the need for a definitive decision on the matter instead of the nonprecedential 4-4 split reached by the high court in June.

Ex-Sidley Austin Atty Loses Bid To Block DNC Superdelegates

A New York federal judge Monday nixed a lawsuit to keep superdelegates from voting at the Democratic National Convention, saying the former Sidley Austin attorney who brought the suit had standing, but his claims weren’t convincing and his hardships didn’t outweigh those of the party.

Emails Hover Over Ex-NJ DOT Chief In Airline Bribery Case

New Jersey's former transportation chief may fight charges over United Airlines Inc.'s bribing of disgraced former Port Authority of New York and New Jersey Chairman David Samson by claiming ignorance of any improper motives, but damaging emails between the men could cripple that narrative, attorneys say.

Land Of Lincoln Latest Co-Op Casualty As ACA Funds Stall

Illinois' Land of Lincoln Health will be shuttered following a recent announcement that it can't make good on a $32 million payment to the federal government, but health care experts say that it is Congress' blocking of billions of dollars in promised payments to marketplace participants that has led to a wave of Affordable Care Act-created co-ops crashing nationwide.

Ill. Reaps Bumper Crop Of Crooked Pols In 2016

When it comes to political figures, few states have the history of corruption and convictions that Illinois has, and based on recent activity in the state's federal judicial system, the trend shows no sign of slowing down. Here are some of the Illinois political figures who have faced investigations, charges, sentencings and incarceration in the last year.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

New Financial Regs Will Disrupt Offshore Oil And Gas

The Bureau of Ocean Energy Management's new policy governing supplemental financial assurance for oil and gas infrastructure on the Outer Continental Shelf has the potential to significantly alter the U.S. offshore oil and gas industry, and could ultimately force small and independent companies to abandon OCS operations altogether, say attorneys at Van Ness Feldman LLP.

TSCA Reforms Won't Help With Calif.'s Product Safety Issues

The recent amendments to the Toxic Substances Control Act include a number of federal preemption provisions, but they are riddled with holes that may allow California's activist requirements and plaintiffs lawyers to proceed largely unimpeded, say Robert Falk and Peter Hsiao at Morrison & Foerster LLP.

Is The New USPTO Pilot Program An Improvement?

While the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office's new Post-Prosecution Pilot is said to combine the best features of two existing programs, it may simply suffer from the same drawbacks. One difference that could lead to a higher success rate is that P3 applicants are required to participate in a 20-minute conference with the review panel, says Lisa Adams of Mintz Levin Cohn Ferris Glovsky and Popeo PC.

US Challenges China On Export Duties At WTO — Again

The U.S. recently challenged, for the third time, China's excessive use of export duties. But if history is any indication, China will delay compliance and continue to distort global trade patterns. It is high time for the U.S. to rethink its bilateral trade relations with China and its trade policy in general, says Terence Stewart, managing partner of the Law Offices of Stewart and Stewart.

Trump Energy Order Creates Tough Choices For Agencies

President Donald Trump ordered his administration Tuesday to review and possibly rescind several Obama-era energy rules and policies, some of which are already embroiled in litigation, but exactly how Trump's agencies will go about carrying out the anticipated rollback remains unclear.

Senate Set For Gorsuch Showdown Next Week

U.S. Senate leaders have vowed a showdown over the nomination of Tenth Circuit Judge Neil Gorsuch next week, promising a fight on Tuesday over President Donald Trump's choice to fill the late Justice Antonin Scalia's seat on the U.S. Supreme Court.

House Votes To Repeal FCC Privacy Rules

Congress has now voted to repeal Federal Communication Commission broadband privacy rules after a House vote Tuesday sent the controversial provision to President Donald Trump’s desk.

Speaker Ryan Hints At Continued Action On Health Reform

Efforts to repeal the Affordable Care Act have not been taken out to pasture yet, Republican House Speaker Paul Ryan said on Tuesday, hinting that his caucus might bring forward new reform proposals in the future, days after he pulled a planned floor vote over defections within the Republican Party.

Senate Democrats Want Answers On Bharara's Firing

Senate Democrats Elizabeth Warren, Richard Blumenthal and Jeff Merkley on Tuesday demanded answers from Attorney General Jeff Sessions about why Preet Bharara was fired from his position as U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York, especially given reports that he was investigating HHS Secretary Tom Price’s stock trades.

Trump Signs Order Targeting Obama's Climate Legacy

President Donald Trump signed a sweeping executive order on Tuesday that directed the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to start rolling back the Clean Power Plan, lifted the Obama administration's moratorium on coal leasing on federal lands and told the Department of the Interior to consider rescinding its rule regulating hydraulic fracturing on public and tribal lands.

Analysis

Future Rollbacks May Not Be As Easy As Blacklisting Repeal

President Donald Trump's repeal of the contentious Fair Pay and Safe Workplaces rule is welcome news for federal contractors, but despite the president's promises to repeal burdensome regulations, it remains uncertain when or if he will be able to roll back more rules affecting contractors.

Pennsylvania Lawmakers Push For Video Gambling Expansion

A bipartisan group of lawmakers from both houses of the Pennsylvania Legislature on Monday announced plans for a major push to expand gambling in the state, including video gambling at retail establishments, bars and restaurants.

Cute Kitten Bolsters Brief In Buzzfeed Defamation Row

Buzzfeed Inc. can't suddenly plead ignorance of where Florida is just to avoid facing a lawsuit, a Russian technology executive argued in a filing that employed clickbait-worthy tactics, including Buzzfeed-like lists and a photograph of a kitten, as part of his bid to keep his defamation suit against the company in the Sunshine State.

TRANSPORTATION & INFRASTRUCTURE

Calif. Toll Operators Defend System As Constitutional

The operators of the 91 Express Lanes in Orange County, California, told a federal judge Monday that they're well within their authority to use driver information to collect unpaid tolls, slamming a proposed class of motorists who allege their privacy is being violated and that the tolls are unconstitutional.

Auto Union Urges DC Circ. To Uphold VW Unit Ruling

A United Auto Workers local urged the D.C. Circuit on Monday to back the National Labor Relations Board's approval of a micro-unit of maintenance workers at Volkswagen's Tennessee plant, saying the unit met the labor board's standard to qualify for collective bargaining.

Meat Industry Wants Trump To Break Chinese Beef Block

Major U.S. meat industry groups on Tuesday urged President Donald Trump to press China to move forward on its plan to lift its decade-plus mad cow disease-based ban on U.S. beef, arguing that domestic companies are missing out on a billion-dollar market.

TAX

Insurers Say Reporting Rules Taint Them As Tax Scammers

The Internal Revenue Service was hit with a lawsuit on Monday over a notice it issued in November identifying potential tax-avoidance maneuvers involving in-house insurers, with two managers of such companies accusing the agency of unfairly tainting them as tax scammers.

IRS Seeks Comment Again On New Accounting Standards

The Internal Revenue Service on Tuesday issued a request for comments on proposed procedures to allow taxpayers to change financial accounting methods under new international standards for recognizing revenues and the impact of those changes on differences between financial accounting and tax accounting rules.

US Cos. Avoiding More Than $700B In Taxes, Report Says

Fortune 500 companies are holding $2.6 trillion in profits offshore largely in tax havens, avoiding as much as $767 billion in U.S. corporate income tax, according to a report from the Institute on Taxation and Economic Policy released Tuesday.

Greenberg Traurig Lures Enviro Pro From Holland & Hart

Greenberg Traurig LLP said Monday it has bolstered its government and environmental practices by picking up an experienced environmental policy lawyer and former U.S. Department of the Interior special assistant to the solicitor from Holland & Hart LLP.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

'Blacklisting' Rule Rejection May Begin Pro-Employer Trend

On Monday, President Donald Trump signed a congressional resolution blocking implementation of President Obama’s Fair Pay and Safe Workplaces executive order. This may be an initial step toward dismantling many employment-related requirements that the Obama administration placed on federal contractors, and may indicate the Trump administration’s overall direction on employment issues, say Brett Coburn and Anna Saraie of Alston & Bird LLP.

Judge Gorsuch's Dubious Commitment To Legal Textualism

In practice, being an “originalist” or a “textualist” is a lot like being “gluten-free” except when it comes to pasta and bagels. Most “textualists” are happy to apply these concepts rigorously when it will produce the result they want — but they’ll relax or ignore them if it produces a politically inconvenient outcome. Judge Neil Gorsuch seems to fit this profile, says Max Kennerly of Kennerly Loutey LLC.

What New Bulk Substance Rules Mean For The Drug Industry

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has recently included six bulk drug substances on the 503A bulks list, which allows drug compounders to bypass certain regulations for some drugs. Though progress is welcome, some pharmacists are expressing frustration over how long it is taking the FDA to finalize its guidance, says Keith Hasson of Hasson Law Group.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Trump's Immigration Priorities: What Employers Should Know

Three immigration policy objectives recently announced by the Trump administration align with earlier White House pronouncements, including the "Buy American, Hire American" executive order and the statements accompanying its multiple "travel bans." However, two aspects of these policy objectives merit close evaluation by employers, say Elizabeth Espín Stern and Paul Virtue of Mayer Brown LLP. Read more »

Adapting To Equal Pay Laws In Flux

New legislation aimed at closing the pay gap between men and women may undo business practices that, even if benevolently motivated, result in disparate pay. Despite this laudable objective, these laws create a litany of challenges for employers and may necessitate a wholesale revision of policies and practices related to employee compensation, says Charles Thompson of Polsinelli. UK Prime Minister's Speech Fails To Provide Clarity

U.K. Prime Minister Theresa May's speech in Florence last month was intended to create momentum in the ongoing Brexit negotiations, but has been criticized as vague and insubstantial. It seems that for the time being, the U.K. government's attitude toward Brexit negotiations is to wait for a solution to turn up, says David Mundy of Bircham Dyson Bell LLP. Read more »

Subject: [Marketing Mail] Reconciling Cigna v. Humble with Aetna v. Humble and Their Impact on the Out-of-Network Provider

If you cannot see this email properly, please click here

Dear Colleague,

Last year, Humble Surgery Center was involved in two major lawsuits in federal court in Texas that both dealt with out-of-network (OON) provider issues. In Cigna v. Humble Surgical Hospital, Humble won a major victory, but in Aetna v. Humble Surgical Hospital, Aetna walked away the winner. What happened, and what do these vastly different outcomes mean for OON providers and facilities today?

Join our expert speaker Thomas J. Force, Esq. for our On-demand Webinar—"Reconciling Cigna v. Humble with Aetna v. Humble and Their Impact on the Out-of-Network Provider" on Thursday, April 20, 2017, when he will closely examine both cases and offer advice for OON facilities on how to avoid adverse outcomes regarding balance billing, fee forgiveness and referral deals with physicians. Thomas will also outline strategies and techniques that will help you address ínsurance companies' growing concerns about referral arrangements, balance billing and fee forgiveness by OON facilities. You will also be given a complete listing of essential policies and forms for your facility, and you'll learn about current best practices for OONs. By examining a major OON facility and its experience in court with two ínsurance companies, Thomas will teach you how to properly set up an OON facility's claims processing procedures and billing practices in light of these two important cases.

Session Highlights

- Summary of Aetna v. Humble Surgical Hospital court decision, facts, reasoning and outcome
- Summary of Cigna v. Humble Surgical Hospital court decision, facts, reasoning and outcome
- Discussion of why the cases differed so substantially and what OON providers can learn from them
- Techniques to avoid ínsurance company scrutiny regarding patient billing and referral practices
- Policies to have in place and current best practices to deal with OON patient billing

Agenda Details

- Facts of Cigna v. Humble, June 2016
- Why Cigna held up claims due to fee forgiveness
- Humble's counterclaim under ERISA
- The court's rulings on Cigna's claim, including on referrals and use fees
- Why this was a big victory for Humble
- Jurisdiction and where this case is precedent
- Impact on OON non-paid claims held up due to failure to balance bill or otherwise collect coinsurance and deductibles
- Impact on OON balance bill audits
- Impact on OON claims, including failure to provide plan documents and other information
- How the court enforced ERISA appeals and claims guidelines
- Facts of Aetna v. Humble, December 2016
- Aetna's claims for money had and received, fraud, negligent misrepresentation and ERISA relief
- The court's holding that the assignments at issue were invalid
- Why the outcomes were so different for the same facility
- What we can learn from the cases
- How to handle referral schemes

Your Registration Includes

- 1 AAPC CEU per registration
- Free attendee package, including the speaker's complete presentation handouts—a quick reference tool for future use

Some things are just plain cool, even if they are hard to wrap your mind around. A good example is "The Fintech Jellyfish," an interactive infographic that allows the user to click on nodes representing countries. Each node in the "jellyfish" representing a country yields data about fintech investment there. Linked to each national node are nodes representing fintech startups, with live links to their websites. Users can mush around the jellyfish to their heart's content, to reconfigure its arrangement to better access particular nodes. Read more

Dear Carolyn G.,

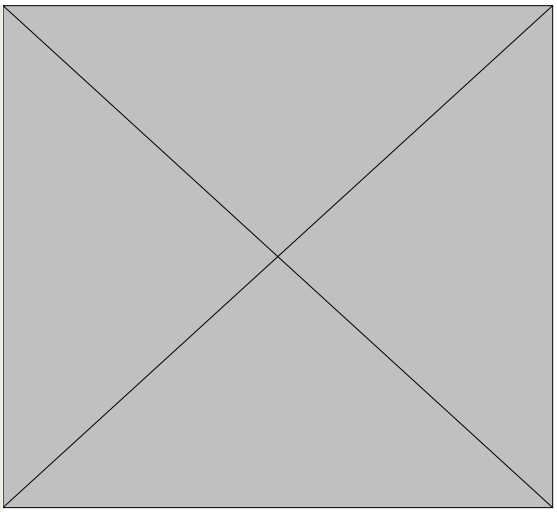
High Speed Rail is the #1 Climate Solution

As America moves towards seriously addressing climate change, its important to focus on the biggest, fastest solutions to be sure we get the job done in the shrinking time frame left. We can't waste time on half-baked or bridge-solutions. We need to go for the big, sweeping solutions that can be implemented quickly, and solving climate change in a big way across America. High Speed Rail is that solution that's proven all over the world after decades of safe, green operations moving billions of people. High speed rail can be built quickly.



A national high speed rail system is the large-scale, fast way to reduce carbon from our transportation and energy sectors, and is the centerpiece of a sustainable America.

With trains powered by electricity generated 100% by renewables, this can cut the nation's energy consumption and carbon output by 70% - as fast as it can be constructed! No other solution can scale up as fast, or as comprehensively.

Clean electric trains are a major form of daily transportation in numerous countries, and are the single most powerful transportation choice that can solve serious mobility, energy, environmental, economic, health, and social problems simultaneously - on a global scale, and can be built quickly.

China built more than 12,000 miles of state-of-the-art high speed rail in 9 years!

America can do the same!

17,000 miles of climate solution

It's time for leadership, focus, and federal funding.

Trains outperform both flying and driving combined in every measure - capacity, mobility, convenience, speed, safety, efficiency, energy consumption, cost, profitability, national security, carbon footprint, physical footprint, economic development, smart growth, and more.

A network of high speed trains can carry more passengers than cars and airplanes combined - using a fraction of the energy, and with no delays.

High Speed Rail is the only viable transport solution capable of reducing carbon, congestion, costs, accidents, and energy consumption all at the same time! No other transport option comes close.

Right now, America is still investing hundreds of billions of dollars every year building more roads, subsidizing cars, expanding airports, subsidizing aviation, subsidizing the oil industry, subsidizing defense to secure the flow of oil, and more that all make climate change worse. The first step is to halt our contribution funding more damage!

STEP 1 - Stop adding to the problem funding expansions to fossil infrastructure
STEP 2 - Build the clean electric transportation systems - High Speed Rail

Climate liability is on the rise. Here's what it looks like

From insurance claims to adaptation concerns to fiduciary duty violations, companies and federal agencies could be on the hook for climate change's consequences, beyond the nuisance and constitutional claims already raised in high-profile litigation.

Last month, for example, a federal district court let the Conservation Law Foundation move forward with a lawsuit that alleges Shell Oil Co. and related firms aren't doing enough to protect a Rhode Island marine storage facility from severe weather or sea-level rise (Climatewire, July 24).

And Exxon Mobil Corp. faces heat in multiple state and federal courts for allegations of fraud and violations of corporate securities and consumer protection laws related to its public disclosures about climate change risks (Climatewire, Dec. 7, 2018).

The cases are all part of a landscape of climate-related liability across the public and private sectors.

"Insurers should be aware that climate change claims and suits threaten industries and businesses other than the obvious low hanging fruit oil and gas companies," he wrote. "Any industry linked to hydrocarbons and greenhouse gas emissions may be at risk: transport; manufacturing; agri-business; and finance."

"Where I think the risk is, and where I think the future is - the blueprint for this - is seeing how the existing climate change lawsuits will play out," he said.

Reeves, like other experts watching the myriad climate lawsuits around the world, said the existing lawsuits will play out like tobacco litigation did. In those class-action cases, tobacco companies were compelled by courts to shell out billions of dollars for knowingly promoting a product that carried severe health risks.
Reeves cautioned that it took nearly four decades for Big Tobacco to be held to task and doesn't think it's "prudent" to assume these cases will be tossed early. The question, Reeves said, is how long will it take for the cases to be successful?

Story | Sustainability | HSR and Climate

Mayors tell Senate transit, biking, walking are climate solutions

Testimonies from mayors at a recent Senate hearing showed that cities understand that reducing driving and expanding other transportation options is key to reducing greenhouse gas emissions and boosting local economies at the same time.

Recently, the Senate Democrats' Special Committee on the Climate Crisis held their first hearing, which focused on what cities across the country are doing to combat and adapt to climate change. In their testimonies, mayors from Atlanta, Honolulu, St. Paul, Pittsburgh, and Portland, OR highlighted the need to reduce emissions from transportation and maintain and expand their existing transit systems.

Transportation is the single largest source of greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions, contributing 29 percent of the United States' total GHG emissions. While states and cities are setting ambitious climate goals to reduce their emissions and to even achieve net-zero emissions, many are finding that they will not be able to achieve those goals without reducing emissions from the transportation sector. The best way to do that isn't just switching to electric vehicles, but by also reducing how much people drive, or vehicle miles traveled (VMT). During the hearing, it was clear that cities recognize the need to prioritize biking, walking, and transit as a way to both reduce emissions and boost their economies.

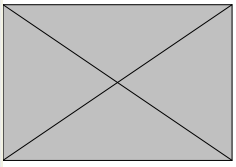
High Speed Rail Gets Us the Future We Want



The day can't come quickly enough when I can pedal an electric bike share to downtown San Francisco in 10 minutes, step seamlessly onto a high-speed train and get to my meetings in downtown Los Angeles a few hours later, and do it 100 percent emissions free. It would completely transform the experience of traveling between California's two major metropolitan areas, presenting a once-in-a-generation opportunity to address California's sustainable development, housing and climate goals. High-speed rail gets a lot of flak for its high price tag, which the latest business plan pegs at $77 billion.

But let's face it, transportation projects are expensive, and we're already spending billions on freeway projects every year that continue to pollute our air and harm our most vulnerable communities, driving us in the opposite direction of carbon neutrality.

There was quite a bit of noise made about the stretch of Interstate 405 in Los Angeles that cost $1.6 billion, designed to achieve a savings of just a few minutes for drivers - and it could not even achieve that modest goal. We are going to continue to grow. California welcomes newcomers. We are now and will continue to be a desirable place for businesses and to live. California's Department of Finance predicts we'll be at 50 million people by mid-century. If we accommodate this growth by expanding runways and freeways, the price tag is estimated at $170 billion over 20 years to create infrastructure that directly undermines our ability to achieve our climate goals.

Experiences in other countries suggests that high-speed rail can be an effective, low-carbon alternative to air and vehicle travel, and that once built, people use it. In Spain, once a high-speed train was completed between Madrid and Seville, planners witnessed a notable shift between air travel and rail travel, as travelers opted for a more seamless and convenient trip from the center of one city to the center of the next.

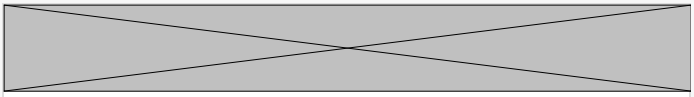
BAE Systems cuts time of RN minesweeper refits

June 19, 2017 — BAE Systems reports that a U.K. Royal Navy minesweeper, HMS Brocklesby, has begun her sea trials program, a significant milestone in her overhaul period, four months earlier than usual. HMS Brocklesby is undergoing the largest work package for a Royal Navy Mine Countermeasure Vessel (MCMV) to date. However, a new way of working at Portsmouth Naval Base means that she will return to the Royal Navy's surface fleet four months earlier than Hunt Class vessels in previous upkeeps.



Only minor damage to box ship that collided with USS Fitzgerald

The Philippine-flag ship is on charter to NYK Line and appears to have incurred only relatively minor damage to the bow.

ShipArrestor protects coastlines when ships lose power

The system has been developed to give nations the ability to protect their coastlines from the danger of ships that have lost engine power and from the pollution that can result when they run aground.

Heroic efforts saved Fitzgerald, but seven died in flooding

The crew's response was swift and effective, U.S. 7th Fleet Commander Vice Adm. Joseph Aucoin told the press, and "heroic efforts prevented the flooding from catastrophically spreading which could have caused the ship to founder or sink."

Another prison term handed down in GDMA bribery scandal

Retired U.S. Navy Captain Michael Brooks was sentenced in federal court to 41 months in prison for his role in the massive bribery and fraud scheme.

Law360 Names Top 50 Firms For Litigation

Historic, precedent-setting wins in class action litigation. Jaw-dropping jury verdicts in courts across the country. Victories in the smartphone wars. Dramatic upsets on appeal. Law360's Litigation Powerhouses leveraged their deep legal talent to score remarkable wins for their clients over the past year, landing them a spot on our inaugural ranking of the top firms for litigation.

4 Traits Of The Top Litigation Firms

All litigation powerhouses boast talented trial lawyers, but the 20 firms at the top of their game don't just rely on their litigators. Here, we talk about the four traits that led the elite of the Litigation Powerhouses to become the go-to firms for bet-the-company cases.

5 Small(er) But Mighty Litigation Shops

Five relatively small but fearsome law firms landed a spot on Law360's 2016 list of 50 Litigation Powerhouses after they laced up their gloves and brought the pain in their fights for clients, winning some of the biggest cases over the past year.

The U.S. Government Accountability Office said Tuesday that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and Federal Emergency Management Agency have made very little progress on a levee-safety program mandated by Congress in 2014, missing deadlines and leaving open the possibility of safety and financial risks.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE

Sanders Calls On Dems To End Trans-Pacific Partnership

Telling voters that Hillary Clinton "must become the next president of the United States," former presidential contender Bernie Sanders on Monday in his speech before the 2016 Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia called for an end to the Trans-Pacific Partnership trade deal.

TAX

Mass. Governor Does About-Face On Airbnb Tax

Massachusetts Gov. Charlie Baker retracted earlier public statements in support of taxing Airbnb rentals, saying instead Tuesday that he cannot support the state Senate's current version of legislation calling for the tax.

British Columbia Proposes Real Estate Tax On Foreign Buyers

Americans looking to make a Canadian getaway this fall could find Vancouver, British Columbia, considerably more pricey if a 15 percent tax on foreign homebuyers introduced Monday goes into law.

Calif. Consumers Want Cellphone Tax Row Back In State Court

Four California residents who initiated a lawsuit in state court accusing several telecommunications companies and California's tax agency of illegally collecting hundreds of millions of dollars in cellphone sales taxes re-pleaded their case in federal court Monday after AT&T moved the putative class action.

IMMIGRATION

US To Expand Central American Refugee Program

The U.S. government on Tuesday announced the expansion of a refugee program for Central American children, as well as a new transfer arrangement with Costa Rica, with the updates coming after the U.S. saw an increase in apprehensions of families at the southern border earlier this summer.

NATIVE AMERICAN

Ariz. Gaming Chief Loses Bid To Shield Email In Casino Suit

A federal judge ruled Monday that an email between lawyers for Arizona Department of Gaming Director Daniel Bergin and the Gila River Indian Community is not protected by privilege, ordering its disclosure in another tribe's suit against state officials over its right to offer Las Vegas-style gaming near Phoenix.

The U.S. Department of the Interior urged a federal court Monday to toss a Washington county's lawsuit over the government's alleged refusal to make a decision on whether a tract of land rests within the Yakama Nation's reservation, arguing the county doesn't have standing to sue because it can't specify an injury.

MGM Asks 2nd Circ. To Revive Conn. Tribal Casino Law Fight

MGM Resorts International pressed the Second Circuit on Monday to revive its lawsuit challenging a Connecticut law that paves the way for the Mashantucket Pequot and Mohegan tribes to open a third casino in the state.

FOOD & BEVERAGE

FDA, Nonprofits Ask Ninth Circ. To Stay Perchlorate Case

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the six nonprofits pushing it to ban the food additive perchlorate asked the Ninth Circuit on Monday to stay a lawsuit brought by the nonprofits over the agency's alleged delay in acting on their petition to ban the substance, agreeing that if the agency acts by March 2017 the case would be moot.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

New Texting Regs Would Spell Spamageddon: Wireless Group

CTIA-The Wireless Association is actively lobbying against efforts by automatic text messaging service Twilio to change the Federal Communications Commission's regulatory approach to text messages, insisting to the agency in a regulatory filing on Monday that such changes would open the floodgates to spammers and eliminate consumer protections already in place.

FCC Commish Questions Mobile-Only Subsidy Plan

The Federal Communications Commission should not adopt a mobile-only subsidy, but if it must, the program should avoid overlapping support while directing money to those unserved areas that need it the most, the agency's Michael O'Rielly said Monday.

Consumer Law Group Slams FCC's Robocalls Exemption

The National Consumer Law Center told the Federal Communications Commission to rethink its ruling that robocalls made by the federal government or on its behalf are Telephone Consumer Protection Act exempt, arguing Tuesday that the finding is "a dangerous interpretation of the law."

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Testing The UBE: Portable But Inaccurate Bar Exam Scores

While there is not much that is new about the uniform bar exam's components, what is new is that where you take the bar exam may make the difference between passing and failing. Half of the score depends on the strength of the applicant pool in the jurisdiction where the candidate wrote the exam, which may lead to "UBE shopping," says Suzanne Darrow-Kleinhaus, director of bar programs at Touro Law Center.

Common Mistakes Employers Of Calif. Domestic Workers Make

Despite the fact that it has been over two years since California's Domestic Workers Bill of Rights was enacted, many household employers are still unaware of their employment obligations and the associated risks. As a result, there are a growing number of claims and lawsuits alleging substantial amounts of unpaid wages and owed penalties, say Scott Liner and Tiffany Caterina at Liner LLP.

Survey Shows Top Firms For Women Lawyers

The percentage of BigLaw management seats and equity partnerships held by women ticked up again last year, according to a survey released Tuesday that named the 50 best firms for female attorneys.

3 Reasons Why Being A Good Lawyer Just Isn't Enough

A good lawyer is often viewed as someone with a record of understanding and using the law to his or her client's advantage, but in today's industry, an exceptional knowledge of the law alone just doesn't cut it, experts say.

The 8 Big Firms That Haven't Matched Cravath

Nearly two months since the race to raise associate salaries started, a small percentage of the nation's largest law firms have shunned the lockstep pay hikes ushered in by Cravath Swaine & Moore LLP and instead have chosen to abstain. Here, find out who the mavericks are.

Husch Blackwell Attys To Get Raises, But Not Cravath Matches

Missouri-based Husch Blackwell LLP has decided to up the salaries of its first-year associates in the seemingly never ending wake of Cravath Swaine & Moore LLP's setting of a new $180,000 starting salary benchmark, but new associates of the Midwest firm won't be seeing that much green.

Firms Toughen Conflict Checks As Routine Becomes Knotty

BigLaw is strengthening conflict checks when issuing subpoenas in sprawling intellectual property disputes, lawyers said, as what was once a routine discovery matter increasingly draws client ire and conflict headaches.

Ex-Gov.'s Atty Blasts 7th Circ. Judge For 'Abusive Demeanor'

Well-respected U.S. Circuit Judge Frank Easterbrook of the Seventh Circuit is the subject of scathing criticism from a retired attorney who handled part of former Illinois Gov. George Ryan's appeal of a corruption conviction, according to a law review article published Thursday.

Potential Daily Fantasy Merger A Tough Antitrust Sell

Rumors of a merger of daily fantasy sports companies DraftKings and FanDuel have swirled in recent days after months of litigation and lobbying costs, but antitrust experts say the tie-up of the No. 1 and No. 2 daily fantasy sports companies will be a tough sell to antitrust regulators.

Tax Pros Warn Global Tax Reports May Not Be Confidential

The confidentiality of sensitive tax data that multinational companies must soon begin filing for each country they operate in could be betrayed by potential data leaks or if governments bow to public pressure for disclosure, experts said Thursday at the American Bar Association's annual tax conference in Philadelphia.

CFTC, Canadian Province Ink Cross-Border Cooperation Pact

The U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission said Wednesday that it has added the securities regulator for Canadian province Newfoundland and Labrador to an agreement regarding the regulation of cross-border entities that operate in both the U.S. and Canada.

DOD Floats Rule To Crack Down On R&D Funding Abuses

The U.S. Department of Defense followed through Thursday with floating a crackdown on purported abuses of independent research-and-development funding by contractors, issuing a proposed rule aimed at preventing companies from using those expenditures to undercut the competition.

DC Circ. Pauses FCC's New Inmate Call Rates

The D.C. Circuit on Wednesday paused the Federal Communications Commission's new inmate calling rates, following a challenge by a call service company that argued it would be harmed if there wasn't a stay on the agency's latest rate cap order.

ENERGY & ENVIRONMENTAL

NJ Enviro Trust Bill Skips Over Legal Costs, Lawmakers Say

New Jersey lawmakers on Thursday advanced legislation that would allow voters to decide if revenues derived from environmental settlements should be placed in a trust dedicated to repairing, restoring and protecting natural resources, but voiced concern that the proposed fund doesn't account for legal costs.

Trade Groups Call For Halt To EPA Clean Energy Incentives

The National Association of Manufacturers, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the American Petroleum Institute and eight other trade groups are urging the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to stop working on a renewable energy incentive program included in the controversial Clean Power Plan until legal challenges to the CPP are over.

TRANSPORTATION & INFRASTRUCTURE

GWB Jury Won't Be Told To Consider Political Payback

A New Jersey federal judge on Thursday upheld her decision to advise jurors deliberating in the George Washington Bridge lane-closing trial that they could convict two former public officials of conspiracy without determining that the defendants intended to punish a mayor, but the reasons behind a pending defense motion for a mistrial remained a mystery.

White House Pushing Charging Stations For Electric Cars

The Obama administration on Thursday announced several new actions aimed at increasing the use of electric vehicles, including the establishment of 48 highway corridors dedicated to charging electric cars on the go.

EMPLOYMENT

NYC Taxi Drivers Tell 2nd Circ. Suspension Suit Has Merit

New York City's arbitrary practice of suspending taxi drivers who have been arrested but not yet convicted violates drivers' due process rights, and a district court's refusal to smack down the practice runs afoul of controlling law and can be appealed, the Second Circuit was told Wednesday.

Mich. Enviro Employees Want Flint Crisis Suits Relocated

Current and former employees of Michigan's Department of Environmental Quality are pushing to have lawsuits against them over the Flint lead contamination crisis transferred to another state, or at least to the state's Upper Peninsula, saying there's no way they would get an impartial jury otherwise.

COMPETITION

Teladoc, Texas Med Board Want To Pause Antitrust Suit

A remote medical care provider and the Texas Medical Board, which have been feuding over a state rule requiring doctors to see patients face to face before providing services, came together Wednesday and asked a Texas federal judge to put the dispute on hold so they can pursue negotiations.

Uber Not Anti-Competitive In Philadelphia, Court Finds

A Pennsylvania federal judge on Thursday threw out a lawsuit brought by the Philadelphia Taxi Association Inc. aimed at curtailing Uber Technologies Inc. in the city, finding that the group had not shown that the ride-hailing service was acting anti-competitively.

PRIVACY & CONSUMER PROTECTION

NY Court Denies Injunction Permitting 'Ballot Selfies'

New York state voters will not be able to take selfies with their ballots on Election Day, after a federal judge on Thursday refused to defang a prohibition on voting booth photography with just days left before the election — and became the latest referee to ponder the question in recent weeks.

PRODUCT LIABILITY

FDA Scolds Supernus Pharmaceuticals Over Video Claims

A video from specialty drugmaker Supernus Pharmaceuticals Inc. wrongly implied that its anti-seizure medicine Oxtellar XR is approved for epilepsy and downplayed the risks of life-threatening side effects, according to a U.S. Food and Drug Administration letter released on Thursday.

GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

Doctor In Menendez Case Can Wait At Home, Judge Affirms

A Florida eye doctor accused of bribing Sen. Robert Menendez, D-N.J., may wait for his trial in a separate Medicare fraud case at home despite its close access to a waterway, a federal judge affirmed Wednesday, denying prosecutors' efforts to revoke modifications to the doctor's living and travel restrictions.

An Opportunity For Banks To Shape Cybersecurity Standards

In a major new initiative, three federal banking agencies have issued an advanced notice of proposed rulemaking seeking comment on a set of enhanced cybersecurity standards for the largest banks. Whatever action is adopted by the agencies, whether in the form of new banking regulation or guidance, will likely become a standard for liability, says Richard Garabedian of Womble Carlyle Sandridge & Rice LLP.

Justices Eye Credit Card Surcharge Laws And Free Speech

The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to decide whether state bans on credit card surcharges violate retailers' First Amendment rights. The court's decision in Expressions Hair Design v. Schneiderman will impact the business of retailers nationwide, who are currently barred from charging such fees in several states, say Kirk Jenkins and Meegan Brooks of Sedgwick LLP.

What's Next For The Contractor Fair Pay Rule?

Following a Texas federal court's preliminary injunction stopping most aspects of the Fair Pay and Safe Workplaces executive order the government now has several choices for how to proceed. Given the level of uncertainty, contractors and subcontractors should continue to plan as if they will need to comply with all aspects of the rules in the future, says Joshua Alloy of Arnold & Porter LLP.

Questioning Permit-Holder CWA Protections At The 4th Circ.

During oral arguments in Ohio Valley Environmental Coalition v. Fola Coal, the Fourth Circuit was asked to decide if a permittee can be held liable under the Clean Water Act for violations based on a limit it had no prior notice or reason to believe the permit would impose. However, Congress intended that a permittee is compliant with the CWA even if it discharges pollutants not included in its permit, says Karen Bennett of Clark Hill PLC.

Adapt Or Die: Law Firms In Tomorrow's Economy

The clarion call from the top of Corporate America over the past several years to its workers to do more with less, eliminate redundancy, and work cooperatively across disciplines toward the goal of corporate profitability is reaching BigLaw, says Jill Dessalines, founder of Strategic Advice for Successful Lawyers and former assistant general counsel of McKesson Corp.

Number Of Female Partners In BigLaw Hits 5-Year High

Over the last year, the number of women promoted to the partnership level in more than 130 of the biggest U.S. law firms has hit a five-year high, according to a survey released on Thursday by a Washington, D.C., leadership think tank.

How To Build A Compliance Hotline Employees Actually Trust

A tip line for employees to report suspected misconduct is an essential part of any corporate compliance program, but it's useless if workers won't use it because they fear inaction, scorn or retaliation. Here's how general counsel and chief compliance officers can design an ethics and compliance hotline that people will feel comfortable using.

Law360's Weekly Verdict: Legal Lions & Lambs

Baker Donelson on Wednesday crushed a hedge fund manager's fraud suit against it, earning the firm a spot among this week's legal lions, while Husch Blackwell joined the lambs flock after a judge concluded Wednesday it was in contempt of court for failing to respond to a subpoena in an insurance dispute.

Sedgwick Partner's Gender Bias Case Sent To Arbitration

A California federal judge on Wednesday ordered a Sedgwick LLP partner to arbitrate her proposed gender discrimination class action against the firm, saying her partnership agreement requires disputes arising from the contract to follow an alternative dispute resolution procedure.

Fla. Judge Lets Suit Over Failed Law Firm Merger Advance

A Florida state judge Thursday allowed Pennsylvania-based Chartwell Law Offices to proceed with a suit against Florida's Wadsworth Huott LLP over their failed multimillion-dollar merger, rejecting the Miami firm's arguments to dismiss the complaint.

Rainmaker Q&A: Cadwalader's Yushan Ng

Knowing what clients want is not always the same thing as understanding what they need. You can often bring in a client by delivering on the former. However, you build the relationship and keep the client long-term by identifying the latter, says Yushan Ng, global co-chairman of the financial restructuring group at Cadwalader Wickersham & Taft LLP.

Rainmaker Q&A: Steinman & Rodgers' William Steinman

It's critical to love what you do. Clients can tell whether you like your job, whether you personalize their challenges or whether you find it drudgery, says William Steinman, founding partner of Steinman & Rodgers LLP.

Medical Billing Strategies from A to Z

If yours is like most practices, you're probably seeing more and more patients with high-deductìble plans, HSA policies, and other third-pàrty payers that work hard to delay payments—or, worse, not pay at all. To overcome these obstacles, you must optimize collections.

Learn how in this information-packed webinar with expert speaker Barbara J. Cobuzzi. In this four-hour boot camp, she will cover all the key elements a successful medical billing operation needs to put in place—from the time the patient makes his appoìntment until you receive payment in full. This boot camp will highlight the crucial steps to take to ensure your practice gets the payments it deserves for services rendered.

After attending this virtual boot camp, you will understand how to set up your practice's processes to improve your collections—and optimize your compliant revenue. You will have the tools to hold third-pàrty payers accountable for their share of the bills. Most important, you will be equipped to collect every dollar you're owed in the most efficient and compliant manner! Read more

Session Highlights

Here is a taste of what you will uncover:

- How codìng, documentation, and billing all fit together.
- Which latest tools can best assist billing staff in efficiently and compliantly collecting outstanding balances.
- Which compliance issues you must address to stay out of hot water with the feds.
- Where patient responsibility starts, and how can you encourage a patient to fulfill his responsibility
- What the insurancè company's responsibility is, and how you can make sure it pays what you're owed.

Dear Mayor,

I believe that you in the past your city inadvertently made a horrible mistake by issuing a proclamation for Dianetics Day. I am sure your Mayor at the time did not know that by doing so you were condoning the actions of the author L.Ron Hubbard, who has proven to be a liar and fraud and who's organization actively destroys families and has infiltrated many government agencies to spy on them which resulted in nine of their members going to jail including L Ron Hubbard's wife!

Currently The Church's uses the proclamation your city has given them as evidence of your support for what they do and how. Mayor Roy of Calera, Alabama rescinded theirs and I am asking you to do the same. I have included some different information here to substantiate what I am asking for and why so you have facts that your city may not have been provided with before agreeing to having your city be supportive of this organization. Mayor Roy rescinded their proclamation based on only the following:

Dianetics and Scientology are inseparable; the former is used as a technique in the practice of the latter, and the doctrines of the former are incorporated in the latter."
– The Lee Report on Dianetics and Scientology by Professor John Lee

"(a) The claim is made for dianetics, which is part of scientology, and inferentially for the whole of scientology, that between them they can positively cure all psychosomatic ailments, which it is claimed represent 70 per cent. of man's illnesses.

(b) These claims are entirely unjustified.
(c) On the contrary, scientology techniques, beyond the elementary stages, are potentially and, in some instances, positively harmful to mental health.
(d) Scientology is practised by "auditors" who have no medical training; they use dangerous techniques; they are unable to recognize symptoms and diagnose particular mental and physical conditions of ill health; they indiscriminately apply dangerous techniques irrespective of the circumstances; they not only administer the wrong treatment, but also poison their patients' minds against orthodox medicine and thus prevent them from obtaining proper medical treatment which they may require."

Kevin Victor Anderson, Q.C. Published the State of Victoria, Australia

Despite Hubbard's claim his poor eyesight, ulcers and arthritis were never resolved and he petitioned for and received disability payments from the Navy reserve which he continued to receive while making millions of dollars from the Dianetics book that claimed to cure all of these for himself and others.

In a California Judge Breckenridge ruled;
"In addition to violating and abusing its own members civil rights, the organization… has harassed and abused those person not in the church whom it perceives as enemies .The organization clearly schizophrenic and paranoid, and this bizarre combination seems to be a reflection of its founder L Ron Hubbard. The evidence portrays a man who's been virtually a pathological liar when it comes to his history, background and achievements.

In another court case Justice Latey wrote " when comparing the truth about Hubbard with the churches published claims and said to promote himself in the cult he made these amongst other false claims:

1- Hubbard's claim was: That he was a much decorated war hero.
The truth is: He was not.

2- Hubbard's claim :That he was awarded the Purple Heart a gallantry decoration for those wounded in action
The truth is: He was not.

3-Hubbard's claim: That he was crippled and blinded in the war and cured himself with Dianetic technique.
The truth is: He was not crippled and he was not blinded.

Hubbard claims " That he was a graduate of George Washington University an atomic physicist.

The truth is: He completed only one year of college and failed the one course on nuclear physics he enrolled in.

Mr. Hubbard is a charlatan or worse. Scientology is both immoral and socially obnoxious…In my judgment it is corrupt sinister and dangerous. It is corrupt because it is based on lies and deceit and has as its real objective money and power."

Kenneth Robinson a past British Minister of Health has stated that: "The government is satisified…that Scientology is socially harmful. It alienates members of families from each other and attributes squalid and disgraceful motives to all who oppose it; it's authoritarian principles and practice. Are a potential menace to the personality and well-being of those so deluded as to become its followers: above all,its methods can be a serious danger to the health of those who submit to them.

I think you have more than enough information here to rescind your city's proclamation. I am more than happy to discuss this further with you should you have any questions.I have LOTS more disturbing information that I am sure will help you make this decision to rescind

I have also sent this to the editors of your cities your main newspapers as they to might want to rescind any positive story they had run when you gave Dianetics this original proclamation .

Thank you for your consideration of this matter,

EXPERT ANALYSIS

DOJ Brief Opposing CFPB Brings More Uncertainty

What will be most disappointing to Republicans and President Trump, and which is entirely possible given the issues the D.C. Circuit requested to be briefed, is an outcome which avoids the constitutional issues raised in PHH Corp. v. Consumer Financial Protection Bureau and decides the case on the basis of the statutory provisions of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act, say attorneys at Troutman Sanders LLP.

Implications Of Trump Budget Blueprint For US Stature Abroad

In addition to steep cuts to foreign aid and other forms of "soft power," the Trump administration's budget blueprint proposes dramatic shifts to trade and investment priorities that — if enacted by Congress — could impact U.S. stature abroad and change the landscape for American businesses operating around the world, say attorneys with Squire Patton Boggs LLP.

ACA Repeal Bill's Impact On Employers, Group Health Plans

The bulk of the recently introduced American Health Care Act focuses on repealing and replacing a number of Affordable Care Act provisions unrelated to group health plans and employer sponsors. However, it would repeal, delay or revise several ACA and non-ACA provisions directly related to the taxes, fees and related compliance costs borne by employers in relation to the GHP coverage they offer their employees, says Eric Schillinger of Trucker Huss APC.

In Congress: Gorsuch, ACA, Homeland Security

It will be an ambitious week for Republicans on Capitol Hill, where the schedule includes the start of the Senate Judiciary Committee hearing on President Trump's Supreme Court nominee, Tenth Circuit Judge Neil Gorsuch, and in the House of Representatives a vote is scheduled on the GOP leadership proposal to repeal and replace the Affordable Care Act, say Richard Hertling and Kaitlyn McClure of Covington & Burling LLP.

NJ Spill Act May Now Include Right To Compel Sampling

Confronted with the strict liability scheme under New Jersey's Spill Act, courts in the state have universally required that a contribution plaintiff establish that the defendants are "dischargers" or "in any way responsible" before recognizing contribution claims. But that changed when the Appellate Division announced its decision in Matejek v. Watson earlier this month, say Edward McTiernan and Kerry Dziubek of Arnold & Porter Kaye Scholer LLP.

Subject: Letter written by a registered Democrat about our Government.....

Interesting letter written by a resident of WA state. I am most impressed by the fact the gentleman that wrote it signed his name and address to it.

This came from a Democrat! I read it and it certainly hits the nail where it would hurt. Google has the letter posted on their web site. This is well written.....and should be read by everyone in these United States! It will be well worth the three minutes it requires to read this. It is quite impressive.

You can be Republican, Democrat, Liberal, Conservative, Independent or Libertarian and I'll bet this will hit a nerve. Our country is in real trouble.

Senator Patty Murray
Senator Maria Cantwell

Washington, DC 20510

Dear Senators:

I have tried to live by the rules my entire life. My father was a Command Sergeant Major, U.S. Army, who died of combat related stresses shortly after his retirement. It was he who instilled in me those virtues he felt important - honesty, duty, patriotism and obeying the laws of God and of our various governments. I have served my country, paid my taxes, worked hard, volunteered and donated my fair share of money, time and artifacts.

Today, as I approach my 79th birthday, I am heart-broken when I look at my country and my government. I shall only point out a very few things abysmally wrong which you can multiply by a thousand fold. I have calculated that all the money I have paid in income taxes my entire life cannot even keep the Senate barbershop open for one year! Only Heaven and a few tight-lipped actuarial types know what the Senate dining room costs the taxpayers. So please, enjoy your haircuts and meals on us.

Last year, the president spent an estimated $1.4 billion on himself and his family. The vice president spends $ millions on hotels. They have had 8 vacations so far this year! And our House of Representatives and Senate have become America's answer to the Saudi royal family. You have become the "perfumed princes and princesses" of our country.

In the middle of the night, you voted in the Affordable Health Care Act, a.k.a. "Obamacare," a bill which no more than a handful of senators or representatives read more than several paragraphs, crammed it down our throats, and then promptly exempted yourselves from it substituting your own taxpayer-subsidized golden health care insurance. (Let's eliminate that exemption and put the Congress under the Affordable Health Care Act)

You live exceedingly well, eat and drink as well as the "one percenters," consistently vote yourselves perks and pay raises while making 3.5 times the average U.S. individual income, and give up nothing while you (as well as the president and veep) ask us to sacrifice due to sequestration (for which, of course, you plan to blame the Republicans, anyway).

You understand very well the only two rules you need to know - (1) How to get elected, and (2) How to get re-elected. And you do this with the aid of an eagerly willing and partisan press, speeches permeated with a certain economy of truth, and by buying the votes of the greedy, the ill-informed and under-educated citizens (and non-citizens, too, many of whom do vote) who are looking for a handout rather than a job. Your so-called "safety net" has become a hammock for the lazy. And, what is it now, about 49 or 50 million on food stamps - pretty much all Democrat voters - and the program is absolutely rife with fraud and absolutely no congressional oversight?

I would offer that you are not entirely to blame. What changed you is the seductive environment of power in which you have immersed yourselves. It is the nature of both houses of Congress which requires you to subordinate your virtue in order to get anything done until you have achieved a leadership role. To paraphrase President Reagan, it appears that the second oldest profession (politics), bears a remarkably strong resemblance to the oldest.

As the hirsute first Baron John Emerich Edward Dalberg Acton

(1834 -1902), English historian and moralist, so aptly and accurately stated, "Power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely. Great men are almost always bad men." I'm only guessing that this applies to the female sex as well. Tell me, is there a more corrupt entity in this country than Congress?

While we middle class people continue to struggle, our government becomes less and less transparent, more and more bureaucratic, and ever so much more dictatorial, using Czars and Secretaries to tell us (just to mention a very few) what kind of light bulbs we must purchase, how much soda or hamburgers we can eat, what cars we can drive, gasoline to use, and what health care we must buy. Countless thousands of pages of regulations strangle our businesses costing the consumer more and more every day.

As I face my final year, or so, with cancer, my president and my government tell me "You'll just have to take a pill," while you, Senator, your colleagues, the president, and other exulted government officials and their families will get the best possible health care on our tax dollars until you are called home by your Creator while also enjoying a retirement beyond my wildest dreams, which of course, you voted for yourselves and we pay for.

The chances of you reading this letter are practically zero as your staff will not pass it on, but with a little luck, a form letter response might be generated by them with an auto signature applied, hoping we will believe that you, our senator or representative, has heard us and actually cares. This letter will, however, go on line where many others will have the chance to read one person's opinion, rightly or wrongly, about this government, its administration and its senators and representatives.

I only hope that occasionally you might quietly thank the taxpayer for all the generous entitlements which you have voted yourselves, for which, by law, we must pay, unless, of course, it just goes on the $19 trillion national debt for which your children and ours, and your grandchildren and ours, ad infinitum, must eventually try to pick up the tab.

My final thoughts are that it must take a person who has either lost his or her soul, or conscience, or both, to seek re-election and continue to destroy the country that I deeply love. You have put it so far in debt that we will never pay it off while your lot improves by the minute, because of your power.

For you, Senator, will never stand up to the rascals in your House who constantly deceive the American people. And that, my dear Senator, is how power has corrupted you and the entire Congress. The only answer to clean up this cesspool is term limits and replacing their retirement with the same Social Security plan the rest of us will receive (if they don't put that program into bankruptcy) . This, of course, will kill the goose that lays your golden eggs. And woe be to him (or her) who would dare to bring it up.

Sincerely,
Bill Schoonover

Thank you for these kind words and for all that you have done in the aftermath. I saw all of you everywhere, in hospitals, at memorials, and briefings, to name a few. I know how much you have done, and you make us all proud.

We are likewise proud of our staff who worked at the Victim Assistance Center. So far, we have opened 171 cases, ranging from a service member who needed a power of attorney so he could transfer back to the United States as his mom is not likely to make it to a good Samaritan whose insurance company was refusing to fix the bullet hole in his car (they backed down pretty quick on that). The vast majority of our cases so far involve employees working for subcontractors. We hope to work through these issues quickly. Based on experiences in other jurisdictions, we anticipate receiving a large spike in calls over the next two months, especially when the hospital and medical bills begin to arrive. Please feel free to send anyone in need to us. I've attached our flyer discussing our services.

We are working on a legal/financial checklist now (see attached)– it should be finished late this week as we are sending it to all the stakeholders for comments/review, etc.

Thanks for all you do.

Subject: Emergency Legal Services

Mayor Goodman,

We are all suffering from the aftershock of this horrific tragedy that has befallen our great community. This is an unprecedented time, and we want our community partners to know that Legal Aid Center of Southern Nevada is ready, willing and able to assist victims and their families with various legal issues that will undoubtedly arise in the coming days, weeks and even months. These individuals should not have to face legal hurdles alone and unguided in their time of grief.

We know from an experienced attorney who was involved in a community wide legal response team following the 2015 Mother Emmanuel Church shooting in Charleston that many civil legal issues will arise. That tragedy had far, far fewer victims than ours and so we can anticipate to see an even greater need for a coordinated community legal response in our City. The following are examples of the types of legal issues that came up in the Charleston tragedy which we also expect to see in our community:

- need for child custody orders or orders for guardianship for orphaned children
- help with probate and wills
- assistance with various real property issues (foreclosure, mortgage, HOA, landlord/tenant and title issues)
- help with banking and safe deposit boxes
- assistance with benefits such as life insurance claims, private insurance, death/disability claims or Medicaid
- assistance with debt collection due to unpaid bills

It is important for the City to know we are prepared to offer free civil, legal assistance to those in need of emergency services. It is our hope that the City will share this information with its community partners to help spread the word about this free community service. We are marshalling our own attorneys and staff, along with our cadre of Pro Bono attorneys to make this happen. Additionally, the State Bar of Nevada has agreed to coordinate with our office to locate attorneys in the home state of any victim who needs legal help upon returning home. Legal Aid Center will act as the initial clearinghouse for these emergency civil legal issues. We have set up a triage system for shooting victims and their families. The process is started by contacting (702)386-1070, ext. 0. The caller will be connected directly to a staff member who will assess the needs and we will determine whether we can assist the caller directly or work on a referral to a pro bono attorney or to the State Bar of Nevada.

Please share this information……A shorter description follows:

In the aftermath of the tragic events in Las Vegas, Legal Aid Center of Southern Nevada and the State Bar of Nevada are providing free civil legal assistance to those in need of emergency legal services. Services can include the need for child custody orders or orders for guardianship for children, help with probate and wills, assistance with various real property issues (foreclosure, mortgage, HOA, landlord/tenant, and title issues), help with banking and safe deposit boxes, assistance with benefits such as life insurance claims, private insurance, death/disability claims or Medicaid, or assistance with debt collection due to unpaid bills. For out of state visitors, the State Bar of Nevada will endeavor to locate an attorney willing to provide a free consultation and/or free legal services to assist with these types of issues in the state where the individual lives. For assistance, please call (702) 386-1070, x 0.

LEGAL AID CENTER of Southern Nevada

FOR VICTIMS OF ROUTE 91 FESTIVAL
DETAILED LEGAL & FINANCIAL CHECKLIST

Legal Aid Center of Southern Nevada wishes to express its sincere condolences to all of those affected by the tragic events occurring on October 1st. Many will face a multitude of civil legal issues in the coming days, weeks and months. Issues can range from the need to obtain guardianship over an orphaned child or help with probate or insurance problems. Others may need help when debts pile up because a household provider has been unable to return to work due to traumatic injury. It is also expected that out-of-state visitors may need help finding an attorney in their own jurisdiction. We do not want individuals to face these issues alone and without legal guidance. Our nonprofit organization, in existence since 1958, together with our partner, the State Bar of Nevada, are partnering to provide free legal help to those in need. This checklist provides some needed legal information and resources to those affected by this event.

Therapy and Physical Injuries

- For those injured (including emotional distress) – get treatment right away.
- Your health insurance provider can let you know what providers are covered under your plan.
- If you do not have a doctor or know who is covered, contact First Med at (702) 731-0909. They will help you locate help.
- You can also contact the Disaster Distress Helpline – call 800-985-5990. https://www.samhsa.gov/find-help/disaster-distress-helpline
- If you were employed at the event, let your employer know (in writing) asap. Seek treatment immediately and advise the doctor/therapist that you worked during the event.

Funeral and probate/estate issues

- The State of Nevada Victims of Crime office will pay funds towards funeral expenses. See http://voc.nv.gov/ or call (702) 486-2740. Zappos has also agreed to pay the funeral costs for all 58 victims – contact zapposforgood@zappos.com for more information.
- For help with handling the estate needs (will/probate/trusts), contact Legal Aid Center (702) 386-1070 ext. 0 or LegalAidServices@LACSN.ORG. We have over 50 Nevada attorneys standing by to assist pro bono (free).
- For victims in other states, the State Bar of Nevada and Attorney General's office will assist us in finding attorneys and victims' advocates in other jurisdictions. Services can include a free consultation or an attorney undertaking the entire representation for free. Contact Legal Aid Center (702) 386-1070 ext. 0 or LegalAidServices@LACSN.ORG and we will connect you.
- Life insurance policies are often overlooked or forgotten in the shock of losing a loved one. Remember to look for life insurance policies; if your loved one was working, you can inquire with their employer about the policy.

Hospital and Medical Bills

- Make sure every bill is submitted to your health insurance company.
- Ask if the insurance company or hospital or doctor will waive your co-pay and deductible. While they are not under an obligation to do so, they may do it upon request.

- Nevada medical care providers agreeing to waive the patient's portion of their bill:
  - St. Rose de Lima Hospital
  - American Medical Response
  - MedicWest Ambulance

- Nevada insurance companies agreeing to waive any patient's portion of their bills: UnitedHealthcare, (includes Health Plan of Nevada and Sierra Health and Life) will cover the cost share for the initial course of emergency and trauma treatments for their members who were victims of the attack
- There is a Victims of Violent Crime compensation program. Those injured from this tragedy may be eligible for assistance from this program. http://voc.nv.gov/
- If your insurance company is refusing to pay your claim, you need assisting negotiating these waivers, or completing an application for victims of crime compensation, contact us at (702) 386-1070 Ext. 0. We will negotiate on your behalf.

For anyone working the event

- If you were injured and need treatment, make sure you see a doctor or therapist as soon as possible. Your first doctor visit will be paid wherever you go. After that, you will be given information about approved doctors.
- Inform your employer (or send them a C-1 form or email saying you were injured). Do this as soon as possible.
- Your bills will be paid and you will receive 66 2/3% of your salary while you cannot work.
- You are entitled to be paid for the event. No employer can withhold your wages until you sign a waiver.
- For anyone working at the event who has an immigration issue, call us. There may be a crime victim visa available to help you.
- For anyone who needs assistance with any of these issues, contact Legal Aid Center (702) 386-1070 ext. 0 or LegalAidServices@lacsn.org.

Compensation

- For victims who live in Nevada, every victim should complete a victim of crime act assistance application. This must be filed as soon as possible, even if you do not know the final amount of your bills. The application is here: http://voc.nv.gov/. Things that are covered are here: http://voc.nv.gov/VOC/Covered_Expenses/. The maximum amount per person is $35,000. If you have any questions or if you are denied, call us.
- For victims who live in California, you complete this application in California. See https://www.victims.ca.gov/
- For victims who live in all other states – contact the State of Nevada office.
- In their grief, many victims overlook the existence of short or long term disability policies. You can inquire with your employer whether you have one with them.
- For anyone who needs assistance with any of these issues, contact Legal Aid Center (702) 386-1070 ext. 0 or LegalAidServices@lacsn.org.

Victim funds

- There are several funds collecting donations. At the present time, a distribution mechanism is being evaluated for the funds. We can notify everyone as soon as it is decided. Please contact us at (702) 386-1070 ext. 0 or email us LegalAidServices@lacsn.org. If you would like us to notify you when the claim process is established.
- You can register to receive notifications through National Center for Victims of Crime. See https://nationalcompassionfund.org/funds/las-vegas-contact/

Lost Property

- Lost property can be claimed at the Family Assistance Center, located in the Las Vegas Convention Center, South Hall, 3150 Paradise Road (southeast corner). You can also call (702) 455-2433 or email LVFestivalAssist@fbi.gov to discuss your options.
- For those that lost cell phones, you are encouraged to send a text message of your full name to that phone to help authorities identify it.
- For anyone not in the Las Vegas area, visit the FBI's Victim Assistance website for assistance in retrieving property: https://www.fbi.gov/resources/victim-assistance/seeking-victim-information/assistance-for-victims-of-the-harvest-music-festival-shooting-in-las-vegas. Fill out the victim questionnaire and include as much detail about your lost items as possible.

Filing a Police Report

- For local residents who want to file a police report:
  - Call 3-1-1 and file a report telephonically if you are a victim of the shooting;
  - File a report at an area command near you or at the Records and Fingerprint Bureau located at LVMPD Headquarters

- FOR OUT-OF-STATE RESIDENTS WHO WANT TO FILE A POLICE REPORT:
  - Call (702) 828-3111 and file a report telephonically if you are a victim of the shooting; or
  - File a report with your hometown police department and fax it to 702-828-1555.
- In addition to filing a local police report, the FBI has this posted: https://forms.fbi.gov/seeking-victims-of-las-vegas-music-festival-shooting

In person Assistance for All Services

Clark County and Las Vegas Metropolitan Police have established a Family Assistance Center as a safe haven for victims and their families at the Las Vegas Convention Center South Hall, at 3150 Paradise Road, Las Vegas, NV. For residents needing assistance, you can call 702-455-2433. Out of state visitors can call 1-833-299-2433.

Fraud

- Beware of fraud. There are many people who prey on those that are victims, attempting to loan them money (at outrageous interest rates) or try to get payment for helping people fill out applications for assistance.
- Get a free honest legal opinion before you sign anything.
- Do not pay anyone for helping you complete a form.
- Please contact us at (702) 386-1070 ext. 0 or email us LegalAidServices@lacsn.org if you would any assistance with this.
- Contact the Nevada Attorney General's office at (702) 486-3420 or http://ag.nv.gov/Complaints/File_Complaint/ to report fraud.

Key Company Highlights

- NS8 was founded in 2016 by business partners who have deep ties to the City of Las Vegas. They include CEO Adam Rogas and Managing Director of Technical Operations, David Hansen, both of whom are valley residents.

- The company's software is used by thousands of eCommerce businesses around the world to protect themselves against online fraud.

- NS8 works throughout the year with its philanthropy partners from the Moonridge Group to support a range of organizations, causes, and events in the Las Vegas Community. Over the past year, we have supported Downtown Cares (at the Boys & Girls Club), Noah's Animal House, Three Square, and the One Drop Walk for Water, as well as local technology students from Tech Impact.

- As a business that is passionate about cybersecurity and safe internet access and experiences, NS8 is eager to support the Mayor's Fund for Las Vegas LIFE and "Las Vegas Connected" to help get all Las Vegas community members connected online.

- NS8 understands that in today's digital economy, where business can transpire transpire in a matter of seconds, it is imperative for people to have access to online connectivity from their homes and to be internet proficient.

- The company is equally passionate about providing local students and schoolchildren with technology and internet access so they can reach their educational aspirations.

Additional Facts About NS8

- Globally, NS8 has 55 employees, with half of them based in our Las Vegas Headquarters.
- In addition to Las Vegas, NS8 has regional offices located in Miami, the Detroit area, Amsterdam, and Singapore. It also has several California-based employees.
- NS8's flagship product, NS8 Protect, is available on major eCommerce platforms, including Shopify, Magento, and WooCommerce.
- Primary company contacts for NS8's philanthropic efforts are Vice President of Marketing, Jim Holborow, and Communications Manager Philip Tortora.

Mayor's Fund for Las Vegas LIFE

Mayor Goodman's Welcome Remarks for NS8 Event

- Good evening. I am delighted to be here with this impressive group of tech and business leaders who are literally poised to change our world and our community.
- Thank you to our host, NS8, and all your friends and associates, for taking the time to be here with us for this important cause.
- We appreciate you opening up your offices and giving us access to this distinguished group as we share the great news about The Mayor's Fund for Las Vegas LIFE.
- Soon, others will talk to you about tech inequity in our city and how we need your help to bridge the digital divide, but first let me take a minute to tell about The Mayor's Fund.
- Because we know that there is only so much government can do on its own to improve quality of life, The Mayor's Fund was started last year as a vehicle for private and corporate donations to help support city initiatives.
- I am proud to say that we have raised nearly $725,000 and hope to reach our goal of $1 million by the end of September. We are grateful to individuals and corporations alike, which have made donations of all sizes to advance initiatives and programs that are aimed at our city's most vulnerable populations.
- And while those are some mighty impressive numbers, we know that our community's needs are also great.
- Our future is in the hands of smart and technologically savvy folks like you. So again, thank you for taking the time to learn more about The Mayor's Fund and the digital divide that unfortunately, exists in our city. With your help, we will positively change lives.
- Thank you.

Good morning RTC Board:

Per our board meeting, moving forward we will provide you with a Legislative Rundown email of activities taking place in Carson City relating to the RTC. In addition, starting next month we will also include an update as part of our board meeting. Below is this week's Legislative Rundown. Please let me know if you have any questions or would like to get on a call about any of the items below. I can be reached at 702-578-4876.

RTC's Enabling Statute Senate Bill 149 (Attached)
In February, we provided you with Senate Bill 149 which is the RTC of Southern Nevada and Washoe's Enabling Legislation. We mentioned that LCB did not include certain language that was important to the entities. Attached is the most recent amendment as of Saturday. We met with the entities to develop this language, and we worked to include all their amendments except for Clark County's most recent amendment. We are still working with Clark County. The bill is scheduled to be heard on Tuesday in Senate Transportation.

Overview of the legislation:
The RTC worked with legislators, including the Southern Nevada Forum, local entities, and stakeholders to draft legislation that enhances the RTC' s ability to implement high capacity transit and innovative technologies in Southern Nevada. The attached proposed legislation does the following:

1. Provides the specific ability to construct, develop, and operate a high capacity transit system.
2. Clarifies the authority to fund, research, and develop projects that relate to innovative transportation such as autonomous vehicles.
3. Clarifies the ability to invest in transit-oriented developments.
4. Allows the RTC to request a sales tax ballot question from Clark County to support transportation projects.

Attached is also a FAQ document about the legislation.

Transportation Interim Committee Senate Bill 207 (Attached)
One of our Transportation Resource Advisory Committee's (TRAC) recommendations was to ask the Legislature to consider creating a Legislative Transportation Interim Committee that will study transportation issues when the Legislature is not in session. This bill is also supported by the other Metropolitan Planning Organizations in the state. The committee will review, evaluate, and comment upon matters related to transportation policy in Nevada such as the condition of roadway and transit infrastructure and the need for sustainable revenue sources to maintain and improve transportation infrastructure. This bill is being sponsored by the Senate Transportation Committee and will also be heard on Tuesday.

Public Private Partnerships and the State Infrastructure Bank are funding tools that were mentioned in the Transportation Investment Business Plan (TIBP) and discussed further at the Southern Nevada Tourism Infrastructure Committee and at Southern Nevada Forum. The bills have not been introduced, and we are unsure about the language that will be introduced.

Public Private Partnerships BDR 602

The RTC has been working with the Southern Nevada Forum to draft legislation that will enable the RTC, along with other state agencies and local governments, to better use P3s to contribute to the funding of a broader range of transportation projects. A P3 is a contractual arrangement between a public agency (federal, state or local) and a private sector entity. Through this agreement, the skills and assets of each sector (public and private) are shared in delivering a service or facility for the use of the general public. In addition to the sharing of resources, each party shares in the potential risks and rewards in the delivery of the service and/or facility.

State Infrastructure Bank BDR 603

The RTC has also been working with the Southern Nevada Forum to draft legislation that will create a state infrastructure bank (SIB) in the State of Nevada. Like P3s, SIBs are an innovative tool to help fund transportation projects. An SIB is a government bank operated either at the state or local level that provides financial support to qualified projects through loans, lines of credit, or other tools. The bill would create a structure for an SIB but it won't be implemented until funds are identified.

Recently Introduced Bills that may Impact the RTC

Staff is also tracking more than 60 BDRs and more than 40 bills that have been introduced that may impact the RTC. However, of the bills introduced, the below bill may have the most impact on the RTC at this time.

AB 234 – Harvey's Law only impacts entities that provide paratransit services. The bill requires any entity or organization that provides these services to have a first aid kit in each vehicle. Each driver of the vehicle is also required to be trained in first aid and CPR. Any person who does not adhere to these requirements is guilty of a misdemeanor that shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 6 months, or by both fine and imprisonment. Staff is connecting with Assemblyman Ozzie Fumo, bill sponsor; Transdev, our Paratransit service provider; the Nevada Justice Association and Teamsters. As of today, we have not heard when the bill is being scheduled for a hearing. We will be sure to keep you updated as we obtain more information.

5. All such compensation, per diem allowances and travel expenses must be paid from the Legislative Fund.

Sec. 5. 1. The Committee may:

(a) Evaluate, review and comment upon issues related to transportation and transportation infrastructure within this State, including, without limitation:

(1) Mechanisms to pay for transportation projects and transportation infrastructure;

(2) The condition of the transportation infrastructure in this State and the need for money to maintain and improve the infrastructure;

(3) The impact of emerging technologies on the roadways and transit systems in this State;

(4) Options for funding the development of high-capacity transit systems within urban areas of this State; and

(5) Any other matters that, in the determination of the Committee, concern transportation or transportation infrastructure in this State.

(b) Conduct investigations and hold hearings in connection with its duties pursuant to this section and exercise any of the investigative powers set forth in NRS 218E.105 to 218E.140, inclusive.

(c) Request that the Legislative Counsel Bureau assist in the research, investigations, hearings and reviews of the Committee.

(d) Make recommendations to the Legislature concerning the manner in which transportation or transportation infrastructure in this State may be improved.

(e) Work with the Congressional delegation of this State to ensure the ability to pay for transportation projects and transportation infrastructure on a long-term basis.

2. The Committee shall consult with and solicit input from persons and organizations with expertise in best practices regarding paying for transportation projects and transportation infrastructure.

3. The Committee shall, on or before January 15 of each odd-numbered year, submit to the Director for transmittal to the Legislature a report concerning the activities of the Committee during the applicable legislative interim.

Sec. 6. The provisions of subsection 1 of NRS 218D.380 do not apply to any provision of this act which adds or revises a requirement to submit a report to the Legislature.

Sec. 7. This act becomes effective on July 1, 2017.

SUMMARY—Revises provisions governing regional transportation commissions. (BDR 22-318)

FISCAL NOTE: Effect on Local Government: May have Fiscal Impact.

Effect on the State: No.

AN ACT relating to regional transportation commissions; authorizing a regional transportation commission to participate in transit-oriented developments; authorizing a regional transportation commission to recommend the imposition of certain taxes to fund the transportation projects of the commission; requiring the board of county commissioners to adopt an ordinance imposing any such taxes that are approved by the voters; authorizing a regional transportation commission to develop and maintain high-capacity transit systems; authorizing a regional transportation commission to adopt rules for the parking of vehicles at facilities of the commission and the imposition of fees for the use of services or facilities of the commission; repealing provisions requiring certain regional transportation commissions to establish a regional rapid transit authority; revising various provisions relating to the powers and duties of regional transportation commissions; and providing other matters properly relating thereto.

DRAFT

Legislative Counsel's Digest:

Existing law provides that a county may, by ordinance, create a regional transportation commission if a streets and highways plan has been adopted by the county or regional planning commission. (NRS 277A.170) Existing law also provides a regional transportation commission the exclusive right to operate a system of public transportation within its jurisdiction, as well as enter into contracts, leases and agreements with state agencies and local governments to perform its functions. (NRS 277A.270)

Section 3 of this bill authorizes a regional transportation commission to fund, research, and develop transportation projects that promote innovative transportation and transit technology including autonomous technology. Section 3 authorizes a regional transportation commission to enter into ~~joint development~~ agreements, ~~including, without limitation, agreements relating to transit oriented developments,~~ in accordance with federal law. ~~Section 3 defines a transit-oriented development as a mixed-use residential or commercial area that is designed to promote access to public transit.~~ Section 13 of this bill authorizes a regional transportation commission to construct, develop and operate a high-capacity transit system, as well as enter into contracts with other local governments to share the costs related to transportation projects. If a regional transportation commission enters into such a cost-sharing agreement, section 4 of this bill requires the commission to create and administer an account that will hold any money appropriated by the commission or a local government in accordance with the cost-sharing agreement. Section 14 of this bill authorizes a regional transportation commission to use a turnkey procurement process or competitive negotiation process in connection with a high capacity transit project.

DRAFT

Sections 5 and 6 of this bill provide that a regional transportation commission in certain larger counties (currently Clark and Washoe Counties) may recommend the imposition of ~~one or more of the following taxes: (1)~~ an additional tax on the gross receipts of any retailer from the sale of all tangible personal property sold at retail~~; and (2) an additional property tax in the county~~. The recommendations of the commission must specify the rate ~~or rates for each~~ of the recommended tax~~es~~, the period during which the recommended tax~~es~~ will be imposed and the transportation projects the recommended tax~~es~~ would support, if the commission submits its recommendations to the board of county commissioners, the board of county commissioners ~~is required to~~ may submit a question to the voters at the next general election asking whether ~~any of~~ the tax~~es~~ recommended by the commission should be imposed in the county. If a majority of the voters approve the question, the board of county commissioners is required to impose the approved tax~~es~~ at the rate specified in the question submitted to the voters. ~~If a majority of the voters approve the imposition of an additional property tax, the additional rate is exempt from the partial abatement of property taxes on certain property and the requirement that taxes ad valorem not exceed $3.64 on each $100 of assessed valuation.~~ Section 7 of this bill provides that the proceeds resulting from the imposition of such taxes must be remitted to the commission for its use in accordance with the provisions of existing law governing regional transportation commissions.

Existing law generally sets forth the authority and powers of a regional transportation commission. (NRS 277A.160, 277A.210, 277A.250) Section 10 of this bill requires that the provisions of existing law governing regional transportation commissions be liberally construed as to allow a regional transportation commission to meet any of its objectives. ~~Section 11 of this bill designates a regional transportation commission as a political subdivision of the State, but~~

~~does not authorize a commission to levy or collect taxes or special assessments~~ ~~except as otherwise provided in this statute~~. ~~Section 12 of this bill authorizes a regional transportation commission to acquire and own~~ ~~licenses and~~ ~~easements, as well as grant such~~ ~~licenses and~~ ~~easements to other persons or entities.~~

Existing law requires the regional transportation commission in any county whose population is 700,000 or more (currently Clark County) to establish a regional rapid transit authority. Section 1~~7~~8 of this bill repeals that provision.

EXPLANATION: Matter in (1) blue bold italics is new language in the original bill; (2) variations of green bold underlining is language proposed to be added in this amendment; (3) ~~red strikethrough~~ is deleted language in the original bill; (4) ~~purple double strikethrough~~ is language proposed to be deleted in this amendment; (5) orange double underlining is deleted language in the original bill proposed to be retained in this amendment.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEVADA, REPRESENTED

IN SENATE AND ASSEMBLY, DO ENACT AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. Chapter 277A of NRS is hereby amended by adding thereto the provisions set forth as sections 2 to 7, inclusive, of this act.

Sec. 2. "High-capacity transit" means a ~~system of transportation~~ public transit system ~~services which uses and occupies a separate right-of-way or rails exclusively for public transportation~~ that may provide a ~~substantially~~ higher level of passenger capacity by increasing, without limitation, the number of vehicles utilized by the system, the size of the vehicles, the frequency of vehicle rides, travel speed or any combination thereof. The term includes, without limitation, ~~rapid~~ bus rapid transit, fixed guideway, light rail transit, ~~community~~ commuter rail, streetcar and heavy rail.

Sec. 3. 1. A commission may:

(a) Provide grants of money to conduct research for and otherwise develop and implement transportation projects that promote innovative transportation and transit technology, including, without limitation, autonomous technology as defined in NRS 482A.025.

(b) Enter into ~~joint development agreements, including, without limitation,~~ agreements ~~for transit-oriented developments,~~ in accordance with 49 U.S.C. § 5315 and any guidelines adopted pursuant thereto, and applicable laws of the state.

~~2. As used in this section, "transit-oriented development" means a mixed-use residential or commercial area~~ project ~~that is designed to maximize access to a public transit system.~~

Sec. 4. If a commission enters into an agreement with a county, city, town or other political subdivision to share costs relating to a transportation project pursuant to ~~paragraph (g) of subsection~~ 1 of NRS 277A.2~~7~~005, the commission shall create an account administered by the commission and deposit into such account any money appropriated by each participating entity in accordance with the amounts established under the agreement. The money in the account, including any interest and income earned on the money in the account, must not be transferred to any other ~~2 or~~ account or used for any purpose other than the purposes set forth in the agreement entered into pursuant to ~~paragraph (g) of subsection~~ 1 of NRS 277A.2~~7~~005.

Sec. 5. 1. In a county whose population is 100,000 or more, a commission may:

(a) Prepare recommendations for the imposition of one or more of the taxes described in section 6 of this act in the county to provide funding for the commission for the purposes set forth in this chapter. The recommendations must specify the proposed rate or rates for each of the recommended taxes, the period during which one or more of the recommended taxes will be imposed and the type of transportation project the recommended tax or taxes will support.

(b) Submit the recommendations to the board of county commissioners.

~~2.~~ Upon the receipt of recommendations pursuant to subsection 1, the board of county commissioners may ~~shall~~*, at the next general election, submit a question to the voters of the county asking whether the recommended tax or taxes should be imposed in the county. The question submitted to the voters of the county must specify the proposed rate or rates for each of the recommended taxes, the period during which the recommended tax or taxes will be imposed, if the period was specified in the recommendations submitted pursuant to subsection 1, and the type of transportation project*s the recommended tax or taxes will support.

DRAFT

~~3. If the question submitted to the voters pursuant to subsection 2 asks the voters of the county whether to levy a tax on the assessed valuation of taxable property within the county, the question must contain the rate of the proposed additional property tax stated in dollars and cents per $100 assessed valuation, the type of transportation project the proposed additional property tax will support, the duration of the proposed additional property tax, which may not exceed 20 years, and an estimate established by the governing body of the increase in the amount of property taxes that an owner of a new home with a fair market value of $100,000 will pay per year as a result of the passage of the question. The question must also state that any such tax imposed is exempt from each partial abatement from taxation provided pursuant to NRS 361.4722, 361.4723 and 361.4724.~~

~~4.~~ 3. If a majority of the voters voting on the question submitted to the voters pursuant to subsection 2 vote affirmatively on the question:

(a) The board of county commissioners shall impose the recommended tax or taxes in accordance with the provisions of section 6 of this act at the rate or rates specified in the question submitted to the voters pursuant to subsection 2.

(b) The tax or taxes must be imposed notwithstanding the provisions of any specific statute to the contrary and, except as otherwise specifically provided in this section and sections 6 and 7 of this act, such tax or taxes are not subject to any limitations set forth in any statute which authorizes the board of county commissioners to impose such tax or taxes, including, without limitation, any limitations on the maximum rate or rates which may be imposed or the duration of the period during which such tax or taxes may be imposed.

DRAFT

Sec. 6. 1. Upon approval of the registered voters of a county voting on a question presented to the voters pursuant to section 5 of this act recommending the imposition of a tax on the gross receipts of any retailer from the sale of all tangible personal property sold at retail, or stored, used or otherwise consumed, in the county, the board of county commissioners shall impose a tax by ordinance on the gross receipts of any retailer from the sale of all tangible personal property sold at retail, or stored, used or otherwise consumed, in the county. The tax must be imposed throughout the county, including all cities within the county, upon all retailers in the business of selling tangible personal property. Any ordinance enacted under this subsection must include provisions in substance as follows:

(a) Provisions substantially identical to those contained in chapter 374 of NRS, insofar as applicable.

(b) A provision that all amendments to chapter 374 of NRS after the date of enactment of the ordinance, not inconsistent with this chapter, automatically become a part of the ordinance.

(c) A provision that the county shall, before the effective date of the ordinance, contract with the Department to perform all functions incident to the administration or operation of the tax in the county.

(d) A provision that a purchaser is entitled to a refund, in accordance with the provisions of NRS 374.635 to 374.720, inclusive, of the amount of the tax required to be paid that is attributable to the tax imposed upon the sale of, and the storage, use or other consumption in a county of, tangible personal property used for the performance of a written contract for the construction of an improvement to real property, entered into on or before the effective date of the tax or the increase in the tax, or for which a binding bid was submitted before the date if the bid was afterward accepted, if under the terms of the contract or bid the contract price or bid amount cannot be adjusted to reflect the imposition of the tax or the increase in the tax.

~~2. Upon approval of the registered voters in a county voting on a question presented to the voters pursuant to section 5 of this act recommending the levy of a tax on the assessed valuation of taxable property within the county, the board of county commissioners shall levy a tax on the assessed valuation of taxable property within the~~

~~to coordinate and collaborate on the development of transportation projects, including, without limitation, the sharing of costs related to such a project.~~

2. The powers and duties of a commission set forth in this chapter do not apply to any monorail for which a franchise has been granted pursuant to NRS 705.695 or an agreement has been entered into pursuant to NRS 705.695.

3. As used in this section, "bus turnout" means a fixed area that is:

(a) Adjacent or appurtenant to, or within a reasonable proximity of, a public highway; and

(b) To be occupied exclusively by buses in receiving or discharging passengers.

Sec. ~~14.~~ 16. NRS 277A.280 is hereby amended to read as follows:

277A.280 1. A commission, a county whose population is less than 100,000 or a city within such a county may establish or operate a public transit system consisting of:

(a) Regular routes and fixed schedules to serve the public;

(b) Nonemergency medical transportation of persons to facilitate their participation in jobs and day training services as defined in NRS 435.176, if the transportation is available upon request and without regard to regular routes or fixed schedules;

(c) Nonmedical transportation of persons with disabilities without regard to regular routes or fixed schedules; or

(d) In a county whose population is less than 100,000 or a city within such a county, nonmedical transportation of persons if the transportation is available by reservation 1 day in advance of the transportation and without regard to regular routes or fixed schedules.

2. A commission may lease vehicles to or from or enter into other contracts with a private operator for the provision of such a system.

3. In a county whose population is less than 700,000, such a system may also provide service which includes:

(a) Minor deviations from the regular routes and fixed schedules required by paragraph (a) of subsection 1 on a recurring basis to serve the public transportation needs of passengers. The deviations must not exceed one-half mile from the regular routes.

(b) The transporting of persons other than those specified in paragraph (b), (c) or (d) of subsection 1 upon request without regard to regular routes or fixed schedules, if the service is provided by a common motor carrier which has a certificate of public convenience and necessity issued by the Nevada Transportation Authority pursuant to NRS 706.386 to 706.411, inclusive, and the service is subject to the rules and regulations adopted by the Nevada Transportation Authority for a fully regulated carrier.

4. Notwithstanding the provisions of chapter 332 of NRS or NRS 625.530, a commission may utilize a turnkey procurement process to select a person to design, build, finance, operate and maintain, or any combination thereof, a high-capacity transit ~~or fixed guideway~~ system, including, without limitation, any minimum operable segment thereof. The commission shall determine whether to utilize turnkey procurement for a high-capacity transit ~~or fixed guideway~~ project before the completion of the preliminary engineering phase of the project. In making that determination, the commission shall evaluate whether turnkey procurement is the most cost-effective method of constructing the project on schedule and in satisfaction of its transportation objectives.

5. Notwithstanding the provisions of chapter 332 of NRS, a commission may utilize a competitive negotiation procurement process to procure rolling stock for a high-capacity transit ~~or fixed guideway~~ project, rolling stock for a public transit system, facilities and any other equipment that is related to public transportation. The award of a contract under such a process must be made to the person whose proposal is determined to be the most advantageous to the commission, based on price and other factors specified in the procurement documents.

water district authorized by law to submit questions to some or all of the qualified electors or registered voters of the county; or ~~(c)~~ A metropolitan police committee on fiscal affairs authorized by law to submit questions to some or all of the qualified electors or registered voters of the county,

2. If, after consulting with the county clerk pursuant to subsection 5, the board is unable to appoint three persons who are willing to serve on a committee, the board may appoint fewer than three persons to that committee, but the board must appoint at least one person to each committee appointed pursuant to this section.

3. With respect to a committee appointed pursuant to this section:

(a) A person may not serve simultaneously on the committee that favors approval by the voters of an initiative, referendum or other question and the committee that opposes approval by the voters of that initiative, referendum or other question.

(b) Members of the committee serve without compensation.

(c) The term of office for each member commences upon appointment and expires upon the publication of the sample ballot containing the initiative, referendum or other question.

4. The county clerk may establish and maintain a list of the persons who have expressed an interest in serving on a committee appointed pursuant to this section. The county clerk, after exercising due diligence to locate persons who favor approval by the voters of an initiative, referendum or other question to be placed on the ballot or who oppose approval by the voters of an initiative, referendum or other question to be placed on the ballot, may use the names on a list established pursuant to this subsection to:

(a) Make recommendations pursuant to subsection 5; and

(b) Appoint members to a committee pursuant to subsection 6.

5. Before the board appoints a committee pursuant to this section, the county clerk shall:

(a) Recommend to the board persons to be appointed to the committee; and

(b) Consider recommending pursuant to paragraph (a):

(1) Any person who has expressed an interest in serving on the committee; and

(2) A person who is a member of an organization that has expressed an interest in having a member of the organization serve on the committee.

6. If the board fails to appoint a committee as required pursuant to this section, the county clerk shall, in consultation with the district attorney, prepare an argument advocating approval by the voters of the initiative, referendum or other question and an argument opposing approval by the voters of the initiative, referendum or other question. Each argument prepared by the county clerk must satisfy the requirements of paragraph (f) of subsection 7 and any rules or regulations adopted by the county clerk pursuant to subsection 8. The county clerk shall not prepare the rebuttal of the arguments required pursuant to paragraph (e) of subsection 7.

7. A committee appointed pursuant to this section:

(a) Shall elect a chair for the committee;

(b) Shall meet and conduct its affairs as necessary to fulfill the requirements of this section;

(c) May seek and consider comments from the general public;

(d) Shall prepare an argument either advocating or opposing approval by the voters of the initiative, referendum or other question, based on whether the members were appointed to advocate or oppose approval by the voters of the initiative, referendum or other question;

(e) Shall prepare a rebuttal to the argument prepared by the other committee appointed pursuant to this section;

(f) Shall address in the argument and rebuttal prepared pursuant to paragraphs (d) and (e):

(1) The anticipated financial effect of the initiative, referendum or other question;

(2) The environmental impact of the initiative, referendum or other question; and

(3) The impact of the initiative, referendum or other question on the public health, safety and welfare; and

(g) Shall submit the argument and rebuttal prepared pursuant to paragraphs (d), (e) and (f) to the county clerk not later than the date prescribed by the county clerk pursuant to subsection 8.

8. The county clerk shall provide, by rule or regulation:

(a) The maximum permissible length of an argument or rebuttal prepared pursuant to this section; and

(b) The date by which an argument or rebuttal prepared pursuant to this section must be submitted by the committee to the county clerk.

9. Upon receipt of an argument or rebuttal prepared pursuant to this section, the county clerk:

(a) May consult with persons who are generally recognized by a national or statewide organization as having expertise in the field or area to which the initiative, referendum or other question pertains; and

(b) Shall reject each statement in the argument or rebuttal that the county clerk believes is libelous or factually inaccurate.

* * * *The decision of the county clerk to reject a statement pursuant to this subsection is a final decision for purposes of judicial review. Not later than 5 days after the county clerk rejects a statement pursuant to this subsection, the committee may appeal that rejection by filing a complaint in district court. The court shall set the matter for hearing not later than 3 days after the complaint is filed and shall give priority to such a complaint over all other matters pending with the court, except for criminal proceedings.

10. The county clerk shall place in the sample ballot provided to the registered voters of the county each argument and rebuttal prepared pursuant to this section, containing all statements that were not rejected pursuant to subsection 9. The county clerk may revise the language submitted by the committee so that it is clear, concise and suitable for incorporation in the sample ballot, but shall not alter the meaning or effect without the consent of the committee.

11. Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, if a question is to be placed on the ballot by an entity described in paragraph (b) or (c) of subsection 1, the entity must provide a copy and explanation of the question to the county clerk at least 30 days earlier than the date required for the submission of such documents pursuant to subsection 1 of NRS 293.481. This subsection does not apply to a question if the date that the question must be submitted to the county clerk is governed by subsection 3 of NRS 293.481.

12. The provisions of chapter 241 of NRS do not apply to any consultations, deliberations, hearings or meetings conducted pursuant to this section.

TEXT OF REPEALED SECTION

277A.345 Counties whose population is 700,000 or more: Establishment of regional rapid transit authority; development of plan for establishment of regional rapid transit system by authority.

1. In a county whose population is 700,000 or more, the commission shall establish a regional rapid transit authority. The membership of the regional rapid transit authority must consist of:

(a) The general manager of the commission, who shall act as chair of the authority;

(b) One member appointed by the board of county commissioners;

(c) Three members, one from each of the three largest cities within the county, who are appointed by the respective governing bodies of each city;

(d) One member selected by the association of gaming establishments whose membership collectively paid the most gaming license fees to the State pursuant to NRS 463.370 in the county in the preceding year;

DRAFT

(e) One member who is selected by the economic development authority in the county;

(f) One member selected by the Department of Transportation; and

(g) One member who has expertise in urban planning and design or architecture selected by the Nevada Arts Council.

2. The regional rapid transit authority shall develop a plan for the establishment of a regional rapid transit system:

(a) In cooperation with economic development, engineering, planning, tourism and utility interests in the county; and

(b) With the goal of quantifying the implications of introducing an exclusive rapid transit system in identified corridors in the county.

3. In carrying out its duties pursuant to subsection 2, the regional rapid transit authority shall:

(a) Hold public meetings to, without limitation:

(1) Evaluate the need for and desirability of a regional rapid transit system;

(2) Assess corridor and route feasibility and desirability; and

(3) Review existing mass transit options to determine how to incorporate such options into a regional rapid transit system;

(b) Undertake an analysis of various considerations involved with introducing and implementing a regional rapid transit system in the county, including, without limitation:

(1) An assessment of the available rapid transit technologies, including, without limitation, technologies that use solar power or other renewable energy sources to minimize or eliminate the use of carbon-based fuels;

DRAFT

(2) An assessment of the opportunities, costs and constraints of corridor options, including, without limitation:

(I) An examination and evaluation of existing rail corridors and transit routes for inclusion in the regional rapid transit system;

(II) An evaluation of potential sites for stations and facilities for the regional rapid transit system; and

(III) Identification of locations in the county that would benefit most from proximity to a regional rapid transit system, including, without limitation, airports and existing or proposed special event venues such as stadiums and racetracks;

(3) Estimates as to capital and operating costs;

(4) An assessment of potential ridership and passenger demand;

(5) An assessment of the environmental impact;

(6) A potential project schedule; and

(7) An assessment of financing options and funding sources, including, without limitation:

(I) Processes for securing federal funding; and

(II) The potential for voter approval for bonds to support any portion of the regional rapid transit system.

4. On or before February 1 of each year, the regional rapid transit authority shall submit a written report to the Director of the Legislative Counsel Bureau for transmittal to the appropriate committee or committees of the Legislature. The report must set forth, without limitation:

DRAFT

(a) The activities and meetings of the authority;

(b) Any findings made by the authority regarding the analysis required by subsection 3; and

(c) The plan or current draft of the plan developed by the authority pursuant to subsection 2.

Senate Bill 149 Frequently Asked Questions

What does Senate Bill 149 do?

This bill will modernize the RTC's governing statute NRS 277A and help the RTC prepare for future changes in the transportation field. The proposed legislation makes the following changes to the statute:

- Provides the specific ability to construct, develop, and operate a high capacity transit system.
- Clarifies the authority to fund, research, and develop projects that relate to innovative transportation such as autonomous vehicles.
- Clarifies the ability to invest in transit-oriented developments.
- Adds additional tools to assist with implementing high capacity transit and innovative technologies.
- Allows the RTC to request a sales tax ballot question to support transportation projects.

DRAFT

Why do you need this bill?

This bill will codify what we are doing today and modernize our statute to give us the authority to implement innovative transportation projects beyond traditional bus services. This legislation helps prepare us for the next evolution of transportation in Nevada.

Why is the RTC helping develop innovative transportation technologies such as autonomous and connected vehicles?

One of the RTC's responsibilities is transportation planning for Southern Nevada. Part of that responsibility includes researching and developing transportation technologies that could be beneficial for the region.

What is High Capacity Transit?

High-capacity transit is a public transit system that may provide a higher level of passenger capacity in comparison to traditional bus service by potentially increasing the number of vehicles utilized by the system, the size of the vehicles, the frequency of vehicle rides, or travel speed. Some examples of high-capacity transit are bus rapid transit, light rail transit, and heavy rail.

Don't you already have the ability to construct, develop, operate and maintain a high capacity transit system?

Our existing language that discusses fixed guideway systems was primarily written for a monorail system back in the 1990s. SB 149 would expand our ability to address other forms of high capacity transit such as light rail. The existing statute is also vague, and the new language would give explicit authority to construct, develop, operate, and maintain such as system.

Can fuel tax revenue be used to support high capacity transit projects?

No, fuel tax revenue cannot be used to support high-capacity transit projects. Article 9 Section 5 of the Nevada Constitution says that any excise tax on gasoline or other motor vehicle fuel shall, except costs of administration, be used exclusively for the construction, maintenance, and repair of the public highways of this State.

What is a transit oriented development (TOD)?

A TOD is a mixed-use residential and commercial project that is designed to maximize access to a public transit system.

Why is the RTC interested in doing TODs?

Most transportation authorities in the West such as Denver, Phoenix and Salt Lake, play a critical role in facilitating TODs. TODs directly impact and benefit the RTC because they can increase transit ridership and fare revenue. Due to their walkability and access to mass transit, TODs also have the potential to decrease dependability on vehicles, which can in turn reduce congestion and improve air quality. Southern Nevada Strong's Regional Plan, the region's first federally recognized plan, also prioritizes TODs because they help create complete communities by seamlessly integrating housing, transportation, and economic development.

DRAFT

What other entities can request a ballot question?

In Nevada, other entities such as library districts and school districts can work with their county to propose a ballot question.

What would the process be for getting a question on the ballot?

The RTC board would submit a recommendation to increase the sales tax to the County Commission. The recommendation must specify the proposed tax rate, the period the tax will be imposed, and the type of transportation project the tax will support. Once the recommendation is submitted to the County Commission, the County Commission will determine whether it wants to submit a ballot question at the next general election regarding the recommended tax. If the County Commission chooses to submit the question, then the County Commission will follow the standard steps for including a question on the general election's ballot.

Why did you include mayors as individuals who can be on your board, doesn't the statute already allow this?

Since some city charters in Nevada, including Sparks, do not designate mayors as city council members, this change merely makes it clear that both mayors and city council members are eligible to be members of the RTC board.

Why did you include the provision requiring the RTC to adhere to applicable land use regulations and interlocal agreements?

In building transportation projects, we wanted it to be clear that the RTC would adhere to the appropriate jurisdictions' land use and zoning regulations. We also thought it was important to clarify that the changes made in this statute would not impact the interlocal agreements we have with other government agencies.

What is the purpose of the liberal construction clause?

The liberal construction clause allows a judge to consider the object and purpose of a statute when reviewing the statute. This clause will help avoid any issues if the overall purpose of the statute indicates the RTC can do something, but it is not specifically said in our statute that we can do it such as pilot programs in relation to transportation. The liberal construction clause is needed to give the RTC the flexibility to address new technologies and other transportation issues that might not be specifically stated in our statute

AN ACT relating to motor carriers; requiring certain motor carriers of passengers which transport certain persons with disabilities to ensure that each vehicle used for the transport is equipped with first-aid equipment and each driver of the vehicle receives training in first-aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation; providing a penalty; and providing other matters properly relating thereto.

Legislative Counsel's Digest:

Under existing law, common motor carriers of passengers and contract motor carriers of passengers are subject to supervision and regulation by the Nevada Transportation Authority, with some exceptions. (NRS 706.166)

Section 1 of this bill requires a common motor carrier of passengers, contract motor carrier of passengers and any other person or entity, other than a taxicab motor carrier, providing a means of public conveyance and transportation operating in this State and which transports for compensation certain persons with disabilities, commonly referred to as "paratransit services," to ensure that: (1) each vehicle used in the transport is equipped with a first-aid kit; and (2) each driver of a vehicle used for the transport receives training in first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Existing law makes a violation of this requirement a misdemeanor. (NRS 706.756) Sections 2-5 of this bill make conforming changes.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEVADA, REPRESENTED IN SENATE AND ASSEMBLY, DO ENACT AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. Chapter 706 of NRS is hereby amended by adding thereto a new section to read as follows:

A common motor carrier of passengers, contract motor carrier of passengers or other person or entity providing a means of public conveyance and transportation operating within this State which, pursuant to the requirements of 49 C.F.R. § 37.121, transports for compensation within this State persons with disabilities who are eligible pursuant to 49 C.F.R. § 37.123 for the transportation shall ensure that:

1. Each vehicle used for the transport is equipped with a first-aid kit; and

2. Each driver of a vehicle used for the transport receives training in the use and administration of first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation that is conducted in accordance with the standards of the American Heart Association, the American Red Cross or any similar organization that includes certification in:

(a) First aid; and

(b) Cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Sec. 2. NRS 706.011 is hereby amended to read as follows:

706.011 As used in NRS 706.011 to 706.791, inclusive, and section 1 of this act, unless the context otherwise requires, the words and terms defined in NRS 706.013 to 706.146, inclusive, have the meanings ascribed to them in those sections.

Sec. 3. NRS 706.156 is hereby amended to read as follows:

706.156 1. All common and contract motor carriers and brokers are hereby declared to be, to the extent provided in this chapter:

(a) Affected with a public interest; and

(b) Subject to NRS 706.011 to 706.791, inclusive ~~[.]~~ , and section 1 of this act.

2. A purchaser or broker of transportation services which are provided by a common motor carrier who holds a certificate of public convenience and necessity may resell those services, in combination with other services and facilities that are not related to transportation, but only in a manner complying with the scope of authority set forth in the certificate of the common motor carrier.

The Authority shall not prohibit or restrict such a purchaser or broker from reselling those transportation services to any person based upon that person's affiliation, or lack of affiliation, with any group.

Sec. 4. NRS 706.745 is hereby amended to read as follows:

706.745 1. The provisions of NRS 706.386 and 706.421 do not apply to:

(a) Ambulances;

(b) Hearses; or

(c) Common motor carriers or contract motor carriers that are providing transportation services pursuant to a contract with the Department of Health and Human Services entered into pursuant to NRS 422.27495.

2. A common motor carrier that enters into an agreement for the purchase of its service by an incorporated city, county or regional transportation commission is not required to obtain a certificate of public convenience and necessity to operate a system of public transit consisting of:

(a) Regular routes and fixed schedules;

(b) Nonemergency medical transportation of persons to facilitate their participation in jobs and day training services as defined in NRS 435.176 if the transportation is available upon request and without regard to regular routes or fixed schedules;

(c) Nonmedical transportation of persons with disabilities without regard to regular routes or fixed schedules; or

(d) In a county whose population is less than 100,000 or an incorporated city within such a county, nonmedical transportation of persons if the transportation is available by reservation 1 day in advance of the transportation and without regard to regular routes or fixed schedules.

3. Under any agreement for a system of public transit that provides for the transportation of passengers that is described in subsection 2:

(a) The public entity shall provide for any required safety inspections; or

(b) If the public entity is unable to do so, the Authority shall provide for any required safety inspections.

4. In addition to the requirements of subsection 3, under an agreement for a system of public transit that provides for the transportation of passengers that is described in:

(a) Paragraph (a) of subsection 2, the public entity shall establish the routes and fares.

(b) Paragraph (c) or (d) of subsection 2, the common motor carrier:

(1) May provide transportation to any passenger who can board a vehicle with minimal assistance from the operator of the vehicle.

(2) ~~[Shall]~~ Except as otherwise provided in section 1 of this act, shall not offer medical assistance as part of its transportation service.

5. In a county whose population:

(a) Is less than 700,000, a nonprofit carrier of elderly persons or persons with disabilities is not required to obtain a certificate of public convenience and necessity to operate as a common motor carrier of such passengers only, but such a carrier is not exempt from inspection by the Authority to determine whether its vehicles and their operation are safe.

(b) Is 700,000 or more, a nonprofit carrier of elderly persons or persons with disabilities is not required to obtain a certificate of public convenience and necessity to operate as a common motor carrier of such passengers only, but:

(1) Only if the nonprofit carrier:

(I) Does not charge for transportation services;

(II) Provides transportation services pursuant to a contract with the Department of Health and Human Services entered into pursuant to NRS 422.27495; or

(III) Enters into an agreement for the purchase of its service by an incorporated city, county or regional transportation commission; and

(2) Such a carrier is not exempt from inspection by the Authority to determine whether its vehicles and their operation are safe.

6. An incorporated city, county or regional transportation commission is not required to obtain a certificate of public convenience and necessity to operate a system of public transportation.

7. Before an incorporated city or a county enters into an agreement with a common motor carrier for a system of public transit that provides for the transportation of passengers that is described in paragraph (c) or (d) of subsection 2 in an area of the incorporated city or an area of the county, it must determine that:

(a) There are no other common motor carriers of passengers who are authorized to provide such services in that area; or

(b) Although there are other common motor carriers of passengers who are authorized to provide such services in the area, the common motor carriers of passengers do not wish to provide, or are not capable of providing, such services.

Sec. 5. NRS 706.756 is hereby amended to read as follows:

706.756 1. Except as otherwise provided in subsection 2, any person who:

(a) Operates a vehicle or causes it to be operated in any carriage to which the provisions of NRS 706.011 to 706.861, inclusive, and section 1 of this act, apply without first obtaining a certificate, permit or license, or in violation of the terms thereof;

(b) Fails to make any return or report required by the provisions of NRS 706.011 to 706.861, inclusive, and section 1 of this act or by the Authority or the Department pursuant to the provisions of NRS 706.011 to 706.861, inclusive ~~[;]~~ , and section 1 of this act;

(c) Violates, or procures, aids or abets the violating of, any provision of NRS 706.011 to 706.861, inclusive ~~[;]~~ , and section 1 of this act;

(d) Fails to obey any order, decision or regulation of the Authority or the Department;

(e) Procures, aids or abets any person in the failure to obey such an order, decision or regulation of the Authority or the Department;

(f) Advertises, solicits, proffers bids or otherwise is held out to perform transportation as a common or contract carrier in violation of any of the provisions of NRS 706.011 to 706.861, inclusive ~~[;]~~ , and section 1 of this act;

(g) Advertises as providing:

(1) The services of a fully regulated carrier; or

(2) Towing services,

↪ without including the number of the person's certificate of public convenience and necessity or contract carrier's permit in each advertisement;

(h) Knowingly offers, gives, solicits or accepts any rebate, concession or discrimination in violation of the provisions of this chapter;

(i) Knowingly, willfully and fraudulently seeks to evade or defeat the purposes of this chapter;

(j) Operates or causes to be operated a vehicle which does not have the proper identifying device;

(k) Displays or causes or permits to be displayed a certificate, permit, license or identifying device, knowing it to be fictitious or to have been cancelled, revoked, suspended or altered;

(l) Lends or knowingly permits the use of by one not entitled thereto any certificate, permit, license or identifying device issued to the person so lending or permitting the use thereof; or

(m) Refuses or fails to surrender to the Authority or Department any certificate, permit, license or identifying device which has been suspended, cancelled or revoked pursuant to the provisions of this chapter,

↳ is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 6 months, or by both fine and imprisonment.

2. Any person who, in violation of the provisions of NRS 706.386, operates as a fully regulated common motor carrier without first obtaining a certificate of public convenience and necessity or any person who, in violation of the provisions of NRS 706.421, operates as a contract motor carrier without first obtaining a permit is guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished:

(a) For a first offense within a period of 12 consecutive months, by a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $1,000. In addition to the fine, the person may be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 6 months.

(b) For a second offense within a period of 12 consecutive months and for each subsequent offense that is committed within a period of 12 consecutive months of any prior offense under this subsection, by a fine of $1,000. In addition to the fine, the person may be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 6 months.

3. Any person who, in violation of the provisions of NRS 706.386, operates or permits the operation of a vehicle in passenger service without first obtaining a certificate of public convenience and necessity is guilty of a gross misdemeanor.

4. If a law enforcement officer witnesses a violation of any provision of subsection 2 or 3, the law enforcement officer may cause the vehicle to be towed immediately from the scene and impounded in accordance with NRS 706.476.

5. The fines provided in this section are mandatory and must not be reduced under any circumstances by the court.

6. Any bail allowed must not be less than the appropriate fine provided for by this section.

Sec. 6. The provisions of NRS 354.599 do not apply to any additional expenses of a local government that are related to the provisions of this act.

Extreme Vetting and the Muslim Ban

On September 24, the president made his temporary Muslim ban permanent, issuing a proclamation that indefinitely bars almost all travel to the United States from a list of countries. Its impact is overwhelmingly on Muslims. The Trump administration has also promised and begun implementing “extreme vetting” of travelers to the U.S.

How does the new Muslim ban work, and how is it related to “extreme vetting”? How do these policies affect immigrant and Muslim communities? What visitor and immigrant screening procedures are already in place, and how do they work?

Join the Brennan Center and New York Immigration Coalition for a discussion on extreme vetting, the Muslim ban, and the implications for American democracy.

EMV rollout: customer engagement opportunity

Mainstream media have picked up the EMV rollout this week, but bankers have been weighing this for some time. While EMV will reduce card-present fraud, a surge of other frauds may result. LifeLock is sponsoring a Jan. 22 webinar to explore how best to engage with customers. Sign up now

MasterCard's innovation video lookback is "priceless"

Remember the pager? Remember the telex? Remember the boom-box? Those are just three of the 15 past innovations that are oh-so-old news, as portrayed in a quick YouTube video published by MasterCard. The payments giant titled the video "Top 15 Innovations of All Time That We Won't Miss in 2015." Give you one guess what #15 is. (Hints: lettuce, kale, dead presidents, moohlah…) View the video

"MOOCs" keep going, but not towards the old hype

Pundits once thought MOOCs—massive open online courses—would replace higher education as we know it. But in an interview and video on the Wharton School's site, Daphne Koller, co-founder of the largest MOOC, Coursera, discusses where this disruptive educational channel is really heading. An excerpt:

"If you think about the 'Gartner Hype Cycle,' I think we're emerging from the 'trough of disillusionment.' The previous hype was completely unmerited because it was based on the presumption that MOOCs were going to put universities out of business, which is an idea that we neither endorsed nor believed was right." [INSIDER]

President Trump Continues to Spread False Claims of Rampant Voter Fraud

President Trump is at it again. Ahead of a re-election campaign stop in New Hampshire, the president told reporters that he would have won the Granite State if it weren't for widespread voter fraud.

"New Hampshire should have been won last time, except we had a lot of people come in at the last moment, which was a rather strange situation," Trump said. "Thousands and thousands of people coming in from locations unknown. But I knew where their location was."

So, how rare is voter fraud really? We reached out to those who would know best: the local officials who actually ran the election in 2016.

Election officials across 42 jurisdictions who oversaw the tabulation of 23.5 million votes in the 2016 general election estimated only 30 incidents of suspected noncitizen voting — that accounts for .0001 percent of the votes studied.

Six Months Ahead of the First Primary, Has Congress Done Enough to Protect the 2020 Election?

Our latest analysis finds that more than 1-in-10 voters could still cast their ballots on paperless voting machines, and 34 percent of all local election jurisdictions are using voting machines that are at least a decade old. This a serious risk to our democracy.

Last year, Congress provided $380 million to help with upgrades, but it wasn't enough. Take a look at Brennan Center's latest analysis to learn where we've made progress, and what's still to be done ahead of 2020.

Fewer People in Prison Doesn't Mean More Crime

Decades of criminal justice reform is beginning to show results. Take a look at our new report for the details.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

SEC's New Cybersecurity Appointment And What It Tells Us

The creation of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's cybersecurity policy senior adviser position, coupled with the substantial industry experience of the post's first incumbent, will likely have significant and immediate consequences for the financial industry, including an uptick in the number of cybersecurity investigations, say attorneys with King & Spalding LLP.

GSA Transactional Data Reporting Program: Should You Do It?

Whether the U.S. General Services Administration's pilot "transactional data reporting" program will produce the intended cost savings or ultimately result in a net reduction in the compliance burden Federal Supply Schedule contractors face remains to be seen. What is certain is that contractors that are eligible, but not required, to participate should carefully consider the pros and cons before taking the plunge, say attorneys with Crowell & Moring LLP.

9th Circ. CWA Case Poses Risks For Coal Ash Litigation

With its decision in Hawai'i Wildlife Fund v. County of Maui, the Ninth Circuit will be the first federal appellate court in a decade to address whether discharges to groundwater that eventually reach navigable waters are governed by the Clean Water Act. The ruling could influence pending and future cases related to CWA liability for coal ash contamination, say Joshua Frank and Martha Thomsen at Baker Botts LLP.

The State Of Secured Lending In Mexico

Several recent changes in the Mexican laws governing secured transactions have made lending against personal property, such as equipment, inventory and accounts receivable, more attractive. Nevertheless, there are indications that there is still resistance by some lenders in Mexico to relying on such security, say attorneys with Strasburger & Price LLP, Struck Palafox y Perez Ortega SC and Bufete Villegas.

Subject: child support order recieved in mail and your office protecting a criminal using the family system to commit fraud and criminal offenses pleading-paper-lined-pdf publication by pete.pdf

Dear Mr. Steve Wolfson< District Attorney;

I Peter Deiana in proper person, refuse from this day forward to be bullied, threatened and treated with such a disgusting disregard to my civil and constitutional rights by your office, the family court system as a whole and the attorneys that continuously get well compensated for openly helping their clients that have the financial means to hire these dirtbags commit serious offenses; criminal offenses and hide them from prosecution under the cover of the family courts. Now this isn't true for all litigants; It stands true if you are of the female sex you very easily can get away with serious serious criminal offenses, offenses that carry felony d and worse charges! In my particular cases (plural) the justice system we know as family courts has failed me twice. completely ruined my life to where i've contemplated taking my own life. both these women have committed serious criminal offenses against myself your office and the courts. I have more than enough proof; I have presented my obligation of proof in the first case with Rebecca Deiana, Stiltz, and whatever she has changed her name to now, Hinkle I believe. Multiple jurisdictions multiple courts multiple child support offices multiple counties and states and always the legal system fails to take responsibility and do what they are obligated to do.... RIGHT THE WRONGS AND PUNISH THE CRIMINALS> It has been shown to me over and over again that the judges that have been elected to their benches fail us as men over and over and over again because it is much easier for them to continue their careers under the cover of "the norm and acceptable" then to take a stand and risk the persecution by their piers then to believe that the things that I and i'm sure 1000's o other men have accused these women of doing; THAT IN FACT THESE WOMEN ARE VERY CAPABLE OF COMMITTING THESE GROSS AND COMPLETE LACKING OF REMORSE AND MORAL STANDARDS IF ANY STANDARDS AT ALL!!! Somebody needs to take a stand and change your spineless practices and start prosecuting these women and judges and attorneys that are ruining; completely ruining countless lives day in and day out and at day end never giving them another thought as the add to our homeless, add to our drug addiction epidemic, add to the horrible rise in suicides and worse of all add the number of children that grow up without a father, when the father wanted nothing more than to be a father to that child and the growing number of our youth that are suffering from mental instability issues handed down from you officials showing total disregard to the long term consequences of your actions. When did we stop caring about what was right and wrong and right in front of our faces and start ruining lives because this book says here says such and such is the only scenario possible and this party should always be given no doubt to the statements being true. Over the last six to seven months I have studied so much on family law and scenarios that are documented as case study and opinions and turned into the bible on how to deal with certain offenses, to the point that nobody has to think nobody has to use common sense just open the book and the book will cast a shadow on the offending party and on with the ruining of lives we go. so much studying it literally made me sick to see how many regulations and statues as case studies and laws where written and published being completely sexiest and against the man from beginning to end. That is what got us here today, it started a movement by these women that should be stripped of their parental rights for doing these acts toward and directly affecting the innocent children the family courts says they act in the best interest of. Completely not A TRUE STATEMENT ON THE COURTS PART. iF i CAN TAKE THE N.R.S THAT EXPRESSES HOW THE SYSTEM SHOULD COME TO THEIR CONCLUSION ON THE BEST INTEREST OF CHILD, AND I can with out a doubt that these women especially Ashley have violated ever one of the regulating factors of these guidelines and ultimately gets ignored and swept aside by rebuttals of complete lies false allegations and perjury and all out fraud. Well I am going to be making that stand myself!!! I WILL NOT GO ALONG WITH EITHER COURT ORDER OF SUPPORT FROM THIS DAY FORWARD. Instead I will be continuing this front against both parties, the courts and the lawyers at fault for letting these behaviors and actions continue on without consequence but with out a doubt is ruining countless amounts of lives day in and day out. This needs to change. I have written a great number of emails to a great number of agencies and offices about the specifics of my current case or onset of false allegations, false police reports, crimes against my person and crimes against public, perjury, fraud upon the courts, fraudulently presenting herself as a victim of specific domestic violence acts that she Ashley, actually committed against myself in the direct presence of my children, child abduction and serious onset of alienation.Alienation of affection; a multiple year onslot of alienation delivered by my wifes mother directly and personally. And more, all provable, most are very obvious. obvious and very provable case of multi state criminal conspiracy involving a minimum of 5 individuals which includes but not limited to false testimonies/willingness to provide false testimonies, to do with false criminal allegations to gain imprisonment of myself and judgements in my wife's favor. including my wife's attorney, her brother her mother her father her friend and our babysitter Jamie Houston resident of enterprise, southern highlands in southern las vegas and runs a day care that is past legal capacity on most days in reference to license, employees, space and number of children. Her brother Rob Mcclelland resides in albuquerque new mexico, Mother and father Kathi and Bob McClelland from Tucumcari, new mexico and own 2 pharmacys and is currently under their second serious investigation by the pharmacy board for illegal practices and distributions of controlled and dangerous drugs. It should be known I am a main witness and have provided a great deal of evidence in this case with the pharmacy board of new mexico and these people know this to be true and I propose a threat to their fraudulent and illegal lifestyle. Attorney is Gary Zernich and is very privy to all this information and knows it to be true and has taken a personal interest toward destroying my character and continues to help his client in her hidden and illegal agendas. Now know all these statements to be very true and that I do hold evidence and proof to all accusations i have made in this statement and all others I have written and will continuously write and distribute thru out until Justice; true justice prevails. And I will take this to the upper courts and will continue to insist somebody of authority stands up and takes charge and these individuals are rightfully charged and prosecuted with the criminal charges they deserve and my children are reunited with me and my civil, personal and constitutional rights are no longer being violated. I will not tolerate being illegally and fraudulently being stripped of my rights to a father/child relationship for 6-7 months now; completely denied over 600 attempts at visitation will also being abused under the cover of the family courts. And I definitely will not fund these women's fraudulent and illegal activities with $1600.00 a month in judgements against me. I havent made $1600.00 a month in at least the last 3 months!!!! and recently find myself unemployed. Even though my wifes reward from success in her agendas against me is becoming a million aire (no longer cut off from family money and inheratances by her mother) I will have no argument to taking care of my responsibilities but not under these circumstances. I will prevail in complete reversals in both cases. If you feel that it proves a point or somehow helps or fixes anything by putting me in jail, then so be it. I will add wrongful imprisonment to the fight and will immediately continue my fights for justice against the unbelievable actions of these women the second and every time I am released.

Thank you in advance,

Pete Deiana
cell [redacted]

I am writing every news channel in town asking, pleading and begging each and every station to please check into airing and investigate the unfair and corrupt going on at Las Vegas' family courts... especially my current case which is completely riddled with lies, multiple counts of fraud and at different levels,' Ashley Deiana represented by Gary Zernich attorney and fraudulently as it gets Susie Lewis victim Advocate vs Peter Deiana, judge assigned Denise L. Gentile case D-15-509839-D

Child abduction and parental alienation. My wife has concealed my kids from me for going on 7 months now. In order to try to cover up her wrong doings she has hired an attorney who I know knows of her true intentions and illegal actions, which makes him in the wrong by every means. There are regulations he has to follow that would hold him himself liable for charges along side of his clients if not followed and he still continues to aid her in her illegal actions. Once in family court the women's word is gold. For about 7 months instead of concentrating on a divorce and custody case I've had to put all my attention toward fighting false allegations, false police reports, keep from being wrongfully imprisoned, restraining and protective orders obtained under false pretensions, false reports or domestic violence on my behalf (there was but was her that attacked and assaulted me with closed fists in the presence of our children), and her fraudulently playing the role of a battered women's victim and receiving and openly accepting benefits set aside to aid actual battered women along with placing my kids into this role as well. I have no money to fight this but am doing my best studying every waking hr not at work and filing what i can. I have put in 2 applications to continue without paying filing fees and both have been ignored and the courts so far have overdrawn my account for $300.00 that i don have extra to replenish that account. My wife has endless funds available; the main reason all this happened is because her mother cut her off financially and rewrote wills cutting her from any and all family money's and inheritances unless she left me. They have millions of dollar's. This all has caused great damage to me professionally, mentally, physically, sociably, and has greatly threatened and damaged my relationship with my children along with my character. And being in family courts I have no avenues to take, every authority I try to file charges with says no it is family courts problem. We'll family courts are letting her get away with practically murder!! Most illegally actions along with the previously forgotten to mention criminal conspiracy involving at least 5 others all hold a charge yield a felony D count. And my hands are tied, it would seem that because she's a women in the family court system, she is granted immunity from her illegal activity. These going on are very wrong in every-way; moral, constitutionally, violates civil and constitutional rights, father's rights and ethically with 2 innocent children caught in the middle. The main objective her and her conspirators are trying to achieve is 1: cover up the fact that she is and always has been the aggressor not the victim, she committed a violent assault on her husband in the presence of our children while the husband/father was trying to remove himself and retreat from the confrontation that she so willingly turned combative. noted that husband did not

Examining the Cost-Effectiveness of DC plans vs. DB plans

By Truong Bui, Reason Foundation

Critics of pension reform aiming at replacing defined benefit (DB) plans with defined contribution (DC) plans often argue that DB plans are more cost-effective thanks to their superior investment returns and annuity feature. A recent paper by pension expert Josh B. McGee at the Manhattan Institute examines the validity of those claims. Below are the key findings of the paper:

- Previous reports that found higher investment returns for DB plans overestimated those returns by conflating the effects of plan size and plan design (bigger plans tend to earn higher returns than smaller plans). Correcting for this bias considerably reduces the performance gap between DB plans and DC plans. The paper finds that the gap is generally not statistically significant.
- Accounting for plan size also shows negligible differences in money-management fees between DB plans DC plans
- A proper cost comparison between DB plans and DC plans must include the cost of carrying pension debt, which is a significant cost driver for DB plans. For example, carrying a 10 percent pension debt would increase annual cost as a percentage of payroll by about 70 percent, and carrying a 20 percent pension debt would increase the cost by 140 percent.
- Limited annuitization in private DC plans is largely the result of federal regulation. Yet, many private DC plans do offer annuities. Moreover, public DC plans not subject to such regulation can and have provided annuities that are priced similarly to those provided by public DB plans.

Paying Down Unfunded Pension Liabilities Through Asset Sales and Leases

By Leonard Gilroy, Reason Foundation

State and local governments across the nation are facing massive unfunded public pension liabilities, with estimates ranging anywhere from $1.1 trillion to $4.7 trillion. Fortunately, there is now a robust discussion about pension reform, especially policies that are designed to make pension systems more financially sustainable and avoid additional unfunded liabilities.

However, there has been relatively little discussion about how to reduce existing unfunded liabilities, mainly because significant reductions in already-promised benefits receive little public support and face major legal and political obstacles. There is thus an urgent need to fund those liabilities in ways that impose the least additional burden on taxpayers.

One promising strategy that policymakers are starting to consider is the sale or lease of government assets-such as land, buildings, infrastructure or enterprises-and the use of proceeds to pay down existing pension debts and thereby put public pension systems on a healthier financial footing. A recent brief by Reason Foundation considers such an approach as a complement to comprehensive pension reform efforts that seek to reduce future unfunded liabilities by shifting away from traditional defined-benefit pension systems.

Proposed Pension Initiative Threatens the California Rule

By Adam Crepelle, Reason Foundation

California unions have taken issue with a proposed statewide pension reform initiative that would give voters "the power to approve or reject compensation and retirement benefits of government employees." Public employee unions do not like the initiative and are particularly concerned about its potential to overturn the "California Rule."

The California Rule is a 1955 California court creation that forbids the reduction of pension benefits for current government employees unless the reduction is accompanied by an offsetting increase in benefits. A consequence of the California Rule is that pension benefits for public employees can never be decreased, even if the costs of the pension benefits are unsustainable. Thus, the California Rule limits pension reform efforts to future employees-those who haven't been hired yet.

Granting contractual protection to pension benefits a worker has already earned is appropriate. Future pension changes, for work yet to be performed, are different matter. Employees do not have contractual rights to pension benefits they have not earned yet. The United States Supreme Court has held future public employee benefits, as well as any other condition of employment, can be changed. Yet, the state's courts have given unearned pension benefits untouchable, sacred status.

Taking on Infrastructure, Pension Challenges in Georgia

By Leonard Gilroy, Reason Foundation

In May 2015, Georgia Gov. Nathan Deal signed into law Senate Bill 59-the Partnership for Public Facilities and Infrastructure Act-which enables the state and local governments to use public-private partnerships (PPPs) for the private financing and development of "social infrastructure," such as higher education facilities, schools, public health facilities and other public buildings. The passage of SB 59-the culmination of over two years of work to advance the concept by the bill's sponsor, State Senator Hunter Hill-places Georgia among the early leaders in providing a statewide legal framework for social infrastructure PPPs, alongside pioneers like Virginia, Texas and Florida.

At the same time, Sen. Hill sponsored legislation to transition the state teachers' pension system from a traditional defined-benefit pension plan to a hybrid defined-benefit/defined-contribution plan that would have lowered financial risks to the state and provided a more equitable retirement system for teachers of all experience levels. Like many pension plans covering public school teachers, the current system punishes younger teachers by backloading retirement benefits, pushing the bulk of benefit accumulation toward the years close to retirement.

Reason Foundation Director of Government Reform Leonard Gilroy recently interviewed Sen. Hill on his social infrastructure PPP legislation, the need to reform the state teachers' pension system, and more.

New Jersey Residents Will Get Fewer Services as Public Pension Costs Skyrocket

By Leonard Gilroy, Reason Foundation

It's no secret that New Jersey's government worker pension systems are a looming fiscal disaster. What may not be clear to taxpayers at this point is that unless meaningful reforms are enacted to rein in the problem, spending on pensions will increasingly poach funds from other government services. In effect, spending on government services like K-12 education, policing and higher education will be crowded out by the costs of benefits for a workforce that is no longer working.

The New Jersey Supreme Court recently ruled that the Christie administration's $1.6 billion cut to the state's required annual pension contribution for 2015 fiscal year to help balance the budget was legal. While the administration may be breathing a sigh of relief that it won't have to restore those cuts given the state's empty coffers, the ruling simply leaves more pension debts to be paid by future taxpayers.

Worse, pension costs are set to skyrocket regardless. The state treasurer estimates that those costs are set to rise to almost $6 billion annually in the coming years. It's important to understand that the state is in this predicament because its leaders systematically underfunded pensions going back at least a decade, in part because they preferred to spend the money on other state services.

California Public Employee Pension Funds Prepare for Year of Crappy Returns

By Scott Shackford, via Reason.com

During the big recession, California's pension funds took a pounding, earning just one percent in returns in 2012, by way of example. That is a bit of a problem when the fund promises 7.5 percent returns over the long run to retirees. The pension fund's assets, as a whole, lost a quarter of its value during the financial crisis. Since the pensions are guaranteed, though, the plunge required municipalities and school districts to increase their contributions, thus adding even more to local government financial problems.

The funds bounced back big time last year, with the California Public Employee Retirement System's (CalPERS) returns hitting 18.4 percent. But, the Wall Street Journal notes, the pensions are set to underperform again this year.

Busting the Myth That Actuarial Assumptions Drive Costs

By Truong Bui, Reason Foundation

In this article , Brian Septon at The Terry Group lucidly explains the flawed logic in "managing" actuarial assumptions to manage pension costs. The article addresses a common misconception that pension plans can reduce or raise costs by adjusting their actuarial assumptions. For example, it is often believed that assuming a higher rate of return reduces costs by lowering contributions, or that using newer mortality tables that reflect improved life expectancy increases costs.

Those beliefs are wrong. Assuming a higher rate of return doesn't reduce costs if actual returns fall short of the assumption. Newer mortality tables simply recognize the reality that people are living longer and pension costs have already increased. Failing to recognize that reality doesn't reduce costs. The truth is: "Assumptions don't drive costs. Reality drives costs."

While actuarial assumptions don't change costs, they do affect the cost allocation over time. A higher than warranted assumed rate of return reduces today's contributions at the expense of future taxpayers.

Pension Bonds Encourage Underfunding

By Truong Bui, Reason Foundation

Many economists consider Pension Obligation Bonds (POB) as risky gimmicks attempting to gamble on borrowed money. A recent article at ProPublica explains how a deeper problem with POBs lies not in mere investment risks, but in perverse political behavior.

Despite warning about their risks, POBs' popularity among governments seems to have not waned. According to the article, governments issued $670 million of POBs during the first half of this year, more than double the amount sold for the whole last year. And more is yet to come.

Besides investment profits, new accounting rules may be an important factor driving the current POB boom. The new GASB rules require heavily unfunded plans to use a lower discount rate to value liabilities. This inadvertently encourages poorly funded plans to borrow money to resume using the high discount rate, creating a false impression that the funded status is better than it really is.

Pension bonds themselves are not as much a problem as the ensuing political behavior. Plans that issue POBs tend to subsequently have "pension holidays", failing to pay the required contributions in full. A review by ProPublica of the 20 largest POB issues since 1996 found that governments in three-fourths of the issues underpaid pension contributions after the bond sales. This is consistent with public choice theory: issuing POBs makes the pension plan look artificially better, allowing politicians with short-term political horizon to shift money to more immediate needs at the expense of future taxpayers.

Pew Report on State Pension Debt

By Truong Bui, Reason Foundation

State pension plans remain to be significantly underfunded with many plans failing to properly pay annual required contributions (ARC), according to a new brief by Pew. The aggregate unfunded liability for state plans was $968 billion in 2013, and is expected to remain over $900 billion despite recent reforms and favorable investment returns. Only 24 states paid at least 95% of their ARCs in 2013, and states that consistently did so from 2003 to 2013 had pension plans that were 75 percent funded, while those states that didn't were funded at 68 percent.

Even paying the ARC in full does not necessarily improve a plan's funded status. Part of the ARC is the debt payment, intended to pay down the unfunded liability. However, many plans adopt rolling amortization policies that lead to perpetual negative amortization (i.e. the debt payment never exceeds the interest cost), so that the unfunded liability is never paid off even if the ARC is paid in full. The brief notes that new GASB accounting standards can help policymakers better evaluate the sufficiency of a plan's funding policy.

Quotable Quotes on Pension Reform

"Your political horizon is relatively short term and these types of obligations are really long term in that you're not just talking [about paying it off] over decades, but sometimes generations,"
- Todd Ely, assistant professor at the University of Colorado at Denver

"Conditions that led to large market returns in the 1980s and 1990s no longer exist. It is not reasonable to look at 30 or 40 years of returns and assume they will continue."
- Matthew Smith, state actuary for Washington

"States discount their liabilities - I think Illinois uses a discount of 7.5 percent [it's between 7 and 8] - arguing that's the expected [annual] return on their portfolio. But the expected return on a portfolio is totally irrelevant. What counts is, how risky are the claims that you have to meet? You've made a promise to your employees that you'll pay them a certain fraction of their income that is usually indexed. Which means it's a risk-free real outcome. What's the risk-free real rate? Is it anywhere near 7.5 percent? It isn't. Historically, it's like 2 percent. A 2 percent discount rate would approximately triple Illinois's pension liabilities."

- Eugene Fama, Nobel laureate in Economics

"If you're AAA or AA rated and you've got significant and visible unfunded pension obligations, you've only got one direction to go in terms of rating, and that's potentially down."
- Jeff Lipton, head of municipal research in New York at Oppenheimer & Co

"Unions do not like to draw attention to the deficits, for fear benefits will be cut. Politicians do not want to pick a fight with the unions, or increase taxes and annoy voters. Instead, states and cities tend to hope that rising markets will make the problem disappear."
- The Economist

"The recommendations made by pension actuaries, like which mortality table to use, are largely hidden from public view, but each decision ripples across decades and can have an outsize effect."
- Mary Williams Walsh, The New York Times

"The money manager knows to a penny what the fees are. The only explanation is that the pension fund has chosen not to ask the question because, from an accounting and legal perspective, those numbers have to be readily available. They are intentionally not asking because if the fees were publicly disclosed, the public would scream."
- Edward A. H. Siedle, pension fraud investigator and former lawyer at the Securities and Exchange Commission

Mayor Goodman,

I just finished speaking to Lt. Kenny Delzer, the Sheriff's nomination to serve on the Audit Oversight Committee. I am very happy with him and I think he would make a great addition.

Additionally, Trish Truesdell forwarded a Board Interest form for Joseph Throneberry who is a Certified Fraud Examiner and Principle Fraud Investigator for several years. I do not know him well but have seen him at the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners meetings. He would also be a great addition.

My question is who do you think. Could we talk for a moment.

Hi Mayor! Two years ago (yes he kept the email!) Jon Ralston asked us about this whether you were considering returning the money he gave your campaign, and after talking with you we responded you were aware of the issue and would wait and see what the outcome of the investigation is,
Now that he has been indicted Jon wants to know whether you are planning to return the money he donated to your campaign.
Feel free to call me if you want to chat, I wanted to email you this so you had the PDF.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge

Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

PINs are not the key to EMV security gains

There's a view in the payments world that only EMV cards that are paired with PINs ("chip and PIN") will provide protection from fraud. In a letter to the editor of The Hill, Doug Johnson of the American Bankers Association, wrote: "Not a single major data breach over the last few years could have been prevented with a PIN." The breaches were caused by criminals exploiting weaknesses in retailers' systems, he said. Cards with EMV chips, Johnson continued, produce a one-time transaction code that can't be guessed or reused for future payments. "The EMV chip, not the PIN, is the key to keeping sensitive information safe," said Johnson. Read the full letter

Subject: Voting rights still under attack

Dear Robert & Alice,

Voting is our fundamental right as Americans. But across our history, it's a fundamental right routinely under attack.

On this day in 1965, the Voting Rights Act became law. It was a landmark bill — it guaranteed voting protections for African Americans after nearly a century of systematic second-class citizenship and racially-motivated policy decisions.

More than 50 years later, voting rights are STILL under attack. On the anniversary of this crucial act of freedom, it's more important than ever that we protect the ballot box for all Nevadans and all Americans.

The only way to honor the legacy of the Voting Rights Act is to USE YOUR VOTE. Click here to say you'll make your voice heard in November >>

I'M VOTING

As our governor, I'll be committed to ensuring every law-abiding Nevadan is eligible to vote. But we can only do that if YOU speak up this November. If we're not voting, we're not winning. And if Adam Laxalt makes it into the governor's office, I fear our that fundamental right will be in peril.

So make yourself heard now. Add your name, join your neighbors, and promise you'll be voting with us this November.

It's too important to stay silent. Use your vote to protect your vote.

Thank you,

Steve Sisolak

Hi Mayor! Two years ago (yes he kept the email!) Jon Ralston asked us about this whether you were considering returning the money he gave your campaign, and after talking with you we responded you were aware of the issue and would wait and see what the outcome of the investigation is,
Now that he has been indicted Jon wants to know whether you are planning to return the money he donated to your campaign.
Feel free to call me if you want to chat, I wanted to email you this so you had the PDF.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

White Paper - Mobile Account Opening: Solving The Convenience-Risk Conundrum - Download White Paper Now >

Mobile devices dominate consumer interactions with financial institutions—except account opening, because of fraud and compliance concerns. The solution lies in using mobile's unique capabilities

Most of the alternative financial technology (fintech) service providers that compete with traditional financial institutions offer digital account opening. It's the easiest and most convenient path between consumers and the financial experience they expect. Mercator Advisory Group analyst Alex Johnson believes banks must add this capability or risk losing new accounts. The challenge is how to design a mobile account opening process that is seamless for the applicant and safe for the institution.

In this Mercator Advisory Group white paper, sponsored by Mitek, you will learn:

- The current state of mobile account opening and why the trickle of new account openings will become a flood
- The conflict between greater customer convenience and the challenge of meeting "Know Your Customer" requirements and controlling fraud
- How the embedded capabilities of mobile devices—image capture, biometrics, and geolocation—can resolve this conflict and improve identification and verification
- Three criteria useful in evaluating the optimal mobile solution

Well, this is certainly…interesting. I do not recall having seen or heard of such communications from this person until now. I will forward the string to the Fusion Center to follow up on. If his message reached Ted Moody prior to his retirement, he would have sent it along to SNCTC as well. If so, they will have a file started on this person and any communications they may have had with him since. His initial warning in May 2014 has yet to pan out and with no specifics to go on, there's not much we can do.

I recommend your response read something to the effect of:

"Mr. Almon, thank you for sharing your concerns about terrorism and its potential impact to the Las Vegas area. I have recently expressed my own concerns directly with Secretary Johnson of the Department of Homeland Security. As a city, we invest in many resources to ensure the safety of the community and the visitors we serve. As you know, we cannot prevent every possible act of violence or terrorism. We work very hard to ensure communication, cooperation and coordination with our local government agencies, the private sector and our state and federal partners to be prepared to achieve our 5 mission areas: prevent, protect, mitigate, respond, recover from terror attack.

I am forwarding your concerns to our Joint Terrorism Task Force and the Southern Nevada Counter Terrorism Center for further investigation. If you have knowledge of specific planned targets, modes of attack, or dates and times of planned attack, please file a SAR (Suspicious Activity Report) as soon as possible with our Counter Terrorism Center. This report may be sent anonymously if so desired."

I hope this is satisfactory for your use. Please let me know if he persists with non-specific information about how much danger we are in. Thank you!

Subject: PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL FOR REVIEW BY MAYOR GOODMAN RE: TERRORISM THREAT

The Honorable Mayor Carolyn Goodman:

I am contacting you concerning the information on terrorism below. Due to 2 incidents in Las Vegas and my familiarity with terrorism, I sent the email below to a Las Vegas commander, and have since contacted other commanders, corporate, and a Las Vegas politician with my concerns. Unfortunately, the response was as inadequate as the response the FBI agents, civilians, and well known individuals experienced when warning top DC officials about 9/11. This is why I and others are so reluctant to contact authorities concerning the issue, and specifically why I hesitated to contact the Las Vegas commander with my original warning (due to what I witnessed in Las Vegas). If it were not for the fact so many EU, Australian, Chinese, and Indian friends/kids that I know visit Las Vegas I would just ignore the situation and let it happen and then say I told you so to the media. (I am also covering myself by having proof that I did warn every authority responsible for public safety in Las Vegas, the US, and abroad.) I assure the situation is far worse than you know, and I would not underestimate it or the ruthlessness of the enemy. They have already picked out their targets and made their decision to carry out their missions no matter what. They will have to be physically stopped by and aggressive and competent campaign led by competent and aggressive law enforcement/intelligence officers.

Due to the seriousness of the situation, my ties to the EU, Australia, and other countries, I have warned Ministers that I have had previous contact with and others this week concerning issuing a travel warning to their citizens. I have not mentioned the city of concern, however as of next week I may have to. I do not want to get involved in the situation at all, I like 3 other top terrorist experts are fed up with the incompetence and politicizing of terrorism that has led to the disastrous attacks from 9/11, Paris, San Bernardino, and now Brussels. (The experts are former Clinton & Bush terrorism expert Richard Clark, former CIA agent/CNN consultant Bob Baer, and former Bin Laden desk Chief Michael Scheuer.) We have all reached this point due our being completely correct in our forecasts and strategies for addressing terrorist threats, and the individuals and entities that were listened to being dead wrong each and every time. An audit of my record on forecasting terrorist trends and events to be irrefutably accurate, and an audit of the "experts" to be irrefutably inaccurate.

The individuals that are sought after to address terrorism in the US by the government and media are not actually experts-are you aware of that? If you are counting on US or local counter terrorism officials to save Las Vegas-I would stock up on body bags, you're going to need them.

Those responsible for anti-terrorism measures in Las Vegas and the US as a whole have no idea what they are up against, nor do they have a clue as to how to negate the threat-hence why ISIS/Al Qaeda continue to beat them to the punch.

EXAMPLES:

-The only people that did not know that Ms. Prouty a terrorist mole were the Directors of the FBI and CIA (literally) that fought over her and gave her the highest awards the agencies has https://www.justice.gov/archive/opa/pr/2007/November/07_nsd_910.html http://www.cbsnews.com/news/the-case-against-nada-prouty-26-03-2010/. There are a lot more Nada Prouty's in the US committing the same act. Ms. Prouty proves a Middle Easterner cannot be vetted, there are many just like her in the US that have US passports, driver's licenses, and they are in no way who the government thinks they are right down to the names on those documents.

-This terrorist pioneer lived 2 miles down the road from me http://articles.chicagotribune.com/1985-06-19/news/8502090070_1_lebanon-david-berry-nabih-berri

I grew up here and know or have met all of the people connected to this issue and I assure you the situation is far worse than is suspected by authorities. I have met and talked to many of the individuals responsible for stopping these terrorists, and trust me-the terrorists are far ahead of the opposition.

LAS VEGAS CONNECTION

http://www.wxyz.com/news/local-news/investigations/happys-pizza-headquarters-raided-by-irs-criminal-division-dea (Las Vegas has a franchise and a lot more connections to Detroit/Dearborn than you likely are aware of. It is a case of this https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JcZHSGyos6g)

I have talked with the founders of this business several times and this case was strictly about terrorist funding as in this case http://www.mlive.com/lansing-news/index.ssf/2011/12/report_several_southeast_michi.html.

In closing, my original warning should have been ran to ground, the fact that it wasn't is proof of just how off and far behind Las Vegas is in addressing Paris and Brussels style attacks (this week every Minister from every foreign country I contacted responded with a phone call or/and email seeking further information because they now "get it".) To be direct, authorities in Las Vegas and the US have their heads in the sands regarding the issue of terrorism and must change their strategy and tactics while they still have a chance to do so. With Las Vegas having the worst inherent terrorist vulnerabilities of any major city, Las Vegas should be much more precise and aggressive in avoiding such an attack (which is possible). An attack in the manner that I have forecast would dwarf the Paris body count by a minimum of X5, however it will be worse. The intelligence, physical security, and counter measures of Las Vegas are an invitation for an attack, and the terrorist know all of the cities vulnerabilities as well as I do.

No casino pit boss, dealer, etc. could have the record of the anti-terrorism leadership and still be employed in Las Vegas, it is the equivalent to them "losing" track of a million dollars every day for a year and the casino owners and Gaming Control Board accepting any explanation he came up with as legitimate. This would never happen. The see something say something just does not work as Brussels, Paris, and San Bernardino prove with the number of people that knew and didn't talk for various reasons. The #1 reason is that people simply have no confidence in authorities taking proper action. Examine my experience with the issue, each time I am putting my life and business life in danger by even contacting authorities in Las Vegas, and not once has anyone so much as responded or asked me how and why I reached the conclusions I have reached. This is a mirror of the warning by James Woods cited below regarding 9/11-it all could have and should have been ended right then and there. The mindset of law enforcement/political leadership on the municipal level must change, at the end of the day the battle and ramifications are like all politics-local.

As you know the odds always catch up, and luck runs out. Vegas' luck is about to run out in the worst of ways. If you would like the scenario I war gamed, I will forward it upon your request.

Thank you and good luck-

Sincerely,
Jerome Almon

Sheriff Moody:

Thank you for you response and time regarding the issues below:

1)THE TERRORISM ISSUE:

As you are certainly aware of, Al Qaeda has Las Vegas as one of its top 5 main targets, specifically the Strip. I am certain that the area has been scouted and targets selected based on my experience in the area and my observations of individuals and groups while in Las Vegas. They will hit what is most familiar with them, and Las Vegas is very familiar to them. (For example the mastermind behind 911 graduated from the University of North Carolina http://edition.cnn.com/2002/US/South/12/19/al.qaeda.aggie/ .

ACTIONS THAT WILL BE TAKEN BY TERRORIST:

A) http://newyork.cbslocal.com/2014/03/19/al-qaeda-magazine-calls-for-car-bombings-in-u-s-new-york

B) http://www.cnn.com/2013/09/18/world/asia/mumbai-terror-attacks/

RECOMMENDED COUNTER MEASURES:

A) Special response teams will not get to the site in time, and must be in place PRIOR to any incident in the immediate area.
B) CONTAIN AND KILL-officers must be prepared to neutralize the terrorist at the point of attack, i.e. the attacker cannot be allowed out of the building, off the block, or off the side of the street where they attacked (Las Vegas Blvd is a perfect kill zone for a terrorist due to its geography, such as the inability to cross the Strip in certain areas combined with the natural traffic volume.) Point blank, these are the same individuals and groups that Delta Force, Navy SEALS, Army Rangers, Airforce Commandos, and Marine RECON/special forces faced on the battlefields of Iraq and Afghanistan-they are not to be under estimated. (Essentially they are Islamic special forces.) They are going to attack sooner than later.
C) Las Vegas should have its own anti-terrorism unit on the level of the NYPD's anti-terrorism unit, NYC learned its lesson the hard way 911-YOU CANNOT DEPEND ON THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TO PROTECT YOUR CITY. As you will see in the information from the Canadian CIA (CSIS) and the response to that information from both that unit and myself, the federal authorities are grossly out of touch with reality regarding terrorism.

I assure you this is not close to the worst.
I am well versed in this area as you will see due to my studies/duties as a university guest lecturer, and personal experiences however most of my experience is first hand. I left college and joined the US Army, several individuals that I attended college with left college and joined our enemy and did fight against the US in numerous war zones around the world. These individuals are supported by groups in America, and know the country as well as you and I do.

Secretary Janet Napolitano

U.S. Department of Homeland Security
Washington, DC 20528

Secretary Napolitano-

I am writing you concerning a pervasive and unacceptable sanctioned policy within the Department of Homeland Security of the sexual harassment of female traveler's entering the United States. I have been informed by numerous female travelers coming to visite me in the United States from Norway, Germany, and especially Canada that they are routinely harassed by male DHS inspectors. I find the allegations completely credible due to the carbon copy stories from the females, and the profile of the females- all attractive teen or near teen girls traveling alone. The harassment is so overt that it is impossible that supervisors are not aware of it, do not witness it, and in fact sanction it.

I have a substantial amount of both academic and field study experience in this area, and have personally witnessed the practice by DHSemployees myself. This is should be addressed in the open without hesitation. It is insulting to the female travelers, and also opens up US females to the retaliatory actions by the security personnel of other countries- which I assure has happened. Certainly with all the alleged dangers facing Americans and the gaping holes in border security at the various ports of entry, DHS does not have the luxury expending valuable energy and tax payers money on sexually harassing female travelers.

I thank you for your time and consideration and will await your reply.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

website_comments: I have had previous contacts with your office issues (specifically Bonnie Tischler). I feel it is necessary to reintroduce this information (I will send a copy of thisinformation to US Senator Carl Levin.) I have made compliants against certain procedures and individuals at the Detroit/Windsor border crossing. I also corresponded with the Canadian Minister for Immigration (Elinor Caplan) concerning the fact that even the supervisors at the Canadian border do not understand much of the information they need to concerning legitimate vs. false documentation. (I unfortunately am able to prove this point.) Meaning if say a person was on a wanted list -the Canadians often ask the person to interpret the information.
Finally the Detroit/Windsor tunnel. It is a disaster waiting to happen. Since the US checks cars AFTER they have entered the tunnel (as does Canada) -doesn't that defeat the objective of stopping a terrorist act in the tunnel? The check should happen before the tunnel is entered, and after-or the tunnel should be closed.

I originally warned a agent at a federal law enforcement entity of the threat on 9/11 and although he agreed I was correct, he took no action, stating he didn't exactly know what to do regarding the information, and that he was quite frankly stunned at the danger. Only when an individual drove through the tunnel with what appeared to be a bomb on his front seat did the politicians take the matter up, as you will see with NYC. The tunnel is in a far worse position than it was on 9/11 due to Detroit's economic collapse, the influx of more Middle Easterners into Canada, and this http://www.reuters.com/article/us-detroit-tunnel-bankruptcy-idUSBRE96O0RT20130725.

Tighter security at border hits snag

Legal issues may block U.S., Canada checks before crossing

WASHINGTON -- Checking travelers between the United States and Canada after they've crossed the border -- which some liken to checking airline passengers after they land -- is being scrutinized by officials concerned that bridges and tunnels could be vulnerable to attack.

Lawmakers are pressuring the U.S. Customs Service and Canadian officials to come up with a decision this week on whether the countries can swap inspection locations.

An alternative to paying a toll, crossing the bridge or tunnel, and then being scrutinized by Customs officials once inside the other country's territory is to do inspections before crossing.

Although the reverse inspection system is the only solution being lobbied to enhance infrastructure safety, the two nations haven't agreed on how to settle legal obstacles. An old idea revived by the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, a revised system would involve numerous agencies in both countries in the decision.

"This reverse clearance proposal has a number of sovereignty and structure issues attached to it," said Michel Proulx, spokesman for the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency in Ottawa.

"There are a lot of players involved in all of this. It's difficult to get a sound, concrete answer. No one department or agency would be able to say yes or no."

There's little to stop someone who wanted to damage the Ambassador Bridge, Detroit-Windsor Tunnel, or even Detroit Metropolitan Airport, if the crime is done before the perpetrator even gets to an inspection point, critics say.

Besides the human safety concern, destroying any one of the border-crossing points would do serious harm to the auto industry, one of the United States' economic engines, and many other businesses that rely on just-in-time delivery of material. Michigan had $70 billion in trade with Canada in 2000.

"Every time I drive through that tunnel, I expect something to happen," said Jerome Almon, a Detroiter who drives to and from Toronto at least twice a month.

"Osama bin Laden says the economy is what they want to attack, and you cannot find a more decimating effect than that bridge or tunnel on our economy. You will kill Detroit, it's over, goodbye. But think of the effect on the rest of America."

Firearms an issue

Aside from jurisdiction, the question of whether U.S. Customs agents should carry firearms in Canada is of particular concern to Canadians. Canada is known for being much less tolerant of guns than the United States.

"Our Customs officers are not armed and at this point in time we still feel there is no reason for them to be," Proulx said.

"We have a study going on right now to determine whether the tools they have are adequate to do their jobs safely and with full security. The U.S. (agents) are (armed) and definitely that would be one of the snags in the issue."

The preclearance concept does have precedent. U.S. Customs agents inspect U.S.-bound passengers at six Canadian airports so they don't have to be routed through Customs once they arrive like travelers on flights from every other country, said former Michigan Gov. James Blanchard.

He spearheaded the "open skies" agreement when he was U.S. ambassador to Canada.

The real stumbling block to doing this at bridges and tunnels will be working out how much authority each side is given to enforce the other country's laws, he said.

"You could always prevent (a suspicious passenger) from getting on the plane," Blanchard said. "The question is who arrests them, can they say 'I choose not to fly' then go home, or do we hold them?"

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Detroit, said he thinks all of the issues can be worked out.

"The only impediment here is bureaucratic impediment," he said. "Even though there's supposed to be an urgency after Sept. 11, there seems to be some unnecessary foot-dragging."

Levin and Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, sent a letter to Customs Commissioner Robert Bonner on Jan. 4, insisting on a progress report by Friday.

"It is obvious that inspecting vehicles for dangerous contents such as bombs or explosives after they enter our tunnels or cross our bridges is inadequate," they wrote.

Customs spokesman Jim Michie said he wasn't sure when a decision would be made on reverse inspections, but that it was being closely studied.

Tighter local security

Local authorities say they've taken the steps they can to bolster security.

Travelers who use the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel are no longer allowed through unless operators are certain they can make to the other side without backups, said Gordon Jarvis, president of the Detroit & Canada Tunnel Corp.

"If there is an incident and you need to get out, there is space for you to do so, and there are fewer cars in the tunnel at any one time," Jarvis said. "It also makes it much easier for us to identify when there are incidents in the tunnel."

Jarvis said reverse inspections are a viable option at the tunnel, despite the smaller queue area, compared to other crossing points like the Ambassador Bridge.

The owners of the Ambassador Bridge have installed new lighting, fencing and surveillance cameras, as well as armed security 24 hours a day, said Dan Stamper, president of the Detroit International Bridge Co. Stamper said the bridge company is paying for the extra security.

"We're not sure whose responsibility it is for the cost of security, but we are not in the position to say it's not going to be done," he said.

The bridge authority has completed plans showing that logistically, preclearance can be implemented on an interim basis within 90 days, Stamper said. In doing so, there would be the added bonus of huge efficiencies in traffic flow.

"The current six lanes that cross the border, two at the tunnel and four at the bridge, become traffic lanes and not parking lots," Stamper said. "It increases the capacity of both the tunnel and the bridge, a lot more than anything else we can do today."

Blue Water Bridge study

Bruce Campbell, the engineer manager of the Blue Water Bridge, said the proposal is being examined as part of a long-term security review of the span connecting Port Huron with Sarnia, Ontario.

With the Ambassador Bridge being the busiest U.S.-Canada entry point, carrying 12 million vehicles a year, the economic implications for the region are enormous.

"One 18-wheeler goes across that bridge every eight seconds," said Carmine Palombo, director of transportation planning at the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

The implications for the bridge and tunnel operators are significant as well.

"They're all looking at an out-of-pocket expense they hadn't anticipated," said Neil Gray, director of government affairs at the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association, which represents toll agencies.

"Nobody wants to do a toll increase to reflect this, in fact I'm not sure anyone has proposed one, but it's an issue we are all having to think about."

Protecting airports is a concern as well, though most of the attention has been on protecting aircraft against air piracy, Capt. Duane E. Woerth, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, told senators late last year.

Noting that airports in Rome and Vienna have been hit, Woerth said he's worried terrorists could attack ticket counters, check-in facilities and lines of passengers waiting outside.
Airlines, bridges and tunnels are experiencing lower traffic flow because of leisure travelers concerned about terrorist risks.
Almon, the Detroiter who travels to Toronto on business, said he's a former combat engineer with the Army and he's concerned about how easily a carload of explosives put together with store-bought material could take out the bridge or tunnel.
"At the mouth of the Detroit tunnel sits General Motors headquarters, a terrorist would get two for one with that," Almon said.

Dear Mr. Almon:

Thank you for your correspondence of July 18, 2011, regarding the proposed construction of a new bridge between Detroit and Windsor. Please accept my apologies for the delay in replying.

Again, thank you for writing and for providing me with your comments.

Yours sincerely,

Denis Lebel, P.C., M.P.

The issue with the Ambassador Bridge is equally troubled, the owner has successfully blocked a new bridge being built. The issue too closely resembles the Dubai Ports issue https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Manuel_Moroun. Ottawa wrote me 90 days after my warning to CYA and because again what I warned them about occurred.

The largest portion of the trade comes through the tunnel and bridge mentioned https://www.commerce.gov/news/blog/2014/01/secretary-pritzker-highlights-strong-economic-partnership-between-usa-and-canada

Dr. Zagar-
Good to hear from you. I am sorry I just got to my email messages, I am working on several other huge projects that all come back to the migrant issue. I will have to hook up Skype, I don't know how it works to be honest.

The situation in the States is pretty dire. We are essentially at civil war with the country collapsing socially. All of the work that you and Dr. Feinstein did and your forecasts turned out to be 100% accurate. Simply put, America bet on the wrong people with the wrong plans and now we are getting our comeuppance.

I am against the re-settling of immigrants in the US or Europe, it will most certainly lead to more conflict in both areas and the Middle East. The only hope is establishing a safe zone in Syria and Iraq, which is as close to impossible as it gets considering the collapse of the basic structures and the radicalization of the factions. Electing George Bush was the worse event that has happened to the world since WWII. I will get on Skype and send you another email asap. I am moving to Berlin to work on a large social media project in the next 30-60 days. In the meantime I am sending these articles for your review concern my thoughts on the migrant issue. Would you be able to attend a conference on the issue of the migrants and school shooter issues in Europe or the US with all expenses and a fee paid to you?

The other issue I am extremely concerned about is a threat that would end Detroit, cost America 2 million jobs in a week, and plunge the stock market to below 2008 and 911 levels. The Iran deal was done in part due to Iran has 40,000 agents in or at America's borders prepared to attack if Iran's nuclear facilities were attacked. That is the good news, the bad news is the Sunnis have 3X that many agents in the US and are preparing for their "Islamic Tet offensive." With Russia, out of necessity intervening in the Syrian/Iraq war and the US govt. giving behind the scenes approval for the Russian-Iranian-Alawite axis which will inevitably bring in Israel and the US the Sunnis will go after the US and Canadians on their own soil in a much more aggressive and massive way. My assessment is that the Chinese will be drawn into the war due the unrest with the Xinjiang Province and the Uighars. The Islamic State (IS) has spread throughout Central Asia and will take Afghanistan and defeat the Taliban in the end unless there is a "mass war event." It is my contention that Putin has decided to that. He cannot lose the Syrian-Iraq War, he cannot allow the IS to continue to grow in the Central Asian Republics, and Afghanistan, and he is not giving up Crimea, and does not have the military resources nor money to fight a prolonged war. I believe Putin is planning to use a tactical/battle field nuclear weapon (NATO appears to be thinking that way on the Ukraine which is insane). Most of the intelligence guys that I respect believe that is the only way to stop the IS/Sunnis or to completely withdraw from the Middle East. What is your opinion?
Thanks-
Jerome

(My numbers on the size of the networks mentioned are accurate I assure you. 2 other respected security/intelligence officers that have a proven track record of accuracy, agree with me. The messages I sent to US authorities were more detailed and were sent in the Spring of 2014, and the Spring and Summer of 2015.)

WARNING TO AIRLINE INDUSTRY THAT FORESAW BRUSSELS ATTACK

Sir or Madam: I am forwarding the following information sent to first responders, due to its application to your industry. To be direct, I have warned your union several times since 9/11 of these very threats, and the actions of the leadership has not matched the threat. Unfortunately, this is the same conduct of law enforcement and political leadership regarding what is now a catastrophic situation. That is, the industry will suffer huge losses in both personnel and revenue due to the lack of taking prudent steps to pre-act rather than react to obvious threats. The only hope in negating or minimizing the threat is for the travel, hotel, and tourism industries along with the pilot and flight attendant unions (and their allies) to join forces and seek to have necessary security and industry support measures put in place without political consideration. The needed measures must be completely based on the real world security and economic threat that exists, and is getting worse by the minute. The losses France and Belgium are suffering are just the beginning, and minor in compared to an Egypt Air or Russian Sharm El Sheikh incident in North America or Europe. I assure you, the threat is far worse than is known even to most of the law enforcement community.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

UNADDRESSED THREATS TO YOUR INDUSTRY

-Foreign pilots compromised by ISIS or Al Qaeda committing an act similar to the pilot of Egypt Air 990 at an airport, city, or against another passenger airliner -An attack on airports using car/truck bombs and suicide bombers/shooters against shuttle buses and the non-secure areas of the airport such as ticketing -Compromised airport personnel (this is worse than is indicated here)

TRUE STATE OF THE TERRORIST THREAT IN AMERICA

From Canada's CIA (CSIS):
"Many Canadians may be surprised to learn that, with the exception of the United States, there are more terrorist groups active in Canada today than in any other country in the world."

VERIFICATION
http://www.torontosun.com/2013/01/23/algerian-terrorists-had-canadian-ties-eh

The information was removed from the website in late 2013 due to White House protests, the largest number of these terrorist are at the South end and North end of the tunnel and bridge cited below.

There are more than 400 ISIS operatives and 300 recruiters in my neighborhood. As with the deliberate ignoring of the 9/11 warnings, these non-scientific reports will result in the deaths of untold numbers of civilians.

Hi Katja,

I got your contact details from Marie at Freemuse in Denmark. My name is Scott Corben and I am a producer with Al Jazeera Television in London.

I am researching a piece on soldier in the United States and
I am really keen to speak to a guy called Jerome Almon. I believe he is based in Detroit. Maries tells me that you may have some way of contacting him. If you have an up to date email or phone number I'd really appreciate it.

Look forward to hearing from you

Subject: Federal litigation impacting OON Providers - Understanding balance Billing, fee forgiveness, recoupment and fraud audits

Ted Burton

Dear colleague,

Out of Network (OON) providers have been facing a slew of lawsuits from ínsurance companies for failure to balance bill and for indiscriminate fee forgiveness.

Some Facts:

- HCA Health* v. Aetna, it was held that ínsurance companies must establish a procedure for requesting waiver of co-ínsurance or co-payments, without which they cannot hold a healthcare service provider liable for waiving co-payments.
- North Cypress* v. *Cigna, it was held that the ínsurance plans of the patients must be interpreted as they are likely to be understood by an average plan participant.

Fee Forgiveness has provided practitioners and providers in the healthcare system an ability to attract more patients to them; however, the same has brought legal challenges and other complications to the practice. The best way to understand the strategies of insurers is to carefully monitor federal litigation. The motions and memoranda within these cases outline the various positions of the health plans on risk areas such as balance billing, fee forgiveness, recoupment and fraud audits. As an OON provider, you can't possibly hope to obtain proper reimbursement and remain compliant in the current climate without understanding relevant federal laws and cases interpreting these laws.

Join us for this On Demand Webinar (available all day)—"Update on Federal Litigation Affecting out of Network Providers", on Friday, March 16, 2018, where expert speaker Thomas J. Force, Esq., reviews these recent set of lawsuits with in-depth case studies to unearth what will not. Out-of-network providers have been battling it out with well-known insurers like Cigna and Aetna – there's a lot you can learn from examining the decisions of these lawsuits. This session provides detailed case studies on these lawsuits and examines the decisions on balance billing, fee forgiveness and excessive fees – information that you need to ensure that your practice is compliant in balance billing, careful in fee-forgiveness, and prudent in documentation. You'll get all the guidance you need to avoid legal liabílity and improve profitability.

Session Highlights:

- Type of disclosures that must be provided by the OON provider to their patients prior to rendering of services.
- Written policies that must be in effect so as to assist the practice succeed against healthcare audits.
- The purpose of patient assignment and benefit forms.
- The impact of anti-assignment provisions in healthcare plan documents.
- The danger of not collecting call ínsurance, deductibles or otherwise balance billing out of network patients.

Session Agenda:

- Network Participation
  - In-network vs. Out-of-Network
  - Patient Cost Sharing
  - Balance Bill
- Best Practices
  - Transparency and Disclosure
  - Practice Management
- Case studies
  - Out-of-Network Reimbursement

- Fee Forgiveness
- Excessive Fees
- Assignment on Benefit Cases

Why Attend?

This session will help you learn strategies to avoid health plan audits and litigation based upon fee forgiveness and failure to balance bill patients. You will be provided disclosure and other patient forms, and practice policies which will assist you (out of network provider) to remain in compliance with state federal laws. You'll also get best practices for compliance.

Your registration includes:

- Complímentary attendee package, including the speaker's complete presentation handouts.
- Additional handouts on cases studies. Keep this quick reference tool close by for future use!

Please apply "SAVE20" at check-out to get $20 off on registration.

Gov't Contractor Sick Leave Rule Likely Excludes Banks

Banks and financial institutions have wondered for months whether they would be subject to a recent executive order requiring certain federal contractors to provide employees with paid sick leave. However, careful review of a U.S. Department of Labor notice shows it is highly unlikely the industry will be subject to this burdensome new requirement, say attorneys at Fox Rothschild LLP.

Troubled Waters: Customs Increases Jones Act Enforcement

The recent creation of the National Jones Act Division of Enforcement is particularly significant, especially for shippers of energy commodities, because of the exacting manner in which U.S. Customs and Border Protection interprets the law and the very large penalties Customs may impose for violations, say David McCullough and Shelley Wong at Sutherland Asbill & Brennan LLP.

Dear Carolyn,

Use of e-signatures is growing among state and local government agencies, but e-signature technology is rarely used to its full potential.

Join us May 3rd at 11:00 AM PT/2:00 PM ET for a look at how some state and local government agencies are using e-signatures for more complex processes – such as internal approvals, vendor contracts and permitting/licensing – to eliminate costly paper and the need for "wet" signatures.

Topics will include:

- How to expand an existing e-signature implementation to employ more sophisticated secure document signing processes
- How to integrate e-signature technology with document management and storage systems like SharePoint

- How to integrate complex workflow options such as multiple signers
- A live demonstration involving multiple signers and user authentication options

You can register at no cost here. Please feel free to share this information with any colleagues you feel would benefit from attending and do let me know if you have any questions!

Does using smartphones affect decisionmaking?

Our online behavior on laptops differs from our behavior on smart phones, contends behavioral economist Dan Ariely on Think with Google:

"It's critical today that marketers think about the context of their customer on the path to purchase: where they are, what device they're on, what their likely mindset is in that given moment. Time pressure is an important factor for marketers to consider in this mix. This is particularly true when it comes to decisions made on mobile devices on-the-go since time pressure narrows the consumer's focus, giving the marketer only a brief moment to grab their attention and direct their choices." I Was De-Equitized: A Look At BigLaw's Second-Class Citizens

By Erin Coe

As law firms face increasing pressure to operate like businesses, more attorneys are on course to lose their equity status and face the accompanying hit to their prestige and pocketbook. But firms need to be careful how they carry out these demotions or risk damaging attorney morale, driving away productive attorneys and exposing themselves to lawsuits.

How A Bryan Cave Atty Was Brought Down By A Con Man's Scheme To Buy Maxim Magazine

Some Players

By Sindhu Sundar

A group of former NFL players are refusing to join the league's historic brain-injury settlement over fears that it blocks potential claims related to CTE, the neurodegenerative condition central to the litigation. While defenders of the deal note its widespread support and argue that the players would face major hurdles in pursuing their claims at trial, the settlement's critics call it a case study in how class actions can leave plaintiffs out in the cold.

By Max Stendahl

Harvey Newkirk was a promising mergers and acquisitions lawyer on the fast track to partnership at Bryan Cave LLP. Then he agreed to work with a convicted con man named Calvin Darden Jr. in a failed attempt to buy Maxim magazine, and he found himself on trial for fraud. As Newkirk appeals his own conviction and prison sentence, the question remains: Was he a rogue attorney or another one of Darden's victims?

Congress Likely Looking At Short Lame-Duck Session

The GOP-controlled Congress has little reason to pursue a lengthy lame-duck session, experts say, as legislators will likely do little beyond keeping the lights on and the government funded before a Trump administration moves into town.

House GOP To Keep Same Leaders At Helm

House Republicans united behind much of their existing leadership Tuesday, setting up Speaker Paul Ryan for another term as the chamber's head and to embrace conservative legislative priorities ranging from an Affordable Care Act repeal to tax code overhauls and entitlement reform.

GOP Tells Departing SEC Chair No New Rules Before Trump

Republican lawmakers urged U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission Chair Mary Jo White at a congressional hearing Tuesday not to push through controversial rulemaking before she leaves the agency in January when Donald Trump is inaugurated as president, asking her to “respect” the results of the election.

Repairing and modernizing U.S. transportation and infrastructure will be a key focus of the incoming Republican White House under President-elect Donald Trump and the Republican-controlled Congress. Here are four legislative and policy priorities to watch.

IRS May Shrink To 3 Smaller Units Under House GOP Tax Plan

The existing structure of the Internal Revenue Service could be on shaky ground with Republicans controlling Congress and a proposal to shrink the agency to three smaller units focused on individual taxation, corporate taxes and dispute resolution based on the style of a small claims court.

House Votes To Extend Iran Sanctions Authority

The U.S. House of Representatives voted to pass an extension of the president’s authority to sanction Iran on Tuesday, adding 10 years to a bill set to expire in December even as the Obama administration lifted the separate so-called secondary sanctions as a result of the nuclear weapons deal with Tehran.

Dakota Access Asks Judge To Force Corps' Hand On Pipeline

An Energy Transfer Partners unit asked a D.C. federal judge Tuesday for a ruling that the company can complete work on a controversial section of the $3.8 billion Dakota Access pipeline, a day after the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said it needed to hold more talks with the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe before construction could go forward.

NRDC Vows Stiff Opposition To Anti-Enviro Trump Policies

Leaders at the Natural Resources Defense Council, one of the nation's largest and most active environmental advocacy groups, on Tuesday said that the group will fiercely battle any attempt by President-elect Donald Trump to roll back climate change, pollution and other protections.

PennEast Pipeline Plan Still Falls Short, NJ Rate Agency Says

Continuing its resistance to PennEast's proposed 118-mile gas pipeline traversing New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the Garden State's ratepayer advocate told Federal Energy Regulation Commission on Tuesday that the project's backer still hasn't justified the need for the system or its expected returns.

Murray Energy Slams EPA Plan For Job Loss Analysis

Murray Energy Corp. told a West Virginia federal judge Monday that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's plan to comply with a court order to study the effects of its environmental regulations on jobs is a sign that the agency has "no intention" to actually comply with the order.

Power Industry Slams Enviros' Cooling Water Intake Suit

Power industry groups on Monday urged the Second Circuit to reject environmentalists' challenge to U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's regulations requiring electricity-generating plants and manufacturing facilities to minimize damage to aquatic life caused by pulling in water from lakes and rivers.

Enviro Group Has Standing To Sue Over Fur Export Rules

A Montana judge allowed a suit by an environmental group against the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's fur export permit rules to go forward Monday, finding the federal government's own rules say it can't push all responsibility for fur trapping on the states.

BLM's Final Methane Flaring Rule Greeted With Industry Suit

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management on Tuesday unveiled its final rules for venting and flaring of methane gas on federal and Native American lands, facing an immediate legal challenge in Wyoming district court alleging the rule is outside the agency's authority.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

Congressional Repubs Call On FCC To Halt Major Actions

Hill Republicans on Tuesday asked Federal Communications Commission Chairman Tom Wheeler to stop all action on complex or controversial issues during the transition to a new president, saying that Democrats requested the same after the election of President Barack Obama in 2008.

FCC Allows Gov't To Make Debt Calls Under TCPA Exception

The Federal Communications Commission has passed a final rule exempting debt collection calls by the federal government from restrictions against autodialed, prerecorded calls under the Telephone Consumer Protection Act, according to a notice scheduled for publication in the Federal Register on Wednesday.

Broadcasters Challenge FCC Ownership Rules In DC Circ.

The National Association of Broadcasters brought a challenge to the Federal Communications Commission's media ownership restrictions in the D.C. Circuit Monday, claiming the agency acted arbitrarily and capriciously in tightening the restrictions in its most recent quadrennial reviews.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

What To Expect From Trump's Environmental Policies

The results of last week's election, which will bring in a new presidential administration and new Congress, will greatly impact environmental policy. We anticipate significant changes, challenges and opportunities, says Andrew Wheeler, co-leader of the energy and natural resources industry team at FaegreBD Consulting.

Weeding Through Calif. Prop 64: Employer Takeaways

California voters recently passed Proposition 64 legalizing recreational marijuana for individuals over the age of 21. These changes raise several immediate questions about what, if anything, employers need to do and whether the initiative created any new employee rights, say attorneys at Arent Fox LLP.

What's Next For US-Mexico Bilateral Trade Under Trump?

Withdrawal from NAFTA might not be the only alternative to keep U.S. companies from moving production offshore — assuming that is one of the main goals in considering such a withdrawal, says Carlos Vejar, a partner with Holland & Knight LLP and former general counsel for international trade in Mexico's Ministry of Economy.

DOD Rule Would Create Export Control Issues For Contractors

If implemented, the U.S. Department of Defense's proposed rule on withholding unclassified technical data could impact or potentially inhibit the submission of contractor export violation disclosures to the U.S. Departments of State and Commerce, say Andy Irwin and Michael Mutek of Steptoe & Johnson LLP.

Inside NHTSA's Proposed Cybersecurity Best Practices

The cybersecurity best practices for automakers recently proposed by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration are nonbinding. The guidance does, however, suggest that NHTSA may eventually utilize its safety mandate “to cover vehicle cybersecurity" and may foreshadow regulatory or legislative action to come, say attorneys at Crowell & Moring LLP.

Dentons is proposing a combination with a 75-attorney firm with offices in three Central American countries, a move that would make it the first global law firm in the region if the deal is approved by partners on both sides, the firm announced Tuesday.

Ogletree Deakins Mourns Death Of Founder Jimmie Stewart

Ogletree Deakins Nash Smoak & Stewart PC is mourning the loss of founding shareholder J. Hamilton "Jimmie" Stewart III, a labor law expert and mentor to many who died last week at age 73.

Rainmaker Q&A: WilmerHale's Michael Summersgill

Patent litigation is like a competitive sport. You’ve got to field a great team, develop the right strategy, be prepared to adjust, and then execute. You win and then you move on to the next case and it really doesn’t matter in the next case that you won the last one, says Michael Summersgill, a litigation partner at WilmerHale.

Rainmaker Q&A: Fenwick & West's Mark Stevens

No one benefits in the long run if the client doesn't get what it needs. Years ago, I found myself cringing when I heard another lawyer giving advice that made legal sense, but clearly wasn't useful to the client. I told myself I'd never do that, says Mark Stevens, a corporate partner at Fenwick & West LLP.

High Court Rejection Won't End Debate Over SEC Admin Court

The U.S. Supreme Court's refusal to consider a constitutional challenge to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's in-house court will not end the contentious debate over the tribunal's legitimacy, lawyers say, noting that merits of the issue remain unresolved, and a bevy of other suits are already working their way toward potential high court review.

Hatch Decries 'Pressure Tactics' Over Garland Nomination

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, on Monday slammed "liberal pressure tactics" calling for a vote on the pending nomination of Judge Merrick Garland for the vacancy on the U.S. Supreme Court, reiterating Senate Republicans' position that they will not consider any nominee until a new president is sworn in.

Texas Continues Fight Against Obama's Immigration Plan

Texas and 25 other states' showdown with the Obama administration over the president's executive actions on immigration forged ahead Monday, as the states urged the U.S. Supreme Court not to undo a lower court ruling that blocked the actions.

High Court Won't Review Cincinnati-Area Clean Air Row

The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday refused to review a Sixth Circuit decision that shot down a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's ruling that parts of Ohio and Indiana in the area of Cincinnati met Clean Air Act standards for fine particulate matter emissions.

EPA Tells DC Circ. That CPP Is On Firm Legal Ground

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency urged the D.C. Circuit Monday to toss challenges to its controversial Clean Power Plan, saying it has the Clean Air Act authority to execute the linchpin of President Barack Obama's climate change strategy by mandating cuts in carbon emissions from existing power plants.

Supreme Court Denies Appeal Of Former Ill. Gov. Blagojevich

The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday rejected an appeal by disgraced former Illinois Gov. Rod Blagojevich, who had argued that his conviction and subsequent 14-year prison sentence should be overturned because the government couldn't prove his solicitation of campaign funds amounted to extortion.

Justices Reject Challenge To SEC's In-House Court

The Supreme Court on Monday let stand a Seventh Circuit ruling that the former CEO of an assisted living provider can't bring a constitutional challenge to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's in-house court while a proceeding against her is underway, declining a chance to weigh in on the increasingly contentious tribunal.

Wal-Mart Ruling Shows Folly Of Targeted State Taxes

A Puerto Rico federal court on Monday struck down as unconstitutional an alternative corporate income tax that a Wal-Mart subsidiary challenged for being discriminatory, sending a clear warning to states against writing tax provisions that intentionally fall on specific businesses.

BANKING & SECURITIES

Rep. Fattah, Others Lose Bid To Toss Wire Fraud Charge

A Pennsylvania federal judge on Monday rejected claims by U.S. Rep. Chaka Fattah, D-Pa., and several co-defendants that wire fraud charges against them should be dismissed because prosecutors tried to squeeze two alleged crimes into one count of their racketeering indictment.

Gov. Wolf Vetoes Pa. Fiscal Code Bill Included In Budget

Pennsylvania Gov. Tom Wolf on Friday vetoed the state guide to distributing revenue that was passed along with the 2015-2016 budget, sending the fiscal code back to the state House of Representatives in his first veto of the year.

ENERGY & ENVIRONMENTAL

High Court Axes Alaska Forest Road, Logging Ban Review

The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday said it will not review a Ninth Circuit decision that reinstated a ban on road construction and logging in an Alaskan national forest, a victory for Native Americans and environmentalists that oppose development in the area.

Truckers Can't Dodge 'On-Duty' Regs At Natural Gas, Oil Sites

The U.S. Department of Transportation on Monday rejected a trucking trade group's bid to get certain commercial truck drivers at oil and natural gas extraction sites exempted from federal "on duty" hours-of-service regulations for time they spend waiting at the sites.

Sens. Push EPA For Stronger Renewable Fuel Standard

A group of U.S. senators asked the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on Monday to come up with new renewable fuel standards that would boost ethanol usage in vehicles, saying past updates have not moved far enough in that direction.

Oregon's Salmon-Saving Mining Regs Get Court's OK

An Oregon federal judge on Friday struck down a bid by small-scale miners and prospectors to wipe out an Oregon law imposing a five-year ban for motorized mining methods in certain salmon habitats, finding the legislation to be a reasonable environmental restriction not preempted by federal law.

US Steel Agrees To Pollution Reduction Steps At Pa. Plant

U.S. Steel Corp. has agreed to perform maintenance work at a Pennsylvania facility as part of a settlement with a local health department after repeated air pollution violations, according to the county health department.

Enviros Urge DC Circ. Not To Delay Brick Standards Suit

Environmental groups on Friday asked the D.C. Circuit not to pause its review of U.S. Environmental Protection Agency air emissions standards for brick and clay manufacturers, saying the industry groups that asked for it haven’t shown a pressing hardship.

Mass. AG Issues Final Daily Fantasy Sports Regulations

Massachusetts Attorney General Maura Healey on Friday published final regulations for daily fantasy sports, setting up a number of consumer protection-oriented rules that have been embraced by the industry.

TRANSPORTATION & INFRASTRUCTURE

No Dibs On Condemned Highway Land For Heirs, Court Says

The Rhode Island Supreme Court ruled in a case of first impression on Thursday that the right of first refusal to repurchase excess land condemned for highway purposes terminates when the original condemnee dies, and that right doesn't pass on to the person's heirs or estate.

EMPLOYMENT

NLRB Regional Director In Philly Suspended For 30 Days

The National Labor Relations Board confirmed Monday that its regional director in Philadelphia, who has faced criticism for his ties to the pro-union Peggy Browning Fund, was suspended without pay for 30 days at the end of December.

Calif. Leaders, Labor Make Landmark $15 Minimum Wage Deal

Flanked by Democrats, labor leaders and workers, Gov. Jerry Brown announced Monday a "landmark" agreement setting California on course to be the first state in the nation to have a $15 per hour minimum wage, conceding a more aggressive wage initiative motivated the deal.

NY Launches E-Prescribing In Attempt To Curb Opioid Abuse

A New York law requiring physicians to issue prescriptions electronically in an attempt to crack down on opioid addiction went into effect on Sunday, although the state has issued a large number of waivers granting another year for some to catch up on compliance.

School Water Lead-Testing Bill Floated In NJ

New Jersey lawmakers floated a bill Monday to require regular lead testing of school drinking water, after reports found children in 11 cities had higher lead contamination levels than did kids in Flint, Michigan, where a water crisis is ongoing.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE

Biz Groups Keep Pushing For Vast Export Control Reforms

An alliance of business and trade associations on Friday made a forceful push for the White House to wrap its expansive reform of the export control system before President Barack Obama leaves office, while also setting the stage for the completion of more long-term changes.

Manufacturers Rebut Enviros' Assault On Arbitration Rules

The National Association of Manufacturers on Monday gave a full-throated defense of the investment arbitration rules embedded in U.S. trade agreements, asserting that the heated criticism from the Sierra Club and other environmental groups is wildly overblown.

Maine Asks White House To Fight Potential EU Lobster Ban

Maine's congressional delegation on Monday urged the White House to scrutinize a request by Sweden to ban imports of live Maine lobsters to the European Union, saying that a few loose lobsters posed little threat to European stocks and hardly seemed to justify a crackdown on a major New England industry.

TAX

PR Court Nixes Alternative Biz Tax Challenged By Wal-Mart

A Puerto Rico federal court on Monday said the financially strapped commonwealth could not collect an alternative corporate income tax from a Wal-Mart Stores Inc. subsidiary because it violates the Commerce and Equal Protection clauses of the U.S. Constitution.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

FCC Told Zero-Rating Plans Threaten Open Internet

A range of public interest groups pushed the Federal Communications Commission Monday to take action against companies using plans that exempt certain content from counting against customer data allotments, saying they "undermine the spirit and the text" of net neutrality rules.

FCC Urged To Address Lifeline Cost Inefficiencies

A civil rights media and telecom group has told the Federal Communications Commission that the current system for administering the Lifeline program is deeply inefficient, saying the FCC must streamline it and take some burdens off of service providers as part of expanding the low-income phone subsidy program to include broadband.

Google Says TV Stations Safe From FCC Vacant-Channel Plan

Google Inc. urged the Federal Communications Commission on Friday to move forward with a proposal to set aside TV station white space for wireless purposes, arguing that fears of crowding out local television services from needed spectrum are based on "manifestly implausible" predictions.

TEXAS

Texas High Court Approves Special Three-Judge Panels

In accordance with a mandate from the Texas Legislature, the state's high court last week approved a rule that allows for the convening of special three-judge district courts to hear redistricting and school finance cases, and is seeking input from attorneys on the proposal.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Loopholes In FinCEN's Luxury Real Estate Rules

The Financial Crimes Enforcement Network issued regulations recently to block criminal proceeds from entering the U.S. economy through real estate purchases in New York and Miami. A savvy financier, however, could easily navigate these rules to circumvent their purpose of curtailing the flow of dirty money, says former federal prosecutor Katherine Lemire of Lemire LLC.

Success Of Opioid Addiction Bill Would Rely On Funding

Even though the Comprehensive Addiction and Recovery Act of 2016 would shift national drug addiction policy if enacted, several questions about the bill remain, and the most important open question is whether or not it will be properly funded to achieve its stated goals, say Basil Kim and Robert Wanerman at Epstein Becker & Green PC.

Who Will Carry The Costs Of New Pipeline Safety Standards?

It's clear that recently introduced pipeline safety standards will add costs to oil and natural gas transportation and storage services, but the key question is, whose bottom line will these costs hit? Infrastructure owners may have to bear these costs themselves, or they may be able to pass certain costs onto their shipper customers, say attorneys at K&L Gates LLP.

OPINION: Time For Congress To Leave Patent System Alone

Congress should let the patent system embrace its major recent changes and work out implementation issues before further reform is seriously considered. A period of stability is needed now, says David Kappos, a partner at Cravath Swaine & Moore LLP and former director of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.

LEGAL INDUSTRY

BigLaw's Biggest Continue To Call New York Home

Half of the very largest firms in New York got their start elsewhere and either grew or remained stable in 2015 because of a steady flow of mergers and finance-related work, according to the latest Law360 400 survey.

SoCal Firms Boom As PE, Media Fuel Middle-Market Growth

More than 40 law firms with California headquarters landed on the Law360 400, with Lewis Brisbois Bisgaard & Smith LLP topping the list, and experts say that booming business from new private equity investments and technology-driven shifts in the entertainment industry are giving firms outside of Silicon Valley a shot at explosive growth.

Texas Firms Hold Steady As Competition Remains Fierce

Following a year of plunging commodity prices and ever-increasing competition from national firms edging into what remains a hot market, Texas law firms on the Law360 400 kept it conservative in 2015, with most firms growing by less than 5 percent or slightly shrinking.

How To Spot Problem Clients Before You Take Them

Getting new clients is usually an attorney's dream, but things can quickly turn nightmarish for the lawyer who unwittingly takes on a time-wasting, information-withholding, bill-shirking problem client. Here are five ways attorneys can make sure they'll spot the warning signs before potential problem clients become their very real headaches.

Trial Attys Weigh Unconventional Ways To Use A Witness

In the heat of a close trial, a bold, unorthodox move like calling an adverse witness to the stand or confronting your own client during direct examination with a weak part of your case could provide an important edge. Of course, the move could also backfire and pave the way to an embarrassing self-inflicted defeat.

'Uber For Lawyers' Could Be The Next Big Thing, Report Says

The legal industry is a well-suited sector for adopting the sharing economy approach to delivering services to those who need them, making an “Uber for lawyers” a viable and potentially disruptive avenue to bring legal services to clients, according to a new report.

Hi Carolyn —

Government programs are seeing big success and cost savings by using the power of data analytics to detect and reduce waste, fraud and abuse.

With Trump's Administration starting to really take shape, there's no doubt going to be a huge focus on detecting fraud and waste across all government programs.

In just a few weeks, The Performance Institute is holding a forum at the end of January (30-31) with experts across the government in developing measures to detect and eliminate fraud.

This is shaping into a really great event — can I get you a brochure?

In times past we have utilized expertise of former law enforcement persons. (e.g. Joe Saitta US Secret Service and Jose Troncoso former US Marshal and former Police Chief of North Las Vegas)

Currently we have two members appointed from the City Council. Councilman Bob Coffin (served on Post Legislative Audit Committee in the Nevada Legislative) and Councilman Bob Beers (CPA and CFE)

Additionally, we have two members at large. Greg Headlee, Chief Internal Auditor for Southwest Gas and Annette Carro, Stewart, Archibald & Barney CPA firm.

As you can see we are well staffed with Auditing and Accounting Professionals, we would like to add some experience in the Law Enforcement area as part of what we might audit can have fraud implications.

We are looking for a person with Law Enforcement background to add to our Audit Oversight Committee, please advise if you have someone who might fit these qualifications.

Thank you in advance for your assistance. Should you have questions or comments please feel free to contact me.

Good Morning Mr. Snelding,

The Mayor asked the Sheriff to reach out to you to provide a name of a person to sit on an audit committee. We are happy to assist in any way but I was hoping I could get an idea of what your expectations are and what kind of background you are looking for the person to have.

Thanks,

How Some Cities Are Getting Millennials' Aid for Free

BY KATHERINE BARRETT & RICHARD GREENE

Private foundations are no stranger to government. Most of them exist to help address public issues --poverty, crime, blight, you name it.

Bloomberg Philanthropies, for instance, which was started by former New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg, has spent hundreds of millions of dollars making cities' solutions to big problems more innovative and data-driven.

But at least one foundation is going deeper than that. It's getting at a root of the public sector's problems: workforce shortages. KEEP READING>>

Friends,

This week, we can celebrate two things: first, UNLV hosted their first ever Presidential debate on Wednesday, which we hope will energize student civic engagement on and off campus, and second, we are finally finished with the 2016 Presidential debates.

This election cycle has been nothing if not entertaining. Luckily, early voting starts in Nevada tomorrow, signaling the beginning of a long-awaited end, and we highly encourage everyone to practice your Constitutional right and make sure your voice is heard. We've heard the candidate's make their pitches for the last time, now it's up to us to choose among them.

DAYS UNTIL THE 2019 LEGISLATURE BEGINS: 81

Good morning, everyone. Our Humberto Sanchez broke this story last night. Most people may not know what the DSCC is, but this is a very important position for Nevada's senior senator. Yes, Catherine Cortez Masto has gone from being a freshman two years ago to the position (senior senator!) held for decades by Harry Reid. I bet he is very proud of her.

What's below: Maps worth seeing, McDonald's moronic encore and a trivia question about a first.

COMING UP
We are working on two great Indy events that I can't wait to announce…..

A COUPLE OF CARTOGRAPHY NUGGETS
Nugget No. 1 – From Trump plus 1 to Lee plus 9 and Rosen plus 4.5: Check it out.

Nugget No. 2 – I wrote Nevada has turned blue. Now the first 2020 map shows we lean that way. Tossup no more?

SORRY SEEMS TO BE THE HARDEST WORD
Even as his editors lie prostrate (and published another column today with baseless allegations of voter fraud), kudos to the fine RJ reporter, Colton Lochhead, for exposing the voter fraud nonsense.

A few days after he said he had gone to the FBI and shenanigans had been pulled by the Democrats, the buffoon in charge of the state GOP changed his tune – a k a lying through his teeth:

McDonald said Wednesday that his comments on the radio were made "tongue-in-cheek."

"He asked me a question. I didn't know how to answer because I don't know what we did wrong," McDonald said. "I didn't think it would be taken so seriously."

He said he did not mean to disparage Cegavske or Gloria, but he said he does not understand how Republicans lost almost universally in Nevada after an unprecedented infusion of resources from the Republican National Committee and President Donald Trump.

When asked if he believed the Democrats' victories were won fairly, McDonald said, "Yes."

Oh? Really?

Shame takes a holiday.

TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE DAY

This is the 11th anniversary of a first for Nevada, the first time the state had hosted something, which occurred at UNLV. What was it?

Wednesday's winner: Henderson's David Cherry

The question: On this day 40 years ago, a place that is now a locus of Nevada power had one of its buildings added to the National Register of Historic Places? Where and what building?

The answer: Minden flour mill

Subject: OON providers' failure to balance bill patients leads to large recoupment, audits, and litigation

Dear colleague,

A number of high-profile lawsuits have put the spotlight on out-of-network (OON) providers, and billing-related errors such as overpayments, negligent misrepresentation, OON write-offs and balance billing have ended in very real legal nightmares for providers.

OON providers can easily make critical mistakes that end up jeopardizing their compliance with state and federal laws. For instance, many providers will tell patients that they accept any payment from their health plans as payment in full. But this practice is risky and may invite accusations of fraud from the health plans. The bottom line is that failure to balance bill patients can lead to large recoupments, audits and litigation for fraud. In addition, The HHS is actively watching and waiting to catch billing errors and noncompliant practices.

Join expert speaker Thomas Force, Esq. in our On-Demand Webinar (play it anytime of the day)—"The Balance Billing Requirement: Why Out-of-Network Providers Must Balance Bill Their Patients" on Tuesday, August 22, 2017, to learn how OON providers and their revenue recovery staff can maintain compliance and avoid litigation while collecting the proper amount of money from their patients' health plans. You'll also learn about the state laws that relate to balance billing requirements for OON providers. Thomas will discuss recent cases in which health plans sued OON providers who failed to balance bill their patients. He will also discuss the penalties for noncompliance and provide a patient-friendly sample balance bill letter and sample charity care policy.

Session Highlights

- Why balance billing is required in most jurisdictions
- The exceptions to balance billing requirements
- Techniques to balance bill patients without offending or alienating them
- How to use ERISA to appeal denied and under-reimbursed claims for employer-sponsored plans
- What a recoupment is, and what you should do when faced with one
- Penalties for noncompliance

Session Agenda

- Balance billing: Why OONs are required to balance bill
- Review of the Ingenix case and OON reimbursement
- Reforming OON reimbursement
- ERISA preemption and why it matters
- Problematic billing practices
- Patient protections under the PPACA's provisions for coverage of emergency services
- Insights on Medicare, TRICARE/CHAMPUS and balance billing
- Writing patient-friendly balance billing letters, and the best time to send them
- The importance of a charity care program or financial hardship policy
- Best practices in transparency and disclosure
- Relevant case law, including CIGNA vs. Health Diagnostics, Aetna v. Health Diagnostics Laboratory and more

The role of the CFO is changing. It's become more strategically-focused, more value-focused, and more future-focused. The modern CFO must approach strategy formulation and performance monitoring in a manner than goes beyond reporting to provide accurate, actionable business insights.

According to pwc, the modern finance organization must "evolve from an emphasis on rigorous planning and budgeting to building business acumen and designing effective collaboration models." To deliver on this value proposition finance must provide planning solutions that link operational metrics to financial plans and forecasts.

This session will present:

- Technology drivers impacting adoption of EPM solutions
- Ways to systematize business planning and consolidation, profitability management, and compliance

- How to drive collaboration across the enterprise
- How to bridge the communication gap between finance and operations

Speaker:

Jim Perry
Director of EPM Enablement Infor

SOCIAL FINANCE: Pay for Success Contracting—The Emerging Paradigm

A new Reason Foundation policy brief examines Pay for Success (PFS) contracts, which provide a way for governments to test human service programs through the private sector and only pay if the program delivers on its promised results. At its core, a PFS contract is a type of public-private partnership that combines private financing and performance-based contracting in the delivery of social services. Although they have been in existence for just five years, PFS contracts have generated a great deal of interest around the world in that short time. The policy brief—intended as a primer for policymakers on PFS contracting—is authored by Joe Coletti, co-founder and CEO of the Better Yes Network and former leader of the North Carolina Government Efficiency and Reform (NC GEAR) initiative.

TRANSPORTATION: The Latest in Airports, Highways, Transportation Finance

Over the last decade, infrastructure investment funds have raised approximately $350 billion, which could support global infrastructure projects worth $1.4 trillion, according to Reason's Annual Privatization Report 2016 , which suggests that substantial private capital resources are available for U.S. surface and air transportation projects. The report also examines the latest developments in international airport privatization, air traffic control corporatization, outsourced airport screening, major public-private toll road and bridge projects, federal and state policy developments related to highway public-private partnerships, and the continued growth of pension fund investment in infrastructure.

EDUCATION: Reviewing Recent Trends in School Choice, Funding Portability

Legislative victories in 2015 and 2016 heralded six additional new school choice programs, raising the total to 59 programs across 28 U.S. states and the District of Columbia, according to the newly released Education section of Reason Foundation's Annual Privatization Report 2016. The report reviews developments over the past year in education, with topics that include the expansion of school choice programs, the expanding charter school market share, education savings accounts, student-based budgeting and school funding portability in the states.

PRIVATIZATION: How Does Privatization Affect Government Liability?

The law treats the public and private sectors differently in all sorts of contexts, including legal liability. The precise contours of government vs. private immunity depend on the context and depend on what laws are involved. The relative treatment of the public and private sectors will obviously affect the costs and benefits of privatization, the government's incentives to privatize, and injured parties' prospects for monetary recovery. This is nicely illustrated by two cases from the U.S. Supreme Court's recent term, as Emory Law School associate professor Alexander "Sasha" Volokh explains in a recent Reason Foundation article.

PENSION REFORM: Michigan Pension Reform Case Study

In 1996, the Michigan state legislature passed a first-of-its-kind bill that closed the state employees' defined benefit pension fund to new members and created a defined contribution retirement plan for future hires. A new report by Reason's Anthony Randazzo finds that the legacy retirement system is more solvent today than if the legislature had not closed the defined benefit plan for new hires, with a full system funded ratio of 88% as of 2015, compared to an estimated 68% funded ratio without reform. But while closing the defined benefit plan has prevented the state from taking on even more unfunded liabilities than without a change, the report finds that the positive effects of pension reform have been muted by the failure of policymakers to properly manage the defined benefit plan well as it is being closed over time.

E-CIGARETTES: The Vapor Revolution: How Bottom-Up Innovation Is Saving Lives

The public health impact of the vapor revolution has already been profound: millions of smokers have switched entirely to vaping, and millions more are using vaping to reduce the amount they smoke. The best estimate so far produced puts the risk posed by vaping at approximately 5% that posed by smoking. In a new working paper, Reason's Julian Morris and Amir Ullah Khan write that, given time and further innovation, vaping has the potential to continue dramatically to reduce both the number of people who smoke and the number of cigarettes smoked by those who choose to continue to smoke. The authors estimate that over the course of the next two to three decades, vaping might gradually replace smoking altogether, thereby saving most of the billion lives—and perhaps 8 of the 10 billion life-years—that otherwise would be lost to smoking over the coming century. Yet, the authors warn that if innovation is to continue to deliver better, safer, less expensive products—and thereby attract more smokers to switch—it is essential that producers, retailers and consumers be free of excessive regulatory intervention.

NEWS & NOTES

DOJ Announces Private Prison Phase-Out, DHS to Evaluate: Earlier this month, the U.S. Department of Justice's Office of the Inspector General (OIG) released a report claiming that "contract prisons incurred more safety and security incidents per capita than comparable [Bureau of Prisons (BOP)] institutions and that the BOP needs to improve how it monitors contract prisons." Shortly after the release of the OIG report, Deputy Attorney General Sally Yates issued a memo stating an intention for "reducing—and ultimately ending" DOJ's use of private prisons and directing that as each BOP private prison contract comes up for renewal in the coming years, the agency should either "decline to renew that contact or substantially reduce its scope."

Correctional management firms quickly countered that the OIG report was flawed and failed to take into account the very different demographics of the population of private prisons in the BOP system (compared to BOP-run facilities), along with a number of other underlying factors ignored by the OIG. Emory Law School associate professor and Reason contributor Sasha Volokh offered a detailed critique of the report in a recent Washington Post blog post.

In the wake of the OIG report and new DOJ policy, another federal agency has announced a review of its private prison use. Earlier this week, Department of Homeland Security (DHS) Secretary Jeh Johnson announced that he had directed the agency's advisory council to undertake a study on whether Immigration and Customs Enforcement should continue its use of private prisons for immigration detention. Recommendations pursuant to the study are due from the advisory council by November 30.

MBTA Privatizations Advance: The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) has taken major steps toward privatizing much of its operations over the last two months. The transit authority issued a Request for Proposals in late June for a private firm to take over the operations of its warehouse, a move to which warehouse workers responded by immediately seeking arbitration, the Boston Globe reported.

MBTA also looks to privatize its police and emergency dispatch, as well as its cash operations. The Globe reported this month that MBTA looks to contract with IXP Corporation for police and emergency dispatch. The two-year, $6.1 million deal for police dispatch would free 15 officers from dispatch duties and allow them to work patrol, a major relief to MBTA Transit Police Superintendent Richard Sullivan, who said of the move, "This is going to help us tremendously."

The transit agency may also privatize its cash counting operations, after a consultant report found many problems with its current in-house arrangement, including poor training and recordkeeping, security lapses (including vault doors secured with duct tape), and employee shirking, as well as outdated and inefficient technology and equipment. Officials believe that privatization could generate $4.6 million in savings. The 78 workers that the agency currently employs for its in-house cash counting make a combined $10.1 million, or a little more than $128,000 per worker. MBTA will likely submit requests for qualifications/proposals within the coming weeks. More details are available here.

Denver International Airport Announces Winning Terminal PPP Bidder: At the end of June, Denver International Airport chose a Ferrovial Airports-led consortium to make improvements to its Jeppensen Terminal through a public-private partnership (PPP), the airport noted in a press release . Parties are currently negotiating final terms for the pre-development period, which, pending an agreement, will result in a full city council vote on a contract in August. The PPP aims to upgrade the terminal by consolidating the airline ticket counters, consolidating and relocating the TSA screening areas, modifying the baggage handling system in and under the terminal, and redesigning the shopping, dining and overall passenger experiences available within the terminal.

China Pledges $1.6 Trillion for PPP Development: A Chinese official announced this month that the county plans to provide funding of $1.6 trillion to over 9,000 PPP projects in the coming years. Problems with local, public financing of projects played a major role to the increased commitment from China to the public-private model, with municipalities now being allowed to rely on private funding to make up for shortfalls from bond issues. China's finance ministry will soon publish lists of demonstration projects valued at $121 billion, of which nearly half (48%) have reached implementation. More information is available here .

Fargo-Moorhead Flood Control RFQ Released : Earlier this month, the Flood Diversion Board of Authority issued a request for qualifications for the public-private partnership portion of the $1.8 billion Fargo-Moorhead Area Diversion Project, a joint effort between the Army Corps of Engineers and the states of North Dakota and Minnesota to control flooding on the Red River. The project has two main components: the Corps will build a dam using federal funds, while a private developer will finance and construct a 36-mile-long, 1,500-foot-wide diversion channel with 32,500 acres of upstream staging, to be repaid over time through state sources. Earlier this month, the mayors of Fargo (ND) and Moorhead (MN), the Flood Diversion Board of Authority, and the Corps signed a project partnership agreement to advance the project. A full request for proposals for the PPP portion of the project is anticipated by the end of 2016. More information is available here.

Mackinac Center Releases Annual School Service Privatization Survey: Michigan's Mackinac Center released its School Privatization Survey 2016 earlier this month, noting continued growth of school districts choosing to privatize food, custodial, or transportation services (now 379 of the state's 541 districts, or 70%). Half of Michigan school districts rely on privatized custodial services alone, up from 7% in 2003, while food services, now at 43%, grew less sharply over that period at 64%. Transportation services remains the least common (just 25% of districts), though its prevalence grew over 600% over the past decade, now relied upon in 137 Michigan school districts. Satisfaction amongst school officials remains high, too—90% of officials reported being satisfied with the privatized services upon which their district relies, while only 3% reported dissatisfaction. The full report is available here.

Alaska Taps Consultants for Health Care Privatization Studies : Medicaid reform legislation signed in June requires Alaska to hire consultants to study the possibility of privatizing parts of the state's health services system, with a sharp focus on juvenile facilities, pharmacy services, and the state's sole psychiatric hospital. By mid-July, the state selected winning bids from two firms—Carter Goble Associates (CGA), who will examine privatization in state's short-term detention facilities, LLC and Public Consulting Group, Inc (PCG), who will look at privatizing some services at the Alaska Psychiatric Institute. A third bid for examining pharmacy services was rejected. More information is available here.

Baltimore City Circuit Court Facility PPP Proposed: The Baltimore City Circuit Court asked the Maryland Stadium Authority to help it seek bids for private developers to repair or replace its existing facilities, potentially through a PPP structure, the Baltimore Sun reported. In 2011, an attempt renovate the buildings was rejected because of an estimated $600 million cost, while a report the same year described conditions at the facilities as "dire," in terms of safety and operations, as did previous studies.

Cleveland State University Seeking Parking PPP: In June, Cleveland State University issued a request for qualifications seeking firms interested in a potential long-term concession to operate and upgrade the university's parking system. The university is seeking to maximize the value of its parking assets while addressing a shortage of parking spaces amid rapid growth in enrollment. Qualifications were due in mid-July; at press time the university had not released a list of responses.

Mercatus Case Study Examines New D.C. Taxi and Ride-Share Agency: Researchers at the George Mason University-affiliated Mercatus Center released a study recommending that policymakers rethink the entire structure of taxi regulations, which limit competition, inflate prices, lower quality, and employ antiquated technologies and practices. The authors argue that taking further steps to level the regulatory playing field between taxis and ride-sharing companies by way of deregulation will serve consumers better. Previous concerns about customers' inability to assess the quality of street-hailed taxis led to current regulations, the study maintains. But new technological advances such as greater monitoring of drivers, instant customer feedback via smartphone apps, and secure electronic payment systems have virtually erased those problems. Keeping such regulations intact in the face of such added security, the authors argue, ends up harming consumers by way of stifling competition.

Iowa Private Medicaid Management Update: Since privatizing Medicaid to three companies in a managed care agreement this April, a first quarter report found the state saving $22 million, though some details of measurement remain unclear. The private providers did fail to meet performance standards in April and May, and were fined $4,400 for incorrect claim information.

Gov. Terry Branstad continued to stress savings from fraud prevention, citing figures from a previous smaller scale privatization. A study released by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) assessing performance of the public and private sector with respect to avoiding improper Medicaid payouts in Iowa found private sector workers to be vastly more successful in FY2014. While public sector workers improperly paid out 10% of funds in its fee-for-service program, private workers, which at the time covered about 10% of the total state Medicaid program, achieved an improper payment rate of less than 1%. More information is available here.

CT Gov. Malloy Releases Group Home Privatization Plan: Earlier this month, Gov. Daniel P. Malloy's administration released a plan to save $70 million annually by privatizing 40 state-run homes, as well as services for residents with developmental and intellectual disabilities, currently provided in-house by the state's Department of Developmental Services (DDS). "The plan follows national trends and best practices for reducing publicly run residential and larger institutional facilities and continuing on a path of providing cost effective, community-based options for individuals supported by DDS," according to DDS Commissioner Morna A. Murray. "Community-based care provided by experienced non-profit organizations will ultimately allow Connecticut to afford to provide supports to the thousands of families currently waiting for services."

Redding/Shasta County (CA) Renews Library Contract : Earlier this month, Library Systems & Services signed a contract extension to continue providing operations, technical, and strategic support for Redding's and Shasta County's libraries until 2021. The relationship has been very beneficial to the city and county in terms of traffic and finances; while the average California county spends nearly $50 per capita on its libraries, Shasta and Redding spend a little over $12, and the county and city receive 12 visits per capita to their libraries, which is double the California average. "Results speak for themselves: the Redding branch operates at 60+ hours a week, while the city could only run it at 40 hours and for more budget," Peggy O'Lea, executive director of the Shasta Library Foundation, said in a press release.

Oklahoma Corrections Department Leases Private Prison: This month, the Oklahoma Department of Corrections began moving its inmates from its State Reformatory in Granite into a much newer private facility located in North Fork. The state will lease the privately owned facility from Corrections Corporation of America in a six-year, $37.5M deal that will have state employees operating the facility, KGOU Public Radio reported . While most of the state's prison facilities previously served some other purpose—such as Boy's Homes, hospitals, or munitions plants—and were retrofitted to serve as prisons, CCA's North Fork facility was specifically constructed be a prison only 18 years ago. Compared to the 107-year old Granite facility, North Fork has modern IT infrastructure—including two educational buildings with computer labs for inmates for job training purposes—and the facility itself can be reconfigured to become the equivalent of four separate prisons, allowing for separation of different types of inmates.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

"The question is whether the past twenty or thirty years is a useful yardstick for predicting the next twenty or thirty years. The United States has benefited from a 35-year bond market boom, over which time interest rates have trended consistently lower to the near-zero rate that it has held steady for the past seven years [...] All other things being equal, lower interest rates push stock and bond prices higher. Consequently, U.S. pension funds have enjoyed 35 years of rising prices for stocks and bonds (with short interludes of falling prices) in their portfolios. But as interest rates approach zero, it is impossible under conventional economic theory for them to drop any lower. Perhaps, as we are seeing in some places around the world, it is possible for central banks to engineer below-zero interest rates, but we have no historical experience by which to judge how economies, bond markets and stock markets will perform under such circumstances. [...]

It is almost inconceivable that the future 35 years of investment returns will match that of the previous 35 years, one of the great bull market eras of U.S. financial history. Therefore, [the Virginia Retirement System (VRS)] (and other all pension funds) are reckless to assume that recent history will be any guide at all to future performance. Stretch out the frame of analysis for 50 years, 100 years, or longer, and the case for equities and bonds may be as favorable as ever. But the VRS cannot look out 100 years.

Baby Boomers in the state workforce are retiring in large numbers now: One quarter of the state workforce will be eligible to retire within five years. Virginia will need the money in the next 20 to 30 years."

—James Bacon, "The Seven Percent Assumption," Bacon's Rebellion (blog), July 12, 2016.

"Both [private prison] facilities in Ohio perform in a manner that is safe and secure, as demonstrated by their contractually required accreditation status by the American Correctional Association and compliance with Ohio internal management audit standards. Ohio's two privately operated facilities are considered full partners within our prison system."

—JoEllen Smith, spokeswoman for the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction, quoted in Alan Johnson, "Ohio won't follow federal lead in ending private prison contracts," The Columbus Dispatch, August 19, 2016.

"Data-driven approaches are beginning to produce benefits not only in the area of pretrial detention but throughout the criminal justice process. Dashboards now in use in a handful of jurisdictions allow not only administrators but also the public to see court waiting times by offender type and to identify and address processing bottlenecks. Fast-tracking minor cases allowed Tarrant County, Texas, for example, to reduce its jail population by 40 percent; mental-health diversion resulted in $10 million in savings per year in Bexar County, Texas; and New Orleans reduced crime while witnessing a two-thirds decrease in its in jail population by using risk-based pretrial decision-making and turning to summonses rather than detention for low-level offenses such as disturbing the peace and marijuana possession."

Hi Mayor! Two years ago (yes he kept the email!) Jon Ralston asked us about this whether you were considering returning the money he gave your campaign, and after talking with you we responded you were aware of the issue and would wait and see what the outcome of the investigation is,
Now that he has been indicted Jon wants to know whether you are planning to return the money he donated to your campaign.
Feel free to call me if you want to chat, I wanted to email you this so you had the PDF.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge

Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

Companies Should Avoid The BigLaw Bonus Structure

Since passage of the Trump tax plan last year, companies have been touting bonuses they've handed down to rank-and-file employees. This highlights the trend of employers favoring bonuses over pay raises in the belief that variable, short-term rewards are less risky to the business than permanent increases in labor costs. But law firms have been using this strategy for years — and there are dangers, says Michael Moradzadeh of Rimon PC. Read more »

Trump's Interior Pick Says Climate Change 'Undisputable'

Rep. Ryan Zinke, R-Mont., Donald Trump's nominee for interior secretary, parted ways with earlier comments by the president-elect by saying during Senate confirmation hearings on Tuesday that he doesn't believe climate change is a hoax, but suggested that there is still a place for fossil fuel drilling on federal lands.

IRS Finalizes Anti-Inversion Rule, With Some Tweaks

The Internal Revenue Service has finalized rules meant to make it harder for U.S. businesses to lessen their tax burden by merging with foreign companies, although the agency tweaked the requirements to meet certain exceptions to the regulations.

If Not Replaced, ACA Repeal Could Double Premiums: CBO

With Congressional Republicans working toward repealing the Affordable Care Act, the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office said Monday that scrapping only parts of "Obamacare" could result in 32 million people losing health insurance and premiums doubling by 2026.

3 Takeaways As FDA Dishes On Interchangeable Biosimilars

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration's long-awaited guidance on biosimilar interchangeability contains lots of flexible language that means the coveted designation could be much more attainable for some products than others, experts say. Here are three takeaways from Tuesday's draft guidance.

Puzder Denies Report He May 'Bail' On Labor Nomination

Andrew Puzder, the fast food executive whom President-elect Donald Trump tapped to serve as U.S. secretary of labor, on Monday tweeted that he is "looking forward" to his confirmation hearing, amid media reports that he was considering withdrawing himself from consideration for the job.

Mary Jo White Says SEC Must Remain An Independent Agency

Outgoing U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission Chair Mary Jo White said Tuesday the agency must remain independent in the face of “partisan tides” and constricting legislation in order to fulfill its mission of protecting investors.

Senate Dems Won’t Negotiate CFPB's Makeup, Schumer Says

Senate Democrats will not negotiate to replace the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's single-director leadership with a commission structure similar to that of other financial regulatory bodies, the party’s leader in that chamber said Tuesday.

NY Says OCC Fintech Charter Puts Consumers At Risk

New York’s top financial watchdog on Tuesday blasted a federal regulator’s proposal to create a new charter for nonbank online lenders and other financial technology firms, saying that the new charters would open the door to weakening state consumer protection laws.

Texas Bank Can’t Leapfrog To Full DC Circ. In CFPB Case

A D.C. federal judge on Tuesday shot down a Texas bank's bid to join an appeal before the full D.C. Circuit concerning the constitutionality of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau’s single-director leadership, rejecting the bank’s arguments the move would serve the interest of “judicial economy.”

Enviros Urge Justices To Pass On Polar Bear Habitat Appeal

The Center for Biological Diversity is urging the U.S. Supreme Court not to upend a Ninth Circuit decision backing the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's critical habitat designation for the polar bear, saying the state of Alaska and other challengers have made too big of a deal out of the size of the habitat designation.

BLM Venting Rules Take Effect As Court Case Continues

Three Western states and industry groups lost a bid Monday to block a Bureau of Land Management rule aimed at limiting methane releases from drilling operations on federal and Native American lands from taking effect Tuesday while a Wyoming federal judge hears the merits of the case.

EPA Wants To Revise Haze Rules Over Texas' Objection

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and environmental groups have asked the Fifth Circuit to deny Texas’ bid to throw out part of the federal government’s regional haze plan, arguing that instead the EPA should be allowed to revise the plan on remand.

HEALTH & LIFE SCIENCES

After Historic Vote, Fla. Drafts New Medical Pot Rules

The Florida Department of Health on Tuesday published its initial proposed rule for a medical marijuana program, taking a step toward implementing the recently passed Amendment 2 but creating controversy by charting a course closer to existing law than the broader guidelines voters overwhelmingly passed in November.

Ex-House Attys Urge High Court To Review Menendez Ruling

Former general counsels of the U.S. House of Representatives have joined U.S. Sen. Bob Menendez, D-N.J., in urging the U.S. Supreme Court to review a Third Circuit decision upholding his corruption charges, saying the ruling improperly allows

Evidence Substantiation Burden May Soon Shift To FTC

To date, questions about how the Trump administration will impact the Federal Trade Commission have focused primarily on antitrust issues, but clues to how the new administration will affect consumer protection issues might be found by examining the record of former Commissioner Joshua Wright, whom Trump has named to lead the FTC transition efforts, say attorneys at Skadden Arps Slate Meagher & Flom LLP.

Hague Convention's Impact On Secured Transactions

Choice-of-law rules for the perfection and priority of a security interest in "securities credited to a securities account" will change on April 1, 2017, when the Hague Securities Convention comes into effect. Edwin Smith and Alan Beloff of Morgan Lewis & Bockius LLP describe what steps secured parties may need to take now for existing secured transactions and in planning for new ones.

Key Trade Secret Developments Of 2016: Part 2

Our first article in this two-part series focused on the most significant event in trade secret law in many years — the passage of the federal Defend Trade Secrets Act. Health Care Enforcement Review And 2017 Outlook: Part 2

In 2016, courts around the country heard cases involving a variety of False Claims Act and other enforcement-related matters. Going forward these case law developments are expected to have an impact on both the scope of FCA liability and the means by which FCA liability can be proven at trial, say attorneys at Mintz Levin Cohn Ferris Glovsky and Popeo PC.

Amended Rule 37(e): 1 Year Later

After a full year in effect, the amended Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 37(e) has been tested in a variety of district courts. A sampling of these decisions reveals that courts seem to be adhering closely to the amended rule and ordering adverse inference instructions only where there was intent to deprive another party of access to relevant information, say Carrie Amezcua and Samantha Southall of Buchanan Ingersoll & Rooney PC.

White Paper - Mobile Account Opening: Solving The Convenience-Risk Conundrum - Download White Paper Now >

Mobile devices dominate consumer interactions with financial institutions—except account opening, because of fraud and compliance concerns. The solution lies in using mobile's unique capabilities

Most of the alternative financial technology (fintech) service providers that compete with traditional financial institutions offer digital account opening. It's the easiest and most convenient path between consumers and the financial experience they expect. Mercator Advisory Group analyst Alex Johnson believes banks must add this capability or risk losing new accounts. The challenge is how to design a mobile account opening process that is seamless for the applicant and safe for the institution.

In this Mercator Advisory Group white paper, sponsored by Mitek, you will learn:

- The current state of mobile account opening and why the trickle of new account openings will become a flood
- The conflict between greater customer convenience and the challenge of meeting "Know Your Customer" requirements and controlling fraud
- How the embedded capabilities of mobile devices—image capture, biometrics, and geolocation—can resolve this conflict and improve identification and verification
- Three criteria useful in evaluating the optimal mobile solution

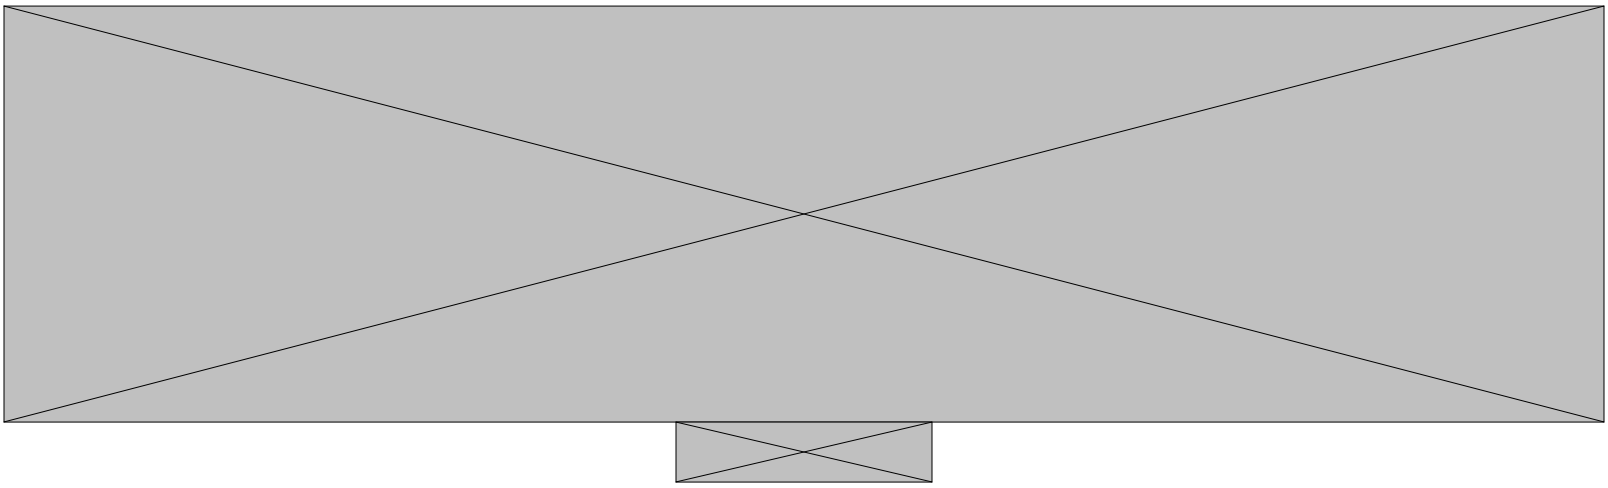
Subject: Tax Extenders Could Cost $150 billion, IMF Confirms Debt Will Grow Unsustainably, and CBO's Take on the President's FY 2020 Budget

EXTERNAL EMAIL



April 29 - May 10, 2019

Reviving Expired Tax Extenders Could Cost $150 Billion

For years, Washington has resigned itself to a patchwork of tax policy in place for one or two years at a time, allowing niche temporary tax provisions to expire, only to resurrect them a short while later. This practice has added to our mounting debt and undermined certainty in the tax code. There is little better example of how Congress routinely misses deadlines than the fact that Congress is considering reviving tax breaks that have been expired for 16 months and calling them "current policy."

This week, we joined with 11 other organizations in asking congressional leaders to ignore calls to revive temporary special-interest tax breaks known as "tax extenders." The signatories span the political spectrum, but all agree that bringing back temporary tax breaks on a retroactive basis is bad tax, fiscal, and economic policy.

IMF: U.S. Continues to Stand Out with Growing Debt

The United States ranks number one among advanced economies in expected increase of debt as a percentage of Gross Domestic Product (GDP) according to the latest estimates by the International Monetary Fund (IMF). While we already knew the national debt was on a rising, unsustainable path, these projections show how the U.S. largely remains an outlier in projected increases over the next few years.

The IMF recently released its five-year projections for 2019, which show the U.S. among just four countries with advanced economies with projected increases in debt over the coming years. The data show the projected change in net debt (gross debt minus financial assets) held by advanced countries as a percentage of their GDP. Most countries will actually see a decline in debt as a percentage of GDP over the next five years.

CBO's Analysis of the President's FY 2020 Budget

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) released its estimate of the President's Fiscal Year (FY) 2020 budget using its own assumptions to evaluate the budget's policies. CBO's analysis shows that deficits and debt under the President's budget will rise over the next decade, rather than fall as the White House claims.

Our key findings from CBO's estimates include:

- Debt under the President's budget would rise from 78 percent of Gross Domestic Product (GDP) today to 87 percent by 2029, rather than falling to 71 percent as the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) estimates.
- Under CBO's estimate of the President's budget, trillion-dollar deficits would emerge in 2022, disappear briefly, and re-emerge in 2027 and beyond.
- Deficits would total $9.9 trillion over the next decade under the President's budget, $2.7 trillion higher than the Administration estimates.
- The President's budget would reduce deficits by $1.5 trillion below current law over ten years, including $855 billion of policy savings. OMB estimated $2.8 trillion in total savings.
- The President's budget would reduce revenue by nearly $900 billion and spending by $2.3 trillion relative to current law, with the largest spending cuts coming from health care and non-defense discretionary spending. Most revenue loss comes from extending parts of the 2017 tax law.
- The vast majority of the difference in debt estimates between CBO and the President is due to different economic assumptions. OMB assumes economic growth will average 2.9 percent over the next decade, whereas CBO estimates 1.8 percent. CBO's estimates are within the mainstream of public and private estimates, whereas OMB's are very optimistic and unlikely to materialize.

Mr. Almon, thank you for sharing your concerns about terrorism and its potential impact to the Las Vegas area. I have recently expressed my own concerns directly with Secretary Johnson of the Department of Homeland Security. As a city, we invest in many resources to ensure the safety of the community and the visitors we serve. As you know, we cannot prevent every possible act of violence or terrorism. We work very hard to ensure communication, cooperation and coordination with our local government agencies, the private sector and our state and federal partners to be prepared to achieve our 5 mission areas: prevent, protect, mitigate, respond, recover from terror attack.

I am forwarding your concerns to our Joint Terrorism Task Force and the Southern Nevada Counter Terrorism Center for further investigation. If you have knowledge of specific planned targets, modes of attack, or dates and times of planned attack, please file a SAR (Suspicious Activity Report) as soon as possible with our Counter Terrorism Center. This report may be sent anonymously if so desired."

Subject: PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL FOR REVIEW BY MAYOR GOODMAN RE: TERRORISM THREAT

The Honorable Mayor Carolyn Goodman:

I am contacting you concerning the information on terrorism below. Due to 2 incidents in Las Vegas and my familiarity with terrorism, I sent the email below to a Las Vegas commander, and have since contacted other commanders, corporate, and a Las Vegas politician with my concerns. Unfortunately, the response was as inadequate as the response the FBI agents, civilians, and well known individuals experienced when warning top DC officials about 9/11. This is why I and others are so reluctant to contact authorities concerning the issue, and specifically why I hesitated to contact the Las Vegas commander with my original warning (due to what I witnessed in Las Vegas). If it were not for the fact so many EU, Australian, Chinese, and Indian friends/kids that I know visit Las Vegas I would just ignore the situation and let it happen and then say I told you so to the media. (I am also covering myself by having proof that I did warn every authority responsible for public safety in Las Vegas, the US, and abroad.) I assure the situation is far worse than you know, and I would not underestimate it or the ruthlessness of the enemy. They have already picked out their targets and made their decision to carry out their missions no matter what. They will have to be physically stopped by and aggressive and competent campaign led by competent and aggressive law enforcement/intelligence officers.

Due to the seriousness of the situation, my ties to the EU, Australia, and other countries, I have warned Ministers that I have had previous contact with and others this week concerning issuing a travel warning to their citizens. I have not mentioned the city of concern, however as of next week I may have to. I do not want to get involved in the situation at all, I like 3 other top terrorist experts are fed up with the incompetence and politicizing of terrorism that has led to the disastrous attacks from 9/11, Paris, San Bernardino, and now Brussels. (The experts are former Clinton & Bush terrorism expert Richard Clark, former CIA agent/CNN consultant Bob Baer, and former Bin Laden desk Chief Michael Scheuer.) We have all reached this point due our being completely correct in our forecasts and strategies for addressing terrorist threats, and the individuals and entities that were listened to being dead wrong each and every time. An audit of my record on forecasting terrorist trends and events to be irrefutably accurate, and an audit of the "experts" to be irrefutably inaccurate.

The individuals that are sought after to address terrorism in the US by the government and media are not actually experts-are you aware of that? If you are counting on US or local counter terrorism officials to save Las Vegas-I would stock up on body bags, you're going to need them.

Those responsible for anti-terrorism measures in Las Vegas and the US as a whole have no idea what they are up against, nor do they have a clue as to how to negate the threat-hence why ISIS/Al Qaeda continue to beat them to the punch.

EXAMPLES:

-The only people that did not know that Ms. Prouty a terrorist mole were the Directors of the FBI and CIA (literally) that fought over her and gave her the highest awards the agencies has https://www.justice.gov/archive/opa/pr/2007/November/07_nsd_910.html http://www.cbsnews.com/news/the-case-against-nada-prouty-26-03-2010/. There are a lot more Nada Prouty's in the US committing the same act. Ms. Prouty proves a Middle Easterner cannot be vetted, there are many just like her in the US that have US passports, driver's licenses, and they are in no way who the government thinks they are right down to the names on those documents.

-This terrorist pioneer lived 2 miles down the road from me http://articles.chicagotribune.com/1985-06-19/news/8502090070_1_lebanon-david-berry-nabih-berri

I grew up here and know or have met all of the people connected to this issue and I assure you the situation is far worse than is suspected by authorities. I have met and talked to many of the individuals responsible for stopping these terrorists, and trust me-the terrorists are far ahead of the opposition.

LAS VEGAS CONNECTION

http://www.wxyz.com/news/local-news/investigations/happys-pizza-headquarters-raided-by-irs-criminal-division-dea (Las Vegas has a franchise and a lot more connections to Detroit/Dearborn than you likely are aware of. It is a case of this https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JcZHSGyos6g)

I have talked with the founders of this business several times and this case was strictly about terrorist funding as in this case http://www.mlive.com/lansing-news/index.ssf/2011/12/report_several_southeast_michi.html.

In closing, my original warning should have been ran to ground, the fact that it wasn't is proof of just how off and far behind Las Vegas is in addressing Paris and Brussels style attacks (this week every Minister from every foreign country I contacted responded with a phone call or/and email seeking further information because they now "get it".) To be direct, authorities in Las Vegas and the US have their heads in the sands regarding the issue of terrorism and must change their strategy and tactics while they still have a chance to do so. With Las Vegas having the worst inherent terrorist vulnerabilities of any major city, Las Vegas should be much more precise and aggressive in avoiding such an attack (which is possible). An attack in the manner that I have forecast would dwarf the Paris body count by a minimum of X5, however it will be worse. The intelligence, physical security, and counter measures of Las Vegas are an invitation for an attack, and the terrorist know all of the cities vulnerabilities as well as I do.

No casino pit boss, dealer, etc. could have the record of the anti-terrorism leadership and still be employed in Las Vegas, it is the equivalent to them "losing" track of a million dollars every day for a year and the casino owners and Gaming Control Board accepting any explanation he came up with as legitimate. This would never happen. The see something say something just does not work as Brussels, Paris, and San Bernardino prove with the number of people that knew and didn't talk for various reasons. The #1 reason is that people simply have no confidence in authorities taking proper action. Examine my experience with the issue, each time I am putting my life and business life in danger by even contacting authorities in Las Vegas, and not once has anyone so much as responded or asked me how and why I reached the conclusions I have reached. This is a mirror of the warning by James Woods cited below regarding 9/11-it all could have and should have been ended right then and there. The mindset of law enforcement/political leadership on the municipal level must change, at the end of the day the battle and ramifications are like all politics-local.

As you know the odds always catch up, and luck runs out. Vegas' luck is about to run out in the worst of ways. If you would like the scenario I war gamed, I will forward it upon your request.

Thank you and good luck-

Sincerely,
Jerome Almon

Sheriff Moody:

Thank you for you response and time regarding the issues below:

1)THE TERRORISM ISSUE:

As you are certainly aware of, Al Qaeda has Las Vegas as one of its top 5 main targets, specifically the Strip. I am certain that the area has been scouted and targets selected based on my experience in the area and my observations of individuals and groups while in Las Vegas. They will hit what is most familiar with them, and Las Vegas is very familiar to them. (For example the mastermind behind 911 graduated from the University of North Carolina http://edition.cnn.com/2002/US/South/12/19/al.qaeda.aggie/ .

ACTIONS THAT WILL BE TAKEN BY TERRORIST:

A) http://newyork.cbslocal.com/2014/03/19/al-qaeda-magazine-calls-for-car-bombings-in-u-s-new-york

B) http://www.cnn.com/2013/09/18/world/asia/mumbai-terror-attacks/

RECOMMENDED COUNTER MEASURES:

A) Special response teams will not get to the site in time, and must be in place PRIOR to any incident in the immediate area.
B) CONTAIN AND KILL-officers must be prepared to neutralize the terrorist at the point of attack, i.e. the attacker cannot be allowed out of the building, off the block, or off the side of the street where they attacked (Las Vegas Blvd is a perfect kill zone for a terrorist due to its geography, such as the inability to cross the Strip in certain areas combined with the natural traffic volume.) Point blank, these are the same individuals and groups that Delta Force, Navy SEALS, Army Rangers, Airforce Commandos, and Marine RECON/special forces faced on the battlefields of Iraq and Afghanistan-they are not to be under estimated. (Essentially they are Islamic special forces.) They are going to attack sooner than later.
C) Las Vegas should have its own anti-terrorism unit on the level of the NYPD's anti-terrorism unit, NYC learned its lesson the hard way 911-YOU CANNOT DEPEND ON THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TO PROTECT YOUR CITY. As you will see in the information from the Canadian CIA (CSIS) and the response to that information from both that unit and myself, the federal authorities are grossly out of touch with reality regarding terrorism.

I assure you this is not close to the worst.
I am well versed in this area as you will see due to my studies/duties as a university guest lecturer, and personal experiences however most of my experience is first hand. I left college and joined the US Army, several individuals that I attended college with left college and joined our enemy and did fight against the US in numerous war zones around the world. These individuals are supported by groups in America, and know the country as well as you and I do.

Secretary Napolitano-

I am writing you concerning a pervasive and unacceptable sanctioned policy within the Department of Homeland Security of the sexual harassment of female traveler's entering the United States. I have been informed by numerous female travelers coming to visite me in the United States from Norway, Germany, and especially Canada that they are routinely harassed by male DHS inspectors. I find the allegations completely credible due to the carbon copy stories from the females, and the profile of the females- all attractive teen or near teen girls traveling alone. The harassment is so overt that it is impossible that supervisors are not aware of it, do not witness it, and in fact sanction it.

I have a substantial amount of both academic and field study experience in this area, and have personally witnessed the practice by DHSemployees myself. This is should be addressed in the open without hesitation. It is insulting to the female travelers, and also opens up US females to the retaliatory actions by the security personnel of other countries- which I assure has happened. Certainly with all the alleged dangers facing Americans and the gaping holes in border security at the various ports of entry, DHS does not have the luxury expending valuable energy and tax payers money on sexually harassing female travelers.

I thank you for your time and consideration and will await your reply.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

website_comments: I have had previous contacts with your office issues (specifically Bonnie Tischler). I feel it is necessary to reintroduce this information (I will send a copy of thisinformation to US Senator Carl Levin.) I have made compliants against certain procedures and individuals at the Detroit/Windsor border crossing. I also corresponded with the Canadian Minister for Immigration (Elinor Caplan) concerning the fact that even the supervisors at the Canadian border do not understand much of the information they need to concerning legitimate vs. false documentation. (I unfortunately am able to prove this point.) Meaning if say a person was on a wanted list -the Canadians often ask the person to interpret the information.
Finally the Detroit/Windsor tunnel. It is a disaster waiting to happen. Since the US checks cars AFTER they have entered the tunnel (as does Canada) -doesn't that defeat the objective of stopping a terrorist act in the tunnel? The check should happen before the tunnel is entered, and after-or the tunnel should be closed.

I originally warned a agent at a federal law enforcement entity of the threat on 9/11 and although he agreed I was correct, he took no action, stating he didn't exactly know what to do regarding the information, and that he was quite frankly stunned at the danger. Only when an individual drove through the tunnel with what appeared to be a bomb on his front seat did the politicians take the matter up, as you will see with NYC. The tunnel is in a far worse position than it was on 9/11 due to Detroit's economic collapse, the influx of more Middle Easterners into Canada, and this http://www.reuters.com/article/us-detroit-tunnel-bankruptcy-idUSBRE96O0RT20130725.

Tighter security at border hits snag

Legal issues may block U.S., Canada checks before crossing

WASHINGTON -- Checking travelers between the United States and Canada after they've crossed the border -- which some liken to checking airline passengers after they land -- is being scrutinized by officials concerned that bridges and tunnels could be vulnerable to attack.

Lawmakers are pressuring the U.S. Customs Service and Canadian officials to come up with a decision this week on whether the countries can swap inspection locations.

An alternative to paying a toll, crossing the bridge or tunnel, and then being scrutinized by Customs officials once inside the other country's territory is to do inspections before crossing.

Although the reverse inspection system is the only solution being lobbied to enhance infrastructure safety, the two nations haven't agreed on how to settle legal obstacles. An old idea revived by the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, a revised system would involve numerous agencies in both countries in the decision.

"This reverse clearance proposal has a number of sovereignty and structure issues attached to it," said Michel Proulx, spokesman for the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency in Ottawa.

"There are a lot of players involved in all of this. It's difficult to get a sound, concrete answer. No one department or agency would be able to say yes or no."

There's little to stop someone who wanted to damage the Ambassador Bridge, Detroit-Windsor Tunnel, or even Detroit Metropolitan Airport, if the crime is done before the perpetrator even gets to an inspection point, critics say.

Besides the human safety concern, destroying any one of the border-crossing points would do serious harm to the auto industry, one of the United States' economic engines, and many other businesses that rely on just-in-time delivery of material. Michigan had $70 billion in trade with Canada in 2000.

"Every time I drive through that tunnel, I expect something to happen," said Jerome Almon, a Detroiter who drives to and from Toronto at least twice a month.

"Osama bin Laden says the economy is what they want to attack, and you cannot find a more decimating effect than that bridge or tunnel on our economy. You will kill Detroit, it's over, goodbye. But think of the effect on the rest of America."

Firearms an issue

Aside from jurisdiction, the question of whether U.S. Customs agents should carry firearms in Canada is of particular concern to Canadians. Canada is known for being much less tolerant of guns than the United States.

"Our Customs officers are not armed and at this point in time we still feel there is no reason for them to be," Proulx said.

"We have a study going on right now to determine whether the tools they have are adequate to do their jobs safely and with full security. The U.S. (agents) are (armed) and definitely that would be one of the snags in the issue."

The preclearance concept does have precedent. U.S. Customs agents inspect U.S.-bound passengers at six Canadian airports so they don't have to be routed through Customs once they arrive like travelers on flights from every other country, said former Michigan Gov. James Blanchard.

He spearheaded the "open skies" agreement when he was U.S. ambassador to Canada.

The real stumbling block to doing this at bridges and tunnels will be working out how much authority each side is given to enforce the other country's laws, he said.

"You could always prevent (a suspicious passenger) from getting on the plane," Blanchard said. "The question is who arrests them, can they say 'I choose not to fly' then go home, or do we hold them?"

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Detroit, said he thinks all of the issues can be worked out.

"The only impediment here is bureaucratic impediment," he said. "Even though there's supposed to be an urgency after Sept. 11, there seems to be some unnecessary foot-dragging."
Levin and Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, sent a letter to Customs Commissioner Robert Bonner on Jan. 4, insisting on a progress report by Friday.
"It is obvious that inspecting vehicles for dangerous contents such as bombs or explosives after they enter our tunnels or cross our bridges is inadequate," they wrote.
Customs spokesman Jim Michie said he wasn't sure when a decision would be made on reverse inspections, but that it was being closely studied.
Tighter local security
Local authorities say they've taken the steps they can to bolster security.
Travelers who use the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel are no longer allowed through unless operators are certain they can make to the other side without backups, said Gordon Jarvis, president of the Detroit & Canada Tunnel Corp.
"If there is an incident and you need to get out, there is space for you to do so, and there are fewer cars in the tunnel at any one time," Jarvis said. "It also makes it much easier for us to identify when there are incidents in the tunnel."
Jarvis said reverse inspections are a viable option at the tunnel, despite the smaller queue area, compared to other crossing points like the Ambassador Bridge.
The owners of the Ambassador Bridge have installed new lighting, fencing and surveillance cameras, as well as armed security 24 hours a day, said Dan Stamper, president of the Detroit International Bridge Co. Stamper said the bridge company is paying for the extra security.
"We're not sure whose responsibility it is for the cost of security, but we are not in the position to say it's not going to be done," he said.
The bridge authority has completed plans showing that logistically, preclearance can be implemented on an interim basis within 90 days, Stamper said. In doing so, there would be the added bonus of huge efficiencies in traffic flow.
"The current six lanes that cross the border, two at the tunnel and four at the bridge, become traffic lanes and not parking lots," Stamper said. "It increases the capacity of both the tunnel and the bridge, a lot more than anything else we can do today."
Blue Water Bridge study
Bruce Campbell, the engineer manager of the Blue Water Bridge, said the proposal is being examined as part of a long-term security review of the span connecting Port Huron with Sarnia, Ontario.
With the Ambassador Bridge being the busiest U.S.-Canada entry point, carrying 12 million vehicles a year, the economic implications for the region are enormous.

"One 18-wheeler goes across that bridge every eight seconds," said Carmine Palombo, director of transportation planning at the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

The implications for the bridge and tunnel operators are significant as well.

"They're all looking at an out-of-pocket expense they hadn't anticipated," said Neil Gray, director of government affairs at the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association, which represents toll agencies.

"Nobody wants to do a toll increase to reflect this, in fact I'm not sure anyone has proposed one, but it's an issue we are all having to think about."

Protecting airports is a concern as well, though most of the attention has been on protecting aircraft against air piracy, Capt. Duane E. Woerth, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, told senators late last year.

Noting that airports in Rome and Vienna have been hit, Woerth said he's worried terrorists could attack ticket counters, check-in facilities and lines of passengers waiting outside.

Airlines, bridges and tunnels are experiencing lower traffic flow because of leisure travelers concerned about terrorist risks.

Almon, the Detroiter who travels to Toronto on business, said he's a former combat engineer with the Army and he's concerned about how easily a carload of explosives put together with store-bought material could take out the bridge or tunnel.

"At the mouth of the Detroit tunnel sits General Motors headquarters, a terrorist would get two for one with that," Almon said.

The issue with the Ambassador Bridge is equally troubled, the owner has successfully blocked a new bridge being built. The issue too closely resembles the Dubai Ports issue https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Manuel_Moroun. Ottawa wrote me 90 days after my warning to CYA and because again what I warned them about occurred.

The largest portion of the trade comes through the tunnel and bridge mentioned https://www.commerce.gov/news/blog/2014/01/secretary-pritzker-highlights-strong-economic-partnership-between-usa-and-canada

Dr. Zagar-
Good to hear from you. I am sorry I just got to my email messages, I am working on several other huge projects that all come back to the migrant issue. I will have to hook up Skype, I don't know how it works to be honest.

The situation in the States is pretty dire. We are essentially at civil war with the country collapsing socially. All of the work that you and Dr. Feinstein did and your forecasts turned out to be 100% accurate. Simply put, America bet on the wrong people with the wrong plans and now we are getting our comeuppance.

I am against the re-settling of immigrants in the US or Europe, it will most certainly lead to more conflict in both areas and the Middle East. The only hope is establishing a safe zone in Syria and Iraq, which is as close to impossible as it gets considering the collapse of the basic structures and the radicalization of the factions. Electing George Bush was the worse event that has happened to the world since WWII. I will get on Skype and send you another email asap. I am moving to Berlin to work on a large social media project in the next 30-60 days. In the meantime I am sending these articles for your review concern my thoughts on the migrant issue. Would you be able to attend a conference on the issue of the migrants and school shooter issues in Europe or the US with all expenses and a fee paid to you?

The other issue I am extremely concerned about is a threat that would end Detroit, cost America 2 million jobs in a week, and plunge the stock market to below 2008 and 911 levels. The Iran deal was done in part due to Iran has 40,000 agents in or at America's borders prepared to attack if Iran's nuclear facilities were attacked. That is the good news, the bad news is the Sunnis have 3X that many agents in the US and are preparing for their "Islamic Tet offensive." With Russia, out of necessity intervening in the Syrian/Iraq war and the US govt. giving behind the scenes approval for the Russian-Iranian-Alawite axis which will inevitably bring in Israel and the US the Sunnis will go after the US and Canadians on their own soil in a much more aggressive and massive way. My assessment is that the Chinese will be drawn into the war due the unrest with the Xinjiang Province and the Uighars. The Islamic State (IS) has spread throughout Central Asia and will take Afghanistan and defeat the Taliban in the end unless there is a "mass war event." It is my contention that Putin has decided to that. He cannot lose the Syrian-Iraq War, he cannot allow the IS to continue to grow in the Central Asian Republics, and Afghanistan, and he is not giving up Crimea, and does not have the military resources nor money to fight a prolonged war. I believe Putin is planning to use a tactical/battle field nuclear weapon (NATO appears to be thinking that way on the Ukraine which is insane). Most of the intelligence guys that I respect believe that is the only way to stop the IS/Sunnis or to completely withdraw from the Middle East. What is your opinion?
Thanks-
Jerome

(My numbers on the size of the networks mentioned are accurate I assure you. 2 other respected security/intelligence officers that have a proven track record of accuracy, agree with me. The messages I sent to US authorities were more detailed and were sent in the Spring of 2014, and the Spring and Summer of 2015.)

Sir or Madam: I am forwarding the following information sent to first responders, due to its application to your industry. To be direct, I have warned your union several times since 9/11 of these very threats, and the actions of the leadership has not matched the threat. Unfortunately, this is the same conduct of law enforcement and political leadership regarding what is now a catastrophic situation. That is, the industry will suffer huge losses in both personnel and revenue due to the lack of taking prudent steps to pre-act rather than react to obvious threats. The only hope in negating or minimizing the threat is for the travel, hotel, and tourism industries along with the pilot and flight attendant unions (and their allies) to join forces and seek to have necessary security and industry support measures put in place without political consideration. The needed measures must be completely based on the real world security and economic threat that exists, and is getting worse by the minute. The losses France and Belgium are suffering are just the beginning, and minor in compared to an Egypt Air or Russian Sharm El Sheikh incident in North America or Europe. I assure you, the threat is far worse than is known even to most of the law enforcement community.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

TRUE STATE OF THE TERRORIST THREAT IN AMERICA

From Canada's CIA (CSIS):
"Many Canadians may be surprised to learn that, with the exception of the United States, there are more terrorist groups active in Canada today than in any other country in the world."

VERIFICATION

http://www.torontosun.com/2013/01/23/algerian-terrorists-had-canadian-ties-eh

Hi Katja,

I got your contact details from Marie at Freemuse in Denmark. My name is Scott Corben and I am a producer with Al Jazeera Television in London.

I am researching a piece on soldier in the United States and
I am really keen to speak to a guy called Jerome Almon. I believe he is based in Detroit. Maries tells me that you may have some way of contacting him. If you have an up to date email or phone number I'd really appreciate it.

Look forward to hearing from you

best regards,

Well, this is certainly…interesting. I do not recall having seen or heard of such communications from this person until now. I will forward the string to the Fusion Center to follow up on. If his message reached Ted Moody prior to his retirement, he would have sent it along to SNCTC as well. If so, they will have a file started on this person and any communications they may have had with him since. His initial warning in May 2014 has yet to pan out and with no specifics to go on, there's not much we can do.

I recommend your response read something to the effect of:

"Mr. Almon, thank you for sharing your concerns about terrorism and its potential impact to the Las Vegas area. I have recently expressed my own concerns directly with Secretary Johnson of the Department of Homeland Security. As a city, we invest in many resources to ensure the safety of the community and the visitors we serve. As you know, we cannot prevent every possible act of violence or terrorism. We work very hard to ensure communication, cooperation and coordination with our local government agencies, the private sector and our state and federal partners to be prepared to achieve our 5 mission areas: prevent, protect, mitigate, respond, recover from terror attack.

I am forwarding your concerns to our Joint Terrorism Task Force and the Southern Nevada Counter Terrorism Center for further investigation. If you have knowledge of specific planned targets, modes of attack, or dates and times of planned attack, please file a SAR (Suspicious Activity Report) as soon as possible with our Counter Terrorism Center. This report may be sent anonymously if so desired."

I hope this is satisfactory for your use. Please let me know if he persists with non-specific information about how much danger we are in. Thank you!

Subject: PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL FOR REVIEW BY MAYOR GOODMAN RE: TERRORISM THREAT

The Honorable Mayor Carolyn Goodman:

I am contacting you concerning the information on terrorism below. Due to 2 incidents in Las Vegas and my familiarity with terrorism, I sent the email below to a Las Vegas commander, and have since contacted other commanders, corporate, and a Las Vegas politician with my concerns. Unfortunately, the response was as inadequate as the response the FBI agents, civilians, and well known individuals experienced when warning top DC officials about 9/11. This is why I and others are so reluctant to contact authorities concerning the issue, and specifically why I hesitated to contact the Las Vegas commander with my original warning (due to what I witnessed in Las Vegas). If it were not for the fact so many EU, Australian, Chinese, and Indian friends/kids that I know visit Las Vegas I would just ignore the situation and let it happen and then say I told you so to the media. (I am also covering myself by having proof that I did warn every authority responsible for public safety in Las Vegas, the US, and abroad.) I assure the situation is far worse than you know, and I would not underestimate it or the ruthlessness of the enemy. They have already picked out their targets and made their decision to carry out their missions no matter what. They will have to be physically stopped by and aggressive and competent campaign led by competent and aggressive law enforcement/intelligence officers.

Due to the seriousness of the situation, my ties to the EU, Australia, and other countries, I have warned Ministers that I have had previous contact with and others this week concerning issuing a travel warning to their citizens. I have not mentioned the city of concern, however as of next week I may have to. I do not want to get involved in the situation at all, I like 3 other top terrorist experts are fed up with the incompetence and politicizing of terrorism that has led to the disastrous attacks from 9/11, Paris, San Bernardino, and now Brussels. (The experts are former Clinton & Bush terrorism expert Richard Clark, former CIA agent/CNN consultant Bob Baer, and former Bin Laden desk Chief Michael Scheuer.) We have all reached this point due our being completely correct in our forecasts and strategies for addressing terrorist threats, and the individuals and entities that were listened to being dead wrong each and every time. An audit of my record on forecasting terrorist trends and events to be irrefutably accurate, and an audit of the "experts" to be irrefutably inaccurate.

The individuals that are sought after to address terrorism in the US by the government and media are not actually experts-are you aware of that? If you are counting on US or local counter terrorism officials to save Las Vegas-I would stock up on body bags, you're going to need them.

Those responsible for anti-terrorism measures in Las Vegas and the US as a whole have no idea what they are up against, nor do they have a clue as to how to negate the threat-hence why ISIS/Al Qaeda continue to beat them to the punch.

EXAMPLES:

-The only people that did not know that Ms. Prouty a terrorist mole were the Directors of the FBI and CIA (literally) that fought over her and gave her the highest awards the agencies has https://www.justice.gov/archive/opa/pr/2007/November/07_nsd_910.html http://www.cbsnews.com/news/the-case-against-nada-prouty-26-03-2010/. There are a lot more Nada Prouty's in the US committing the same act. Ms. Prouty proves a Middle Easterner cannot be vetted, there are many just like her in the US that have US passports, driver's licenses, and they are in no way who the government thinks they are right down to the names on those documents.

-This terrorist pioneer lived 2 miles down the road from me http://articles.chicagotribune.com/1985-06-19/news/8502090070_1_lebanon-david-berry-nabih-berri

I grew up here and know or have met all of the people connected to this issue and I assure you the situation is far worse than is suspected by authorities. I have met and talked to many of the individuals responsible for stopping these terrorists, and trust me-the terrorists are far ahead of the opposition.

LAS VEGAS CONNECTION

http://www.wxyz.com/news/local-news/investigations/happys-pizza-headquarters-raided-by-irs-criminal-division-dea (Las Vegas has a franchise and a lot more connections to Detroit/Dearborn than you likely are aware of. It is a case of this https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JcZHSGyos6g)

I have talked with the founders of this business several times and this case was strictly about terrorist funding as in this case http://www.mlive.com/lansing-news/index.ssf/2011/12/report_several_southeast_michi.html.

In closing, my original warning should have been ran to ground, the fact that it wasn't is proof of just how off and far behind Las Vegas is in addressing Paris and Brussels style attacks (this week every Minister from every foreign country I contacted responded with a phone call or/and email seeking further information because they now "get it".) To be direct, authorities in Las Vegas and the US have their heads in the sands regarding the issue of terrorism and must change their strategy and tactics while they still have a chance to do so. With Las Vegas having the worst inherent terrorist vulnerabilities of any major city, Las Vegas should be much more precise and aggressive in avoiding such an attack (which is possible). An attack in the manner that I have forecast would dwarf the Paris body count by a minimum of X5, however it will be worse. The intelligence, physical security, and counter measures of Las Vegas are an invitation for an attack, and the terrorist know all of the cities vulnerabilities as well as I do.

No casino pit boss, dealer, etc. could have the record of the anti-terrorism leadership and still be employed in Las Vegas, it is the equivalent to them "losing" track of a million dollars every day for a year and the casino owners and Gaming Control Board accepting any explanation he came up with as legitimate. This would never happen. The see something say something just does not work as Brussels, Paris, and San Bernardino prove with the number of people that knew and didn't talk for various reasons. The #1 reason is that people simply have no confidence in authorities taking proper action. Examine my experience with the issue, each time I am putting my life and business life in danger by even contacting authorities in Las Vegas, and not once has anyone so much as responded or asked me how and why I reached the conclusions I have reached. This is a mirror of the warning by James Woods cited below regarding 9/11-it all could have and should have been ended right then and there. The mindset of law enforcement/political leadership on the municipal level must change, at the end of the day the battle and ramifications are like all politics-local.

As you know the odds always catch up, and luck runs out. Vegas' luck is about to run out in the worst of ways. If you would like the scenario I war gamed, I will forward it upon your request.

Thank you and good luck-

Sincerely,
Jerome Almon

Sheriff Moody:

Thank you for you response and time regarding the issues below:

1)THE TERRORISM ISSUE:

As you are certainly aware of, Al Qaeda has Las Vegas as one of its top 5 main targets, specifically the Strip. I am certain that the area has been scouted and targets selected based on my experience in the area and my observations of individuals and groups while in Las Vegas. They will hit what is most familiar with them, and Las Vegas is very familiar to them. (For example the mastermind behind 911 graduated from the University of North Carolina http://edition.cnn.com/2002/US/South/12/19/al.qaeda.aggie/ .

ACTIONS THAT WILL BE TAKEN BY TERRORIST:

A) http://newyork.cbslocal.com/2014/03/19/al-qaeda-magazine-calls-for-car-bombings-in-u-s-new-york

B) http://www.cnn.com/2013/09/18/world/asia/mumbai-terror-attacks/

RECOMMENDED COUNTER MEASURES:

A) Special response teams will not get to the site in time, and must be in place PRIOR to any incident in the immediate area.
B) CONTAIN AND KILL-officers must be prepared to neutralize the terrorist at the point of attack, i.e. the attacker cannot be allowed out of the building, off the block, or off the side of the street where they attacked (Las Vegas Blvd is a perfect kill zone for a terrorist due to its geography, such as the inability to cross the Strip in certain areas combined with the natural traffic volume.) Point blank, these are the same individuals and groups that Delta Force, Navy SEALS, Army Rangers, Airforce Commandos, and Marine RECON/special forces faced on the battlefields of Iraq and Afghanistan-they are not to be under estimated. (Essentially they are Islamic special forces.) They are going to attack sooner than later.
C) Las Vegas should have its own anti-terrorism unit on the level of the NYPD's anti-terrorism unit, NYC learned its lesson the hard way 911-YOU CANNOT DEPEND ON THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TO PROTECT YOUR CITY. As you will see in the information from the Canadian CIA (CSIS) and the response to that information from both that unit and myself, the federal authorities are grossly out of touch with reality regarding terrorism.

I assure you this is not close to the worst.
I am well versed in this area as you will see due to my studies/duties as a university guest lecturer, and personal experiences however most of my experience is first hand. I left college and joined the US Army, several individuals that I attended college with left college and joined our enemy and did fight against the US in numerous war zones around the world. These individuals are supported by groups in America, and know the country as well as you and I do.

Secretary Napolitano-

I am writing you concerning a pervasive and unacceptable sanctioned policy within the Department of Homeland Security of the sexual harassment of female traveler's entering the United States. I have been informed by numerous female travelers coming to visite me in the United States from Norway, Germany, and especially Canada that they are routinely harassed by male DHS inspectors. I find the allegations completely credible due to the carbon copy stories from the females, and the profile of the females- all attractive teen or near teen girls traveling alone. The harassment is so overt that it is impossible that supervisors are not aware of it, do not witness it, and in fact sanction it.

I have a substantial amount of both academic and field study experience in this area, and have personally witnessed the practice by DHSemployees myself. This is should be addressed in the open without hesitation. It is insulting to the female travelers, and also opens up US females to the retaliatory actions by the security personnel of other countries- which I assure has happened. Certainly with all the alleged dangers facing Americans and the gaping holes in border security at the various ports of entry, DHS does not have the luxury expending valuable energy and tax payers money on sexually harassing female travelers.

I thank you for your time and consideration and will await your reply.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

website_comments: I have had previous contacts with your office issues (specifically Bonnie Tischler). I feel it is necessary to reintroduce this information (I will send a copy of thisinformation to US Senator Carl Levin.) I have made compliants against certain procedures and individuals at the Detroit/Windsor border crossing. I also corresponded with the Canadian Minister for Immigration (Elinor Caplan) concerning the fact that even the supervisors at the Canadian border do not understand much of the information they need to concerning legitimate vs. false documentation. (I unfortunately am able to prove this point.) Meaning if say a person was on a wanted list -the Canadians often ask the person to interpret the information.
Finally the Detroit/Windsor tunnel. It is a disaster waiting to happen. Since the US checks cars AFTER they have entered the tunnel (as does Canada) -doesn't that defeat the objective of stopping a terrorist act in the tunnel? The check should happen before the tunnel is entered, and after-or the tunnel should be closed.

I originally warned a agent at a federal law enforcement entity of the threat on 9/11 and although he agreed I was correct, he took no action, stating he didn't exactly know what to do regarding the information, and that he was quite frankly stunned at the danger. Only when an individual drove through the tunnel with what appeared to be a bomb on his front seat did the politicians take the matter up, as you will see with NYC. The tunnel is in a far worse position than it was on 9/11 due to Detroit's economic collapse, the influx of more Middle Easterners into Canada, and this http://www.reuters.com/article/us-detroit-tunnel-bankruptcy-idUSBRE96O0RT20130725.

Tighter security at border hits snag

Legal issues may block U.S., Canada checks before crossing

WASHINGTON -- Checking travelers between the United States and Canada after they've crossed the border -- which some liken to checking airline passengers after they land -- is being scrutinized by officials concerned that bridges and tunnels could be vulnerable to attack.

Lawmakers are pressuring the U.S. Customs Service and Canadian officials to come up with a decision this week on whether the countries can swap inspection locations.

An alternative to paying a toll, crossing the bridge or tunnel, and then being scrutinized by Customs officials once inside the other country's territory is to do inspections before crossing.

Although the reverse inspection system is the only solution being lobbied to enhance infrastructure safety, the two nations haven't agreed on how to settle legal obstacles. An old idea revived by the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, a revised system would involve numerous agencies in both countries in the decision.

"This reverse clearance proposal has a number of sovereignty and structure issues attached to it," said Michel Proulx, spokesman for the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency in Ottawa.

"There are a lot of players involved in all of this. It's difficult to get a sound, concrete answer. No one department or agency would be able to say yes or no."

There's little to stop someone who wanted to damage the Ambassador Bridge, Detroit-Windsor Tunnel, or even Detroit Metropolitan Airport, if the crime is done before the perpetrator even gets to an inspection point, critics say.

Besides the human safety concern, destroying any one of the border-crossing points would do serious harm to the auto industry, one of the United States' economic engines, and many other businesses that rely on just-in-time delivery of material. Michigan had $70 billion in trade with Canada in 2000.

"Every time I drive through that tunnel, I expect something to happen," said Jerome Almon, a Detroiter who drives to and from Toronto at least twice a month.

"Osama bin Laden says the economy is what they want to attack, and you cannot find a more decimating effect than that bridge or tunnel on our economy. You will kill Detroit, it's over, goodbye. But think of the effect on the rest of America."

Firearms an issue

Aside from jurisdiction, the question of whether U.S. Customs agents should carry firearms in Canada is of particular concern to Canadians. Canada is known for being much less tolerant of guns than the United States.

"Our Customs officers are not armed and at this point in time we still feel there is no reason for them to be," Proulx said.

"We have a study going on right now to determine whether the tools they have are adequate to do their jobs safely and with full security. The U.S. (agents) are (armed) and definitely that would be one of the snags in the issue."

The preclearance concept does have precedent. U.S. Customs agents inspect U.S.-bound passengers at six Canadian airports so they don't have to be routed through Customs once they arrive like travelers on flights from every other country, said former Michigan Gov. James Blanchard.

He spearheaded the "open skies" agreement when he was U.S. ambassador to Canada.

The real stumbling block to doing this at bridges and tunnels will be working out how much authority each side is given to enforce the other country's laws, he said.

"You could always prevent (a suspicious passenger) from getting on the plane," Blanchard said. "The question is who arrests them, can they say 'I choose not to fly' then go home, or do we hold them?"

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Detroit, said he thinks all of the issues can be worked out.

"The only impediment here is bureaucratic impediment," he said. "Even though there's supposed to be an urgency after Sept. 11, there seems to be some unnecessary foot-dragging."

Levin and Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, sent a letter to Customs Commissioner Robert Bonner on Jan. 4, insisting on a progress report by Friday.

"It is obvious that inspecting vehicles for dangerous contents such as bombs or explosives after they enter our tunnels or cross our bridges is inadequate," they wrote.

Customs spokesman Jim Michie said he wasn't sure when a decision would be made on reverse inspections, but that it was being closely studied.

Tighter local security

Local authorities say they've taken the steps they can to bolster security.

Travelers who use the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel are no longer allowed through unless operators are certain they can make to the other side without backups, said Gordon Jarvis, president of the Detroit & Canada Tunnel Corp.

"If there is an incident and you need to get out, there is space for you to do so, and there are fewer cars in the tunnel at any one time," Jarvis said. "It also makes it much easier for us to identify when there are incidents in the tunnel."

Jarvis said reverse inspections are a viable option at the tunnel, despite the smaller queue area, compared to other crossing points like the Ambassador Bridge.

The owners of the Ambassador Bridge have installed new lighting, fencing and surveillance cameras, as well as armed security 24 hours a day, said Dan Stamper, president of the Detroit International Bridge Co. Stamper said the bridge company is paying for the extra security.

"We're not sure whose responsibility it is for the cost of security, but we are not in the position to say it's not going to be done," he said.

The bridge authority has completed plans showing that logistically, preclearance can be implemented on an interim basis within 90 days, Stamper said. In doing so, there would be the added bonus of huge efficiencies in traffic flow.

"The current six lanes that cross the border, two at the tunnel and four at the bridge, become traffic lanes and not parking lots," Stamper said. "It increases the capacity of both the tunnel and the bridge, a lot more than anything else we can do today."

Blue Water Bridge study

Bruce Campbell, the engineer manager of the Blue Water Bridge, said the proposal is being examined as part of a long-term security review of the span connecting Port Huron with Sarnia, Ontario.

With the Ambassador Bridge being the busiest U.S.-Canada entry point, carrying 12 million vehicles a year, the economic implications for the region are enormous.

"One 18-wheeler goes across that bridge every eight seconds," said Carmine Palombo, director of transportation planning at the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

The implications for the bridge and tunnel operators are significant as well.

"They're all looking at an out-of-pocket expense they hadn't anticipated," said Neil Gray, director of government affairs at the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association, which represents toll agencies.

"Nobody wants to do a toll increase to reflect this, in fact I'm not sure anyone has proposed one, but it's an issue we are all having to think about."

Protecting airports is a concern as well, though most of the attention has been on protecting aircraft against air piracy, Capt. Duane E. Woerth, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, told senators late last year.

Noting that airports in Rome and Vienna have been hit, Woerth said he's worried terrorists could attack ticket counters, check-in facilities and lines of passengers waiting outside.
Airlines, bridges and tunnels are experiencing lower traffic flow because of leisure travelers concerned about terrorist risks.
Almon, the Detroiter who travels to Toronto on business, said he's a former combat engineer with the Army and he's concerned about how easily a carload of explosives put together with store-bought material could take out the bridge or tunnel.
"At the mouth of the Detroit tunnel sits General Motors headquarters, a terrorist would get two for one with that," Almon said.

Dear Mr. Almon:

Again, thank you for writing and for providing me with your comments.

The issue with the Ambassador Bridge is equally troubled, the owner has successfully blocked a new bridge being built. The issue too closely resembles the Dubai Ports issue https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Manuel_Moroun. Ottawa wrote me 90 days after my warning to CYA and because again what I warned them about occurred.

Good to hear from you. I am sorry I just got to my email messages, I am working on several other huge projects that all come back to the migrant issue. I will have to hook up Skype, I don't know how it works to be honest.

The situation in the States is pretty dire. We are essentially at civil war with the country collapsing socially. All of the work that you and Dr. Feinstein did and your forecasts turned out to be 100% accurate. Simply put, America bet on the wrong people with the wrong plans and now we are getting our comeuppance.

I am against the re-settling of immigrants in the US or Europe, it will most certainly lead to more conflict in both areas and the Middle East. The only hope is establishing a safe zone in Syria and Iraq, which is as close to impossible as it gets considering the collapse of the basic structures and the radicalization of the factions. Electing George Bush was the worse event that has happened to the world since WWII. I will get on Skype and send you another email asap. I am moving to Berlin to work on a large social media project in the next 30-60 days. In the meantime I am sending these articles for your review concern my thoughts on the migrant issue. Would you be able to attend a conference on the issue of the migrants and school shooter issues in Europe or the US with all expenses and a fee paid to you?

The other issue I am extremely concerned about is a threat that would end Detroit, cost America 2 million jobs in a week, and plunge the stock market to below 2008 and 911 levels. The Iran deal was done in part due to Iran has 40,000 agents in or at America's borders prepared to attack if Iran's nuclear facilities were attacked. That is the good news, the bad news is the Sunnis have 3X that many agents in the US and are preparing for their "Islamic Tet offensive." With Russia, out of necessity intervening in the Syrian/Iraq war and the US govt. giving behind the scenes approval for the Russian-Iranian-Alawite axis which will inevitably bring in Israel and the US the Sunnis will go after the US and Canadians on their own soil in a much more aggressive and massive way. My assessment is that the Chinese will be drawn into the war due the unrest with the Xinjiang Province and the Uighars. The Islamic State (IS) has spread throughout Central Asia and will take Afghanistan and defeat the Taliban in the end unless there is a "mass war event." It is my contention that Putin has decided to that. He cannot lose the Syrian-Iraq War, he cannot allow the IS to continue to grow in the Central Asian Republics, and Afghanistan, and he is not giving up Crimea, and does not have the military resources nor money to fight a prolonged war. I believe Putin is planning to use a tactical/battle field nuclear weapon (NATO appears to be thinking that way on the Ukraine which is insane). Most of the intelligence guys that I respect believe that is the only way to stop the IS/Sunnis or to completely withdraw from the Middle East. What is your opinion?
Thanks-
Jerome

(My numbers on the size of the networks mentioned are accurate I assure you. 2 other respected security/intelligence officers that have a proven track record of accuracy, agree with me. The messages I sent to US authorities were more detailed and were sent in the Spring of 2014, and the Spring and Summer of 2015.)

WARNING TO AIRLINE INDUSTRY THAT FORESAW BRUSSELS ATTACK

-------- Original Message --------
Subject: THE THREAT OF TERRORISM TO THE TRAVEL INDUSTRY AND CORRECTIONS THAT MUST BE MADE
From: <act@preactdontreact.com>
Date: Sun, November 29, 2015 7:59 pm
To: president@apfa.org, Nancy.Rivard@airlineamb.org, public-comment@alliedpilots.org, PMcIsaac@americanpilots.org, comm.chair@alliedpilots.org
Cc: communications@apfa.org

Sir or Madam: I am forwarding the following information sent to first responders, due to its application to your industry. To be direct, I have warned your union several times since 9/11 of these very threats, and the actions of the leadership has not matched the threat. Unfortunately, this is the same conduct of law enforcement and political leadership regarding what is now a catastrophic situation. That is, the industry will suffer huge losses in both personnel and revenue due to the lack of taking prudent steps to pre-act rather than react to obvious threats. The only hope in negating or minimizing the threat is for the travel, hotel, and tourism industries along with the pilot and flight attendant unions (and their allies) to join forces and seek to have necessary security and industry support measures put in place without political consideration. The needed measures must be completely based on the real world security and economic threat that exists, and is getting worse by the minute. The losses France and Belgium are suffering are just the beginning, and minor in compared to an Egypt Air or Russian Sharm El Sheikh incident in North America or Europe. I assure you, the threat is far worse than is known even to most of the law enforcement community.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

UNADDRESSED THREATS TO YOUR INDUSTRY

-Foreign pilots compromised by ISIS or Al Qaeda committing an act similar to the pilot of Egypt Air 990 at an airport, city, or against another passenger airliner -An attack on airports using car/truck bombs and suicide bombers/shooters against shuttle buses and the non-secure areas of the airport such as ticketing -Compromised airport personnel (this is worse than is indicated here)

TRUE STATE OF THE TERRORIST THREAT IN AMERICA

From Canada's CIA (CSIS):
"Many Canadians may be surprised to learn that, with the exception of the United States, there are more terrorist groups active in Canada today than in any other country in the world."

VERIFICATION

Hi Katja,

I got your contact details from Marie at Freemuse in Denmark. My name is Scott Corben and I am a producer with Al Jazeera Television in London.

I am researching a piece on soldier in the United States and
I am really keen to speak to a guy called Jerome Almon. I believe he is based in Detroit. Maries tells me that you may have some way of contacting him. If you have an up to date email or phone number I'd really appreciate it.

Look forward to hearing from you

Balance Billing for Out-of-Network Providers

Most out-of-network (OON) health care providers make critical mistakes that jeopardize their compliance with state and federal laws. Many providers tell patients they will accept any payment received from the patient's health plan as payment in full. This practice is risky and may invite accusations of ínsurance fraud – however, it is prevalent throughout the U.S.

A few of the cases where billing-related errors (overpayments, negligent misrepresentation, OON write-offs, and balance billing) ended in real legal nightmares are:

- Connecticut General Life Ins. Co. and Cigna v. Health Diagnostic Laboratory, Inc. - $84 Million dollars recovered
- Aetna v Health Diagnostics Laboratory - Sued for "tens of millions" of dollars
- Aetna v Bay Area Surgical Management (BASM) - Amount sought: $23 Million

What makes it worse is that HHS is actively waiting and watching to càtch you in case you backslide. However, all is not lost! Join expert speaker Thomas Force, Esq., to learn how OON providers and their revenue recovery staff can maintain compliance while collecting a fair amount of money from the patient's health plan. Thomas will also cover state laws related to balance billing requirements for OON providers.

Conference: The Balance Billing Requirement - Why Out-of-Network Providers Must Balance Bill Their Patients
Date: Wednesday, March 7 (Available for all day)
Time: 60 minutes
CEU: 1 AAPC CEU

Failure to balance bill patients can lead to large recoupment, audits, and litigation for ínsurance fraud. This training session will help you avoid common pitfalls and get answers to questions such as:

- Why is balance billing required in most jurisdictions?
- What are the exceptions to balance billing requirements?
- How to properly balance bill patients without offending or alienating them?
- How can your practice use ERISA to appeal deníed and under-reimbursed claims for employer-sponsored plans?
- What is a recoupment and what to do when faced with one?
- What are the penalties for non-compliance with balance billing?

Session Highlights

This session will cover:

- Why OONs are required to balance bill and why it is ínsurance fraud if you don't
- The case of Ingenix's conflict of interest and how FAIR Health is reforming out-of-network reimbursement
- ERISA Pre-emption: What it means for providers located in states that restrict or prohibit balance billing
- Case studies of problematic billing and how they are noncompliant
- Patient protections under PPACA: Coverage for emergency services
- Industry insights on Medícare, TRICARE/CHAMPUS and balance billing
- The impact of New York's Emergency Medical Services and Surprise Bills Law
- How to write a patient-friendly balance bill letter, and consider the timing of the same
- The importance of a Charity Care Program/Financial Hardship policy
- The best practices: Transparency and disclosure
- The case laws: Cigna vs. Health Diagnostics, Aetna vs. Health Diagnostics Laboratory, and more

DAYS UNTIL THE STATE GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN: 125

DAYS UNTIL THE NEVADA PRESIDENTIAL CAUCUS (FOR NOW): 346

DAYS UNTIL THE 2016 ELECTION: 623

Good morning, everyone. THE event of the legislative dinner circuit season occurred last night, the biennial Nevada Taxpayers Association soiree, which is attended by a few hundred lawmakers, lobbyists and others. The best part of the evening was when Carole Vilardo, the state treasure known for her wisdom and hats, received a standing ovation when her retirement next year was announced. No one has ever been more respected in the building than Vilardo, and it was a measure of the woman how embarrassed she seemed to be by the admiration and love in the room.

The worst part of the event was….the rest of the event. Two – count 'em – speeches by Tax Foundation executives, the first a recitation of the group's study of the state's tax system and the second a partisan assault on the Obama administration and an argument about how much corporations pay in taxes. People squirmed. People left. People tweeted. And tweeted. And tweeted. I don't think I've ever seen happier faces than when the last speech ended.

What's below: Prince Harry weighs in, morning nuggets and a trivia question about a county and its seats.

FOUR DAYS UNTIL "RALSTON LIVE!".

HELLO, HARRY

As the Assembly Government Affairs prepares this morning to finally hear SB 119, the bond rollover/prevailing wage bill that whooshed out of the Senate early on, a new voice will be heard: Senate Minority Leader Harry Reid. Making his first foray into legislative politics this session, Reid will, I hear, pound the bill – at least the prevailing wage parts – before the hearing begins, Expect Reid to talk about Republicans trying to cut wages, give jobs to out-of-state folks and help big corporations. We will hear this a lot. Knowing Reid, the only thing we will not hear is the name of the man who might be running against him and pushed the bill through the upper house, state Senate Majority Leader Michael Roberson.

It's significant that Reid has decided to weigh in for several reasons. First, it indicates his team is watching and that he is in campaign mode. So, doubters, he's running. At least right now. Second, as the labor folks prepare a protest – we shall make the governor uncomfortable (even though they won't), Reid's voice adds to a chorus of disapproval from the left. Third, the bill's future remains uncertain, although proponents think it will get out of the committee and off the floor next week. But it is the place where the GOP Ass. Caucus exists and they are affected by NPRI, which calls this a huge tax increase. I wonder how they might be affected by the Reid statement. Or how school district folks, desperate for the measure to pass soon to get school construction going and not so concerned with the prevailing wage provisions, will feel about Sen. Bigfoot stepping in?

This is the stuff that makes Nevada politics so much fun.

A QUARTET OF MORNING FLASH NUGGETS

Nugget No. 1 – I heard it at the Tax Foundation dinner and I didn't believe it, so I asked and he confirmed it: Clark County Commissioner Tom Collins is considering a run for North Las Vegas Mayor. Yes, John Lee was in the room. But Collins, long enmeshed in NLV politics and showing his disdain for the current administration, said he might run "if there's still a city there."

Nugget No. 2 – I was checking into claims I heard that state Senate Minority Leader Aaron Ford could get a clean domestic violence bill through the Assembly, which would counter Majority Leader Michael Roberson's assertion that he needs the gun provisions to get the votes. Ford told people he had received assurances from Speaker John Hambrick that he could get it passed as a domestic violence-only bill – and why would he say it if he hadn't received or thought he received assurances? But late Wednesday, Hambrick's position was clear: No clean DV bill through his house. This could get ugly. Sean Whaley on the hearing Nugget No. 3 – You want to see how legislative districts performed in 2012 and 2014? I have the data, courtesy of DailyKos.

Nugget No. 4 – I tweeted what I could of General Adam Laxalt's appearance Wednesday in Congress on his joining the immigration lawsuit. Nothing that newsworthy, although someone had fed members the news about his split with the governor, which he called "much ado about nothing," then was totally disingenuous about.

FLASH FACTS OF THE DAY

J Ross Clark was a brother of US Senator for Montana, William Clark, who built the railroad connecting Salt Lake City, UT to Los Angeles, CA through Las Vegas, NV. J Ross Clark served as a Vice President of Clark's railroad, known as the San Pedro, Los Angeles, & Salt Lake Railroad. Part of J Ross's responsibilities included the acquisition and development of the Las Vegas Ranch, and the future Las Vegas town site. On February 23, 1904, J Ross Clark, working from his Los Angeles office, received an unsolicited letter from "Major" Howell Plummer Myton of Salt Lake City, UT, who had heard that a townsite was to be developed at Las Vegas. Myton offered his services to manage the platting of the townsite. J Ross Clark, responded with a letter dated February 26, 1904. In his letter to Myton, Clark acknowledged his receipt of Myton's offer, but that he did not know when the town would be developed, and that it depended on the company. Las Vegas was platted by Engineer E G Tilton of the Las Vegas Land and Water Company.

Just a few notes about the two. J Ross Clark had previously met H P Myton in Salt Lake City. Myton, a former Indian Agent in Utah and successful businessman, was briefly the US Postmaster for a northeast Utah town that became Myton, UT (some say just long enough to have the town named after him). Senator William Clark, for whom Clark County, NV is named, owned the Salt Lake City Herald from 1898 into 1909. The newspaper probably covered Clark's businesses by reporting the company positions and perspectives. J Ross Clark's son, Walter Clark, and his wife Virginia were traveling back to the US on the Titanic. Virginia Clark was placed on Lifeboat #4 and survived. Walter Clark remained on board and died with so many others. Walter and Virginia's young son, J Ross Clark II, stayed at J Ross Clark's home while his parents were on that fateful trip.

It seems there was sufficient fraud in Nevada food sales that the state had to pass laws to give authorities some tools to fight it. The Nevada Legislature passed an Act in 1879 to prevent the "traffic in impure and unwholesome milk." In 1881, an Act was passed to ensure that butter purity was accurately labeled. On February 26, 1901, the Nevada Legislature passed an Act to require meat sellers to inform buyers if the meat they are selling to them contains horse meat. Furthermore, if the seller of the equine meat was not operating a shop or meat market, he had to keep the hide of the equine animal, with brand, to show the source of the meat. The maximum penalty for failing to comply with this law was a $50 fine and 25 days in prison.

TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE DAY

Today marks the creation of a Nevada county named for a non-Nevada politician of some note. What was it and name three county seats it has had, including the current one.

Wednesday's winner: R&R's Lorne Malkiewich

The question: "Failing to adhere to this law could land the violator in jail for one to six months, and/or cost them a fine between $100 and $500 dollars." This law, signed on this day in history, applied only to a place in Carson City. What was it?

The answer: No alcohol in the Capitol

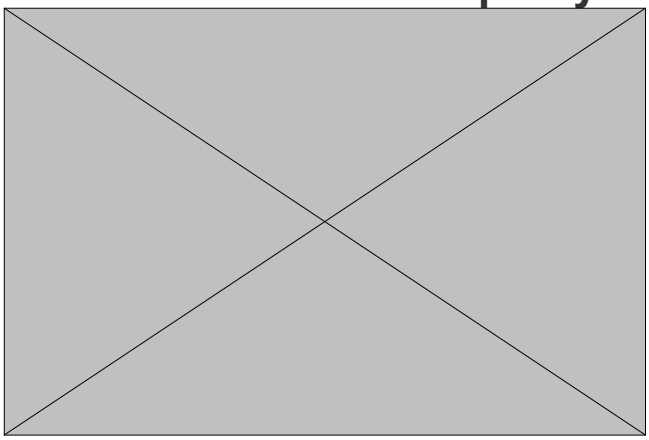
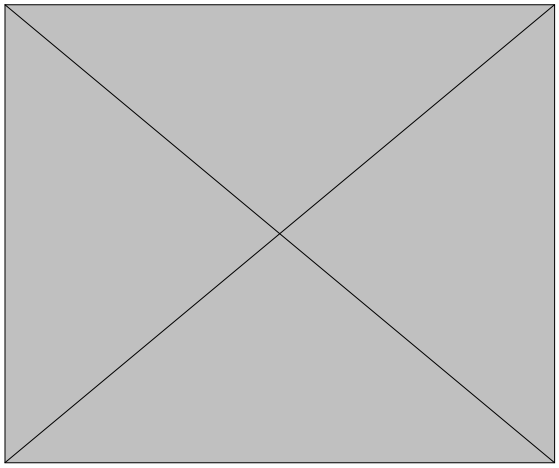
Why States' Campaign Donation Limits Could Be in Jeopardy

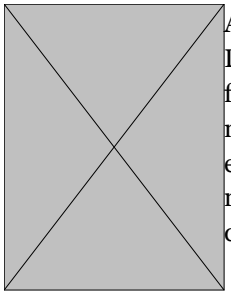


A federal appeals court decided last week that states can only limit campaign contributions if they can somehow prove that they lead to corruption.



What's New This June

HEALTH: Getting to Work



A generation after the Americans with Disabilities Act, states are finally focusing on the law's biggest failure: more jobs for disabled persons. The employment rate for the disabled remains basically unchanged after a quarter-century.

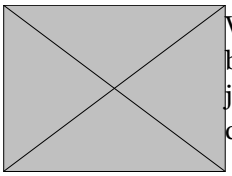
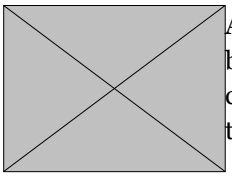
POLITICS: Nonstop



Virginia Gov. Terry McAuliffe has the business acumen to lure companies and jobs to the state, but can he win over its conservative legislature?

FINANCE: The Struggle to Tax the Cloud



As we shift from a goods- to a services-based economy, states are struggling to capture revenue from evolving technologies like cloud computing.

Labor Dept. Quiets Fiduciary Critics, If Only For A Day

The Wall Street sabers that rattled as the U.S. Department of Labor prepared its controversial fiduciary duty rule nearly fell silent on Wednesday, a sign that the broad concessions the Obama administration made to the final rule took a lot of the fight out of its critics.

Grassley, Judge Garland To Meet Over Breakfast

Sen. Chuck Grassley, R-Iowa, will meet with D.C. Circuit Judge Merrick B. Garland for breakfast in the coming week, but gave no indication he planned to back down from his staunch opposition to considering the U.S. Supreme Court nominee.

Sweeping Medical Innovation Bill Nears Senate Vote

The U.S. Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions on Wednesday advanced five bills aimed at strengthening medical research, setting the stage for a vote in the full Senate on a broader package of legislation that would also streamline and incentivize development of drugs and devices.

McCain Wants EPA Head Subpoenaed Over Gold King Hearing

Sen. John McCain on Wednesday asked the Senate Indian Affairs Committee to issue a subpoena for the head of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to appear at a hearing in Phoenix about the Gold King mine spill, saying the EPA declined to send someone.

Pfizer, Allergan End $160B Merger After New Inversion Regs

Pfizer and Allergan called off their planned $160 billion combination Wednesday, marking an end to what would have been the largest so-called inversion transaction on record after the U.S. Department of Treasury issued new rules seeking to curb the tax-motivated deal structure.

Labor Dept. Eases Parts Of Final Fiduciary Rule

The Obama administration on Wednesday unveiled its final rules to impose a fiduciary duty on broker-dealers who advise retirement savers, and has said it has eased the hotly-contested measures in a way that should make the new regulations more palatable to the industry that has fought hard to stop them.

A new final rule requiring shippers, carriers and brokers to follow stringent hygiene and record-keeping procedures to safely transport food in the U.S. will affect more players in the food supply chain, ensuring businesses will face a new set of operational challenges, experts say.

Why Plaintiffs Firms Will Love DOL's New Fiduciary Rules

The U.S. Department of Labor's fiduciary rules give more power to retirement savers, experts said, providing investors and their attorneys an important new tool to bring claims when they suspect their broker-dealer doesn't have their best interests at heart.

Nixed Pfizer Inversion Casts Uncertainty On Similar Deals

Pfizer's scrapped plans for its record $160 billion corporate inversion with Irish drugmaker Allergan may be just one casualty of the U.S. Treasury's latest rulemaking, but the thwarted deal is fostering concerns that other pending inversions will also be scuttled by the government's hard stance on the deal structure. Here, Law360 recaps four pending deals that could get swept up in the latest crackdown.

7th Circ. Nixes Challenges To FERC Project-Rights Rule

The Seventh Circuit on Wednesday denied a Midwest region energy transmission organization's bid to circumvent a Federal Energy Regulatory Commission rule removing its right of first refusal for regional electricity projects, saying consumers benefit in the long run by competitive bids.

Pa. Justices Reject Appeal Over Electricity Termination Fees

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court on Tuesday declined to take up a challenge brought by the state's Public Utilities Commission after an appeals court ruled that the agency must approve a rule that would protect members of PECO Energy Co.'s consumer assistance program from early contract cancellation and termination fees.

HEALTH & LIFE SCIENCES

FDA Calls Retroactive Exclusivity Unfair To Generics Makers

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration on Tuesday defended its refusal to retroactively apply a new policy on exclusivity for brand-name drugs with multiple active ingredients, arguing in D.C. federal court that it would be unfair to generic-drug makers.

Ebola Funds Go To Zika As Congress Stalls On $1.8B Request

The Obama administration on Wednesday said it would be reallocating $589 million to fighting the Zika virus, largely from its Ebola fund, as Congress has yet to act on its request for an additional $1.8 billion exclusively for the newer threat.

Fla. High Court Urged Not To Hear Abortion-Delay Law Suit

Florida's attorney general has told the state's high court that it should not take up a challenge to a state law requiring women to wait 24 hours after an initial doctor visit before undergoing an abortion, arguing the court lacks jurisdiction.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Calif.'s New Minimum Wage: What Employers Need To Know

California's newly enacted statewide minimum wage law is not good news for California employers. However, it's also not cause for immediate shock, as it will be implemented in phases, overlap with other local minimum wage laws, and includes limited procedural protections meant to reign in unwarranted or fiscally devastating minimum wage increases, says Bryan Hawkins at Stoel Rives LLP.

Florida Emerges From Proceedings Supplementary Quagmire

Proceedings supplementary have been part of Florida’s judgment collection practice since the early 1900s, yet a lack of clarity in the state's statute has manifested in a legal quagmire. Gov. Rick Scott recently signed a bill into law that enables an effective and prompt process to collect judgments, say Michel Weisz of Berger Singerman LLP and Barbara Riesberg of RiesbergLaw.

FTC Study Could Lead To Changes In PCI DSS Certification

While the Federal Trade Commission did not specify a motivation for its study of Payment Card Industry Data Security Standard assessments or how the results might be used, the level of detail of the FTC’s questions and the depth of required responses suggest that the FTC’s interest in the PCI DSS is more than a passing one, say attorneys with Ropes & Gray LLP.

Checks And Balances In The Inter Partes Review Statute

Multiple inter partes review attacks on a patent should be expected. However, there is no standing requirement for filing an IPR petition, and the recent increase in IPRs from member-funded trade associations and defensive patent aggregators may be upsetting the desired balance between protecting patent owners from endless challenges to their patents and ensuring that only novel and nonobvious innovations receive patent protection, say attorneys with Shearman & Sterling LLP.

Good morning, everyone. Barbara has some splainin' to do. We followed up on the RJ's report on Secretary of State Barbara Cegavske's dramatic announcement that noncitizens voted in 2016. But she did not say how many had voted – two, 200, 2,000? Maybe Joe Heck should be a U.S. senator? We have no idea, which is what makes the announcement and the subsequent pushback from the DMV so damaging to her here. Maybe she will say she needed to protect the integrity of the probe by not revealing too much. But she had previously said there was no evidence of voter fraud, so this is even stranger. What did she know and when did she know it? Why does the DMV contradict her version of events? Why didn't she contact the Clark registrar? We hope to get some answers today to see how pervasive this is, and what evidence she has.

What's below: Premium wrap, town hall time, Sessions' Sandy web and a trivia question about a gift to a governor.

COMING UP

Week 11! Next deadline is a week from tomorrow, when bills have to be out of the house where they began. More winnowing to come.

PREMIUM WRAP

Plenty of plaudits from my usual critical crew for how the Democratic leaders closed out the bill deadline, not with a bang….

Lots of interesting comments, including:

►I get this sense, too: "Waivers granted for energy and other big bills, as well as the full use of exemption of bills with a fiscal impact (including a few references to and from the money committees just to trigger the exemption). Let the dust settle from the deadline (250 fewer bills to worry about) and give major issues time for deliberation, negotiation and resolution. They now have a better idea of the landscape and can start resolving the issues. After appearing a bit out of control for the first several weeks, leadership is getting hold of session."

►Yep: "Several of the bills approved this week passed on party-line votes. Among the hundreds of general file votes over the next week or so will be partisan debates that frame some of the issues of session (others are delayed by waivers and exemptions). For entertainment value, I'll be watching the Senate where the Roberson-Ford debates are the best show in town."

►Important: "Any piece of legislation can be resurrected before sine die, but we are unlikely to see plastic bag bans or fish pedicures again in 2017. The main take away is Senator Ford and Speaker Frierson, honor bound, killed about 2 dozen "bad for business" bills as they promised."

HELLER AND THE HUMAN SHIELD

The Dean Heller and his Protector town hall begins in a little while, and I posted on the DSCC ramping up. There is so much going on around this that Heller should expect protesters and hostile questions. The Nevada Independent will be there to cover the event, but only because it's just one of those boxes you gotta check.

SHELDON'S AG?

"There is something to this." That's what the respected (paywall) publication Gambling Compliance says to rumblings that Attorney General Jeff Sessions will move to overturn an interpretation that allowed states to regulate web gaming. Remember, Gov. Brian Sandoval and other governors have urged the administration not to do so. Remember how important an achievement legalizing Internet gambling is for Sandoval.

Keep an eye out….

FAST FLASHES

Click and enjoy.

Daniel Rothberg on Trump and the West.

Steve Sebelius on the Supremes asserting their supremacy yet again. Amazing.

TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE DAY

On this day in history, a governor received a special gift from three companies to commemorate the 50,000,001st of something. Of what? What was the gift? Bonus points if you can name the three companies.

Friday's winner: Zach Conine

The question: On this date in history nearly 60 years ago, the accounts for a Nevada institution that still exists today were transferred to a company called Congress Factors, which masked ties to another entity controlled by a legendary leader. What was the organization that obtained financing from the masked entity, what was the entity and who was the leader?

The answer: Sunrise, Teamsters, Jimmy Hoffa

MOVIE TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE WEEK

George Knapp was first: Name the actress and the movies: She plays a gangster's better half; she plays a military woman who has to make a difficult decision; she plays the titular head of a country; and she plays an agent who keeps a secret about a mission for decades. Answer: Helen Mirren in "The Long Good Friday," "Eye in the Sky," "The Queen" and "The Debt."

Ted Burton

Dear colleague,

Every hospital that has an emergency department and accepts Medícare or Medicaíd reimbursement must follow the federal law and the interpretive guidelines of the Centers for Medícare and Medicaíd Services (CMS) on the Emergency Medical Treatment and Lábor Act (EMTALA). This includes critical accéss hospitals. The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act have specific provisions related to insurers and EMTALA-covered patients. Insurers cannot require a prior authorization for screening and stabilization services as defined under EMTALA.

However, did you know that EMTALA deficiencies were the number one problematic standard for hospitals from CMS? CMS has started issuing quarterly deficiency memos and many hospitals were surprised to see that EMTALA deficiencies were a top deficiency and many involved the on-call physícian issue.

Stiff penalties attach for both hospitals and the physicians for violating this law. The penalty has more than doubled. This includes a fine of up to $104,826 for hospitals with 100 or more beds and exclusion from the Medícare program. Physicians can be fined and excluded from participating in any federal program and their license revoked by the state medical board.

It is essential that every hospital and critical accéss hospital is in compliance with the federal regulations and interpretive guidelines on EMTALA and the on-call physícian requirements. What has your hospital done to educate your physicians on their on-call responsibilities? The hospital can be fined for the on-call physicians' failure to show up when requested. The CMS and the Office of Inspector General (OIG) suggest that hospitals provide EMTALA on-call training for their physicians who are on call.

Join us for this Live Webinar "EMTALA and the On-Call Physícian, and Proposed Changes" with expert speaker Sue Dill Calloway, RN, MSN, JD on Tuesday, March 20, 2018, at 1 pm ET, where she will cover the EMTALA regulations concerning on-call physicians. Sue will discuss the proposed OIG changes that affect on-call physicians. This session will discuss changes regarding the Beneficíary and Family Centered Care (BFCC) Quality Improvement Organization (QIO) handling of complaints as two organizations will now be handling these. The session will further discuss the proposed changes to the on-call system from the OIG.

You'll get 2 AAPC CEUs per registration.

Session Highlights

With this session, you will learn that:

- CMS has an EMTALA CoP that lists the responsibilities of on-call physicians
- Hospitals must have specific names of physicians on call and not the group practice's name

As EPA Sets 2017 Renewable Fuel Volumes, Future Is Unclear

The Environmental Protection Agency has released its final 2017 volumes under the Renewable Fuel Standard, a program established by Congress to spur development and use of biofuels in the U.S. transportation sector. But the 2017 numbers may face legal challenges — and the entire RFS program could be restructured by the Trump EPA or the new Congress, says James Rubin of Dorsey & Whitney LLP.

The FTC's Overreaching Regulation Of Homeopathic Drugs

Recently, the U.S. Federal Trade Commission decided once again to force itself into the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's ill-fitting shoes, establishing safety and effectiveness standards for over-the-counter homeopathic drugs. The FTC is only obfuscating the already-strained regulatory framework for homeopathic drugs, say attorneys from Venable LLP.

Subject: Matching gifts for democracy – twice the impact!

Gifts today will be MATCHED for twice the power to protect democracy

Dear Friend,

I have exciting news!

Because your fellow supporters have been so generous during the Brennan Center for Justice's $150,000 matching gift campaign, another donor has pledged an additional $25,000.

That means gifts received — including the one you make right now — will be doubled, up to $175,000!*

This support comes at a critical moment. We're engaged in a great struggle for American democracy.

One truth is clear: resistance is vital - but not enough. What counts is not just what we are against, but what we are prepared to fight for.

The Brennan Center for Justice needs you to join the fight, so please make your gift today, when it will be MATCHED $1-FOR-$1. Together, we'll proudly protect democracy!

Start with the right to vote. President Trump set up a "voter fraud" commission to prove the lie that he won the popular vote once you subtract 3-5 million "illegal votes." When the commission asked for personal data from tens of millions of citizens, we sued in four states to block the illegal release of voter information.

We'll use the gift you make right now — which will be matched up to $5,000 until we reach $175,000* — to continue to disarm this assault on one of democracy's cornerstones.

We've also forcefully rebutted Attorney General Jeff Sessions' false claims of a soaring crime wave. Brennan Center research shows that crime remains near the lowest rate in decades.

Match My Gift

Bolstered by your support, the Brennan Center's nationwide alliance of law enforcement leaders serves as a powerful, bipartisan force to end mass incarceration, fighting to prevent the return of failed policies — including the racially devastating war on drugs.

And the Brennan Center needs your help to thwart abuses of executive power, including the administration's travel ban. Our challenge to the newest version of this unconstitutional policy is headed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

With the gift you make right now — which will have twice the impact thanks to a generous matching grant — you'll stand up for the sacred values we hold dear.

Together, we will lead the next wave of reform that will strengthen our great democracy.

Thank you in advance for your generosity.

Sincerely,

Michael Waldman
President

Give Now

* Gifts of up to $5,000 qualify for matching if they are made before December 31, up to a total of $175,000 for the campaign. Gifts received after that date or in excess of those limits will still be used for our general fund to help protect democracy.

The Brennan Center for Justice at NYU School of Law is a nonpartisan law and policy institute that seeks to improve our systems of democracy and justice.

Part think tank, part advocacy group, part cutting-edge communications hub, we work to hold our political institutions and laws accountable to the twin American ideals of democracy and equal justice for all.

Good Afternoon,

We would be thrilled and honored to have Mayor Pro Tem Steven Ross help us kick-off our 26th Annual AIDS Walk Las Vegas on Sunday, April 17th at Town Square! We had over 6,000 walkers last year and are hoping for even more of the Senator's adoring constituents to support us this year. The schedule of events is as follows:

8:00am- Registration Begins
8:30am- Opening Ceremony on the Main Stage
Walk start time- 10am

If available, we would request the Mayor Pro Tem arrive by 8:50am so that he can welcome the walkers to AIDS Walk Las Vegas 2016 as part of the opening ceremony.

Also if a proclamation or declaration will be presented

Thank you so much for your time and consideration. If you have any questions please do not hesitate to reach out. We look forward to hearing from you!

Dear Mayor Goodman:
Thank you so much for your thoughtful & rapid response. We do not feel so bad now, upon hearing what the two of you went through.
Both my wife & I always look at the "full glass" of life & together we ride out all the little "bumps" along the way. We have been together 28 years & the magic is still there, and meeting people like yourself & your husband always make for the nice bonuses in life.
We wish you all the best currently & in the future.
Sincerely,
Eric & Maria Sanders

Hi Mr. Sanders:
Sadly I'm guessing you'll have to rely on the advice of your attorney. As my husband also was an owner of a vintage Rolls (purchased at a local auction), we soon learned that these old cars are bottomless pits and repairs, replacements are unending!! Remember the saying, "let the buyer beware," --- there is merit in that, too, as we have learned from experience.
I am copying in my office staff in hopes they might have some recourse for you to pursue beyond what I've commented upon above. Good luck to you both, and be sure to look at the half-full glass of your life and enjoy all the beauty you enjoy.
Good luck.

Subject: Asking for Advice

Dear Mayor Goodman:
My name is Eric Sanders & I live in Desert Shores. We met a few times when you came here & we also met your Husband, the former Mayor, when he came here.
The reason I am writing to you is that we have a problem, that you may be able to give us some advice about.
I am a young 77 years of age, & my wife and I decided to get something different for ourselves to celebrate our, then 21 years of marriage.(Valentines Day-2/14/2014). We decided to buy an older Rolls Royce Silver Shadow,1980), so we could have fun driving around in it.
So, we went down to a business, in Las Vegas, that dealt with & restored older Rolls. The place is called The Touring Shoppe, 3050 Sirius Ave., Las Vegas Nv. 89102. The owner is Wayne McMiniment.(He goes by an Alias Wayne Andre.)
After speaking with him initially, we showed us a car, on his premises, that, he said, had only 9000 miles on the odometer,(which he showed us), but was sitting in a garage for many years and needed only minor work done on the engine & some cosmetic work on the body.
Needless-to-say we liked the car. The total price to restore it to running condition would be $25,000.
He wanted a $15,000.00 deposit & he said the work would take a few months after he completed work on another car that his mechanic was working on before ours.
To make a long story short, it's now been over 2 years & we have kept all of the e-mails that have been sent to & from this man. It turns out that he had been arrested for investment fraud & stealing other people's money. Had we known this prior to dealing with him, we would have never given him the money.
The last e-mail he sent us was so nasty & full of foul language(we have copies) that we knew we were never going to see that car.
He has since shut down his computer & we are unable to e-mail him & demand our $15,000 deposit back. I would like to see this man put in jail for defrauding senior citizens & willfully & knowingly defrauding customers.
What can we do to get our money back & make sure he never does this anyone again?
Thanks for your assistance.
Hope you have wonderful holidays, coming up, & we look forward to seeing you again.
Best regards.

From Dean Dan

This week, Las Vegas was shaken to its core by an unimaginable act of violence. Our thoughts are with the victims, their families, and the first responders. The acts of kindness and outpouring of support around our city have shown the strength and compassion of both those professionals who in many cases risked their lives in responding, and all of our neighbors and friends who did so much to help. Las Vegas is our home. In times of the unthinkable, we are humbled by the sacrifices of others and heartened by the warmth, generosity, and spirit of our community.

As an institution, we do our best by continuing to move forward and serve the community. Today the law school welcomes the American Bar Association Forum on Entertainment and Sports Industries 2017 Annual Meeting. This year's meeting offers an unsurpassed selection of entertainment and sports educational programming and collegial social events for attorneys and other professionals practicing in every sector of the industry. We thank Mark Tratos, the founding Shareholder at Greenburg Traurig, and Leonard Glickman, Chair of the ABA Forum, for bringing the Forum to the law school as the site for the first day of their 2017 Annual Meeting.

Next week, the William S. Boyd School of Law will welcome two distinguished speakers on Thursday, October 12.

Jon Wellinghoff, former chairman of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), internationally recognized energy law attorney, and clean tech energy expert, will present "The Future of Renewable Energy in Nevada: Public Policy and the Nevada Energy Choice Initiative" at 12 p.m. in the Thomas and Mack Moot Courtroom. His talk is free and open to the public. The longest serving chair of the FERC, Jon was first nominated to be a FERC Commissioner in 2006 by President George W. Bush. He was reappointed to the Commission in 2008, and, in March of 2009, he was named Chairman by President Barack Obama. He served as chair until November 2013. Mr. Wellinghoff has over 40 years of leadership experience in federal, state, and local energy policy, regulation, and project development. I want to thank Senator Harry Reid for making this talk possible.

The Saltman Center for Conflict Resolution has a long history of bringing to our school thought-provoking lectures. On Thursday, we are delighted to welcome Mary Roldán, the Dorothy Epstein Professor of Latin American History and Chair of the Department of History at the CUNY – Hunter College. Professor Roldán will present "War and Peace in Colombia: Conflict and Reconciliation in Historical Perspective." She will explore the historical context of conflict in Colombia, and the challenges and possibilities of achieving the goals of reparation, reconciliation and justice embodied in the Colombian Peace Accords negotiated between the Colombian government and the FARC, Latin America's oldest, revolutionary armed guerilla group.

Professor Roldán's talk will take place at 5 p.m. in the Thomas & Mack Moot Courtroom. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Faculty Spotlight: Mary Beth Beazley

Mary Beth Beazley is a Professor of Law and leading Legal Writing Scholar.

Which of your recent books or articles should I read?

It would have to be the most recent one: Writing for a Mind at Work: Appellate Advocacy and the Science of Reading, 54 Duq. L. Rev. 415 (2016). This article analyzes the impact of digital platforms on how we read and how we think. I guess I would also recommend Hiding in Plain Sight: "Conspicuous Type" Standards in Mandated Communication Statutes, 40 J. LEGIS. 1 (2014). That article talks about how legislatures mandate certain language, and even certain typefaces, in some legal documents like contracts and court orders. Unfortunately, they seem to be enacting these laws without a good understanding of how human beings actually read and use documents. It's important to understand this behavior if you are a reader or a writer, or if you legislate or write opinions about reading and writing. For example, some court opinions that apply the "least sophisticated debtor" standard seem to assume a very sophisticated reader. We know how to write and design documents for maximum comprehension – documents from the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau are a great example – and courts and legislatures need to hold writers to a higher standard rather than to impose higher burdens on readers.

How does your research and scholarship influence your teaching and service and vice versa?

My teaching and scholarship really feed into each other. In my early years of teaching, I wrote a lot about teaching methods, because legal writing was undergoing a sea change. When I started teaching (in 1983), I taught mostly about using plain language and active voice, and not very much about research or analytical structure. Now things are almost reversed. And as I observed my own behavior as a reader, reading hundreds of pages each semester, I recognized some connections between reading and law. For example, I teach my students to exploit the "natural positions of emphasis" at the beginnings and endings of documents, sections, and paragraphs. Science shows that readers subconsciously pay more attention to items at the beginning of a unit of discourse (primacy effect) and at the end (recency effect). Any politician will tell you about the impact of primacy effect on voting, and I ended up writing an article about how ballot design needs to take into account what are essentially "reader" behaviors. Likewise, I recognized that there are certain ways in which I skipped around in documents when I was researching, and that behavior was different than the way I behaved when I was reading for pleasure or when I was grading papers. Talking to students about their own behavior as readers helps them understand why they have to structure their documents in certain ways; it's a shock to some students that their readers are inattentive and impatient; they sometimes expect their readers to be "super-readers" instead of being as human as the students are. And again, this behavioral perspective led not only to my article on ballot design, but also to the conspicuous type article. Likewise, I noticed that I behave differently with hard-copy documents than we do with digital documents. That realization led me to read scientific articles about digital documents and cognitive function. And in turn, I now share that knowledge with my students when I talk to them about how they should read, and how they should write for others.

What is it about being a law school professor that inspires or motivates you?

Like many professors, I love the lightbulb moment – seeing my students understand a concept they had never understood before. I'm delighted that I'm teaching Fall 1Ls again, because I think there's naturally a better chance for lightbulb moments with that group. And I just love the intricacies of legal writing. I enjoy introducing first-year students to the foundational concepts, and I enjoy teaching more sophisticated concepts to upper-level students. I look forward to meeting my new students – and reuniting with former students – every semester.

Student Spotlight: William Nobriga

You're a literature guy. What is your "desert island" book?

I tend to enjoy classics in literature, which includes authors like Twain, Dostoevsky, Nietzsche, and Hemingway. That being said, I would likely choose the book Pudd'nhead Wilson by Mark Twain. Twain was way ahead of his time in writing this book, which is a modern day mystery that includes a commentary on the evils of bigotry and racism. I would highly recommend it for those who haven't read it.

Which course at Boyd has been your favorite?

I came to law school with an interest in constitutional law. So, naturally, my favorite courses have revolved around that topic. So I enjoyed both Con Law I and II. Administrative Law was likely my favorite so far because it dealt with the constitutional issues around the growing federal bureaucracy.

How did you enjoy your law firm summer?

I loved it! I was exposed to a variety of different practice areas, and I had the opportunity to work with talented, smart, and interesting attorneys. I think my writing drastically improved, as well as my knowledge of the law.

What's your mission as this year's Student Bar Association president?

First and foremost, I plan to make sure that all of the students' needs are met throughout this academic year. Law school is a challenging and intellectually rigorous experience, and it is my goal to make sure that the students have the support they need. Further, the SBA will ensure that all the student clubs and organizations have what they need to succeed.

Alumni Spotlight: Michiko Nozawa-Joffe 15

Michiko is an attorney at Las Vegas Sands Corp.

How did Boyd School of Law help you achieve your dream?

Coming from a long line of police officers, I always considered joining the FBI as a special agent. But, as with many of my colleagues, my path changed slightly when attending law school. One thing, however, did not change: the joy of researching and investigating. This passion has translated into my work as an anti-money laundering attorney at Las Vegas Sands Corp. Here, I get to uncover financial fraud schemes and other suspicious activity that criminals may try to conduct at our casinos. Boyd Law School prepared me well for this job through its hands-on professors who truly took the time to mentor me. Time and again, I am able to rely on the skills I learned at Boyd to be an effective in-house lawyer.

Do you have a motto and what is it?

There are a couple of proverbs that I live by every day:
First proverb (Japanese) – (kagakujoutatsu) which means "start from daily basic learning to high advanced learning." Translating the kanji for my personal guidance: Don't forget to take life's challenges one step at a time!
Second proverb (Japanese) – (amadareishiwomougatsu) which means "constant dropping wears away a stone." In translation: It is always easy to give up, but you will succeed if you stay persistent!

What do you enjoy in your off hours?

I like to read, connect with friends, spend time at home with my family (including my cats), and go on mini weekend vacations to California. I know many of my colleagues have demanding hours and may even have to work on weekends, so I am incredibly grateful for my stable work schedule which allows me to plan my trips and off hours in advance.

Former Governor and Presidential candidate named in two lawsuits alleging violations by Family Courts

Family Court Corruption is a Nation Wide Epidemic; You can ignore it or change it, but prepare for the worse if it's ignored!

Former New Jersey Governor and US Presidential Candidate Chris Christie has been named as a defendant in two cases that are part of series of lawsuits across the country where serious concerns about violations of citizens' rights in family courts are under scrutiny.

CALIFORNIA

An upcoming civil RICO lawsuit to be filed on behalf of the watchdog group Family Court Accountability Coalition (FCAC) will allege that a feeder system created by the Sacramento County Bar Association Family Law Division, in conjunction with several powerful judges, creates a racket which chooses favored divorce lawyers and makes sure those lawyers get favorable rulings in Sacramento County family court rooms.

In 1991, Judges Vance Raye and Peter McBrien, formed the Family Law Executive Committee (FLEC) to help deal with family law cases in Sacramento County family courts. This FLEC would be a group of lawyers, according to the upcoming suit, chosen by the Sacramento County Bar Association's family law division which would act as judge pro temp on certain family law cases and in exchange, the suit will allege, the lawyers chosen for this task would be given favorable rulings, deserved or not, when they appeared in divorce court in their regular roles.

One of the most high profile case examples of this scheme which will be featured in the suit is that of Ulf Carlsson who appeared in front of Judge McBrien and whose story received significant media attention culminating with a lengthy feature in the documentary Divorce Corp.

Carlsson told RebelPundit his judge was McBrien and that not only did he lose every single motion and hearing in his divorce but the judge awarded his ex-wife all their marital assets.

About five years ago, an appeals court reversed the decision but only because during one hearing the judge simply left the court room while Carlsson's side was presenting their case, a blatant violation of due process.

Carlsson said while everyone told him the decisions themselves were egregious, the appellate court didn't have the power to overturn them and only overturned his case on due process violations.

Carlsson said he was forced to move back to Sweden, where he was born, after thirty years in the USA and receiving multiple "credible threats" on his life.

Carlsson said he's developed PTSD as a result of the corrupt court process.

Family Court Racketeering and Corruption - Judge Retaliation Destroys Life of Family Court Parent

RebelPundit attempted to reach the Sacramento Bar Association, Judge McBrien, and the California Appellate Court, where Judge Raye is currently a judge, but received no responses for comment.

NEW JERSEY

In New Jersey two concurrent RICO lawsuits will allege systemic bias against women in two counties of that state and Governor Chris Christie will be a named defendant in both cases.

First, in Bergen County a lawsuit led by Karin Wolf, including more than forty women, will allege that courts ignore abuse on a widespread basis-be it sexual, physical, verbal, or emotional-and instead label women making these allegations as parental alienators or as having a variety of mental illnesses or defects.
Wolf told RebelPundit that the purpose of these false diagnoses is to goad protective mothers like herself to fight false allegations in court, creating a perpetual legal process and a plethora of legal fees.
Wolf's lawsuit will allege that Christie has culpability because he appointed a number of the judges implicated and because he's been made aware of the widespread abuse but failed to act.
Kevin Roberts, Governor Christie's Press Secretary, directed all calls to the state's Attorney General's (AG) office, which declined comment.
In nearby Monmouth County, another lawsuit, led by Rachel Alintoff will include seven women in total-five of whom spoke with RebelPundit. Alintoff was featured in a 2012 New York Post article in which nine women made allegations of gender bias against Monmouth County Family Court Judge, Paul Escandon. Judge Escandon will be a named defendant in the upcoming lawsuit and his office declined to comment when reached by phone.
In each case the women described a phenomenon psychologists refer to as Gaslighting, based on a 1944 film which won an Academy Award for Ingrid Bergman.

Gaslight 1944 Ingrid Bergman Charles Boyer

Gaslighting is "a form of mental abuse where information is twisted/spun, selectively omitted to favor the abuser, or false information is presented with the intent of making victims doubt their own memory, perception and sanity."
Karen Welch told RebelPundit that starting in 1997 and continuing until 2010, she was stalked by an individual associated with her ex-husband. The court, rather than accepting her allegations, said she was making it up because of a mental illness.
In 2010, her alleged stalker, Joe Pate, committed suicide after the FBI filed for an arrest warrant against him. Her story led to New Jersey anti-stalking legislation and was featured on an Investigation Discovery documentary.
In Alintoff's case, she was diagnosed by the court-appointed psychologist, Dr. Patricia Baszczuk, with "cyclical outbursts" disorder, a disorder which appears to have been coined by Basczcuk and has never been used widely. This so-called diagnosis was used to take custody Alintoff's son away from her.
Alintoff said that Dr. Baszczuk will be a named defendant and she didn't respond to an email for comment. Alintoff said she had a one-on-one meeting with Governor Christie about a year ago-about her case-in which Christie promised to examine her case personally; Christie's Press Secretary Roberts didn't respond for comment on this meeting.

Wolf and Alintoff told RebelPundit they have also both spoken with the FBI.
All of the women interviewed for both New Jersey lawsuits said they believe they suffered from PTSD as a result of their experience.
Susan Skipp, whose story was featured in a previous RebelPundit expose, is the only litigant not to file a RICO suit. She told RebelPundit that based on her research of precedent she didn't believe it was feasible to prove RICO, and instead filed a civil suit, which alleges civil rights and Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) violations and is seeking $300 million in damages.
Skipp, who has been diagnosed with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) and Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder, which she developed as a result of the stress of the legal process, said rather than having those ailments be accepted and receive accommodations, the judge in her case, Lynda Munro, and the Guardian ad Litem, Mary Brigham, accused her in open court of having an unspecified and untreated mental illness.
"The defendant testified that she looked forward to this counseling. If the court takes her at her word then she cannot help herself in her conduct and this is an unaddressed mental health concern," Judge Munro said of Skipp during one court hearing.
Rather than allowing her to continue treatment with her own therapist, Skipp said that Judge Munro told her that if she saw a psychologist of Munro's choosing-at a cost of about $3,000 monthly-she'd be allowed to see her children for a few hours a month.
"This is a common scam," Skipp told RebelPundit, "Order litigant to buddy, buddy gets 175 a week or more- can't claim on insurance because no diagnosis." Skipp said, "(It) goes on for years because it's an order, and also violates ADA law because a person has a right to have a trusting relationship with her therapist."
Skipp hasn't seen her children since the end of 2012.
Judge Munro, who retired from the bench in 2014, didn't respond to an email at her current employer, the Pullman and Comley Law Firm. Ms. Brigham also didn't respond to an email for comment.

CONNECTICUT AND PENNSYLVANIA

The allegations made by Alintoff and Wolf are similar to an expose in 2012 by Keith Harmon Snow, that included Susan Skipp's case in which he alleged that Connecticut family courts painted mothers as crazy in an attempt to feed children into a pedophile ring; Snow believes his expose also uncovered a criminal enterprise:

> The family court system in Connecticut, as around the country, involves multiple corrupt organizations where profit motives and personal connections dictate how and why decisions are made, and these are decisions that have altered and ruined the lives of many families, esp. many children in custody cases. A racket is 'a service that is fraudulently offered to solve a problem, such as for a problem that does not actually exist, that will not be put into effect, or that would not otherwise exist if the racket were not to exist' and this is exactly the case with court-related organizations such as Department of Children and Families; National Council of Children's Rights; the court-sanctioned institution of Guardian Ad Litem and all its related training offices.

While the cases mentioned all involve civil suits, they match up to a Scranton-Wilkes Barre Independent investigation from 2014 dubbed "Custody for Cash," which led to several court officers facing criminal charges for bribery and other crimes.
The Family Civil Liberties Union also recently had the Federal Trade Commission open a case into family court for racketeering and fraud.

Subject: EMV Rollout: Unique Opportunity for Customer Engagement

Webinar: EMV Rollout Presents Unique Opportunities for Banks - Register Now >

The rollout of EMV (smart) cards and terminals in 2015 will have a significant impact on reducing card-present fraud. It may also cause a surge in card-not-present or other types of fraud as criminals shift to easier targets.

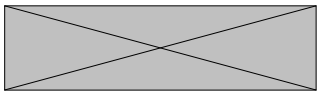
The smart-card rollout presents banks with a unique opportunity to engage with customers. Banks need to be prepared not only to explain what the new cards are and do, but discuss the possible outcomes, and how the bank can assist.

Join us for this 60-minute interactive webinar. We'll update you on the impact of EMV rollout and how best to engage with customers.

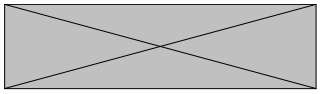
Register now for this free webinar >

This webinar will reveal how banks can:

- Be prepared for the possible outcomes of the EMV rollout
- Reinforce retail customers' trust by communicating with them about the significance of this change
- Strengthen ties with merchant customers



This webinar is brought to you by:



Date: Thursday, January 22, 2015

Time: 1:00 pm EST - 10:00 am PST

Speakers:

Al Pascual
Director, Fraud and Security, Javelin Strategy & Research

Brian Higgins
First Vice President, Product and e-Banking Director, First Financial Bank, Cincinnati

Eric D. Warbasse
Senior Director, Financial Services Strategy, LifeLock

Quote of the Day

"I feel like it's a really disgusting waste of money and resources on behalf of the federal government to try to basically fit a round peg into a square hole,"

-- Unusually strong words from Gov. Brian Sandoval about the re-energized federal push to store nuclear waste at Yucca Mountain

Today's Stories

BREAKING NEWS: Faraday is out at Apex. We have the story -- and reactions. While troubles have been reported, this is still pretty big economic news.

Michelle Rindels on the latest state efforts to block the Yucca Mountain project. Optimistic but wary.

Also BREAKING: Stavros Anthony is in for NV-04. Our editor reports.

On our Opinion page: The myth of voter fraud.

Sen. Catherine Cortez Masto came out in favor of a public option for health care.

Megan Messerly has everything you always wanted to know about Medicaid in Nevada. The history is fascinating.

Who was beating which drum? Who was avoiding which subject? Our congressional delegation news release watch.

Gov. Sandoval saves the day on pot.

On our Opinion page:

John L. Smith on a victim of the opioid crisis.

Orrin Johnson on Democratic frothing on voter data. Also, a quasi-endorsement in the 2018 U.S. Senate race.

The editor on the Democrats' primary problem. Got popcorn?

Tweet of the Day

As the health care reform battle rages on, more and more Democrats are coming out in favor of a public option or a single-payer system. Titus was already on record supporting Medicare for all (essentially an opt-in to Medicare, which presently is available only to Americans age 65+) before Cortez Masto indicated on Friday that she supports some kind of public option. For a good explainer on the difference between a public option and a single-payer system, go here.

The Titus tweet was interesting in light of (1) her possible run for U.S. Senate, which would starting with a primary race vs. Rep. Jacky Rosen, and (2) the fact that Sen. Cortez Masto already endorsed Rosen as the Democratic challenger to Heller, a fact which is no doubt galling to Titus in part because she has been in public office longer than Cortez Masto and Rosen combined -- and then some. Titus served in the Nevada Senate for 20 years beginning in 1988, then succeeded Jon Porter in NV-3 in 2009, then lost the swing seat to Joe Heck in 2010, then replaced Shelley Berkley in NV-1 in 2013.

A word from the editors

As the summer heat rolls on, we are energized and in fundraising and event-planning mode.

If you receive this daily newsletter and are not yet a donor, please sign up for the NV Indy supporting membership that suits your mood and budget. We believe the WiFi Club, at just $5 per month, is not too much to ask of our regular readers and subscribers, at a bare minimum.

We are also hopeful that we can add a few more names to our Founding Members list, which is accomplished by donating $5,000 to The Indy by the end of 2017. This level of support indicates a long-term commitment to sustaining The Indy -- but more importantly, it is a commitment to the Nevada community at large, to freedom of information and the press, and to our shared civic fabric.

Founding Members will receive quarterly updates from editor Jon Ralston re: the mission, operations, reader statistics, and cash flow, starting with Q2 (June mid-year report coming soon!) These updates may occur via email, phone conference, or in-person briefings, as time allows. Founding Members will also receive first right of refusal on Indy event sponsorship opportunities.

Our deep appreciation and thanks go to our 18 Founding Members, all of whom are listed on our Donors page along with every donor of any level:

DAYS UNTIL 2020 GENERAL ELECTION: 557

Good morning, everyone. Why am I always behind? This was supposed to be the éminence grise part of my life. All I got was the grise and little eminence. Sad!

What's below: GOP strategy mystery, Laxalt's new money and a trivia question about a birthday boy.

COMING UP

Mayor Pete coming for the HRC dinner here May 11, Howard Schultz is coming tomorrow and Cory Booker on Thursday!

WHAT IS THE GOP STRATEGY?

I understand it's a tough deal. You got crushed in 2018. You have almost no chance to be relevant in the 2019 session. Your leaders are laconic cowboys.

But what exactly is your strategy? I must be missing something, and I am not usually obtuse.

Adam Laxalt is your main voice and his dog-whistling/sanctuary cities stuff didn't work in a midterm. It will be worse in a presidential year, I assure you, and you have adopted it.

You start emails thusly:

"The good, the bad and the ugly in Nevada policy making is always full of interesting information we feel you should be aware of. Last week our message was on bi-partisan efforts and details of the Bills. This week is highlighting the status of ALL Republican Bills after the First Committee passage."

The state party is even worse, sending out an update that is a combination of stuff they read in their RJ spokesman's column and other narrow stuff that will also lead to disaster next year:

• Making Nevada a Sanctuary State

• Gun grab legislation that will potentially make criminals of many honest citizens

• Allocating Nevada's electoral college votes to go to the winner of the national popular vote

• Allowing same day voter registration making it easier for voter fraud to succeed

• Used a gimmick to keep bills that raise the minimum wage and give themselves a 150% raise while creating annual legislative sessions alive

Please, someone, enlighten me: What is the strategy?

NOTHING TO SEE HERE

Speaking of Laxalt, I pointed out Monday that Switch and the truckers (Laxalt whisperer Robert Uithoven's partners) are the only reported donors (besides his campaign) to his PAC now attacking Dems. His report also shows an odd $100,000 contribution right before the election from a Florida company run by a guy who left the cruise ship industry after a #MeToo scandal and later was ousted from Scientific Games – money that immediately went out the door to pay a DC company known for a walk app. Hmmm.

Sure, Laxalt is filling a vacuum for the GOP. But what good is filling a vacuum in an echo chamber? I was bad in physics….

TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE DAY

This is the birthdate of a local government official who resigned his former position, which he gained by appointment, to accept an appointment to his current one after the previous occupant suddenly resigned. Who and who did he replace in each of his appointments?

Monday's winner: Regent Jason Geddes

The question: This is the anniversary (this millennium) of a retirement from the judicial branch of a jurist who was involved in one of the most controversial decisions in Nevada history just a year earlier. Who was it?

The answer: Deborah Agosti

Texas Blasts Tribal Bid To Lift Bingo Ban

The state of Texas shot back at the Alabama-Coushatta Tribe of Texas' bid to lift an injunction blocking the tribe from offering electronic bingo on its reservation, saying Tuesday the Fifth Circuit has rejected the tribe's argument that a recent National Indian Gaming Commission ruling impliedly repealed a section of a statute that made state gambling laws applicable on the tribe's lands.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

FCC Urged Not To Weaken Broadband Privacy Rules

A coalition of more than three dozen consumer groups on Wednesday shot back at the telecom industry's purported attempt to "water down" broadband privacy rules being floated by the Federal Communications Commission, urging the agency to reject proposals to exempt de-identified data from regulation and to take steps to block forced arbitration.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

OPINION: OMB Should Stop Meddling With Tribal Water Pacts

The Obama administration has had a very positive record on Native American issues, but recent actions by the president's Office of Management and Budget may tarnish that reputation. The OMB's proposed process for reviewing future Indian water rights settlements will have a chilling effect on settlements, says Robert Anderson, director of the Native American Law Center at the University of Washington School of Law.

Will Expanded EEO-1 Data Collection Yield New Insights?

Proposed changes to the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission employer information report stand to substantially increase the risk of wage

What Attorneys Really Want From Their Law Firms

What makes attorneys stay with a law firm, and what makes them go? While many attorneys certainly feel their compensation could be better, it's far more than just money that pushes them to seek out new opportunities, according to Law360's 2016 Lawyer Satisfaction Survey. Here's what lawyers really care about — and what they're looking for in their firms.

The Group Black Attys Have Turned To Since Jim Crow Era

From U.S. Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall to President Barack Obama, the National Bar Association counts some of the legal profession's most high-profile black attorneys among its past and present members. Here's a look into the group's founding during the Jim Crow era; its civil rights activities, which continue today; and the way it's connecting African-American attorneys with big cases and clients.

Greenberg Traurig Renames UK Office As Part Of Shake-Up

The founder of Greenberg Traurig LLP's London office Paul Maher has voluntarily removed his name from the outpost's monicker amid a management shake-up that sees Maher and two other prominent partners placed into newly created firmwide leadership roles, the firm said Wednesday.

Rainmaker Q&A: Nixon Peabody's Jeffrey Costellia

It's easy to slip into a more reactive role as the work begins to grow. You have to fight the temptation of only doing the work without adding the additional value to the relationship, says Jeffrey Costellia, head of Nixon Peabody LLP's intellectual property counseling and transactions group.

Rainmaker Q&A: Kasowitz Benson's Aaron Marks

There is no better draw for attracting new business than achieving great results and having your clients recommend you to others. But remaining "top of mind" with various clients requires consistent work, says Aaron Marks, partner at Kasowitz Benson Torres & Friedman LLP.

Cos. May Lose Gov't Contracts Over Personal Tax Debts

Pass-through businesses like S-corps and partnerships that are bidding for federal contracts will need to be extra cautious about ensuring individual executives and shareholders pay outstanding tax liabilities now that the federal government has finalized rules barring tax cheats and convicted felons from such awards.

Final Sick Leave Rule Offers Little Relief For Contractors

Despite some minor tweaks, the U.S. Department of Labor's final rule requiring federal contractors to provide paid sick leave to employees still imposes a significant burden on those companies, attorneys said, especially in combination with a slate of other recently introduced labor rules.

4 Key Arguments As ACA Birth Control Battle Rages On

The Obama administration has received nearly 55,000 comments as it seeks compromise in bitterly fought litigation surrounding the Affordable Care Act's contraception mandate, but newly released letters from major players suggest that a meeting of the minds is still elusive. Here's a look at four key arguments.

Supreme Court Case May Reduce Deportation Uncertainty

With the U.S. Supreme Court now set to decide whether part of the "crime of violence" definition is unconstitutionally vague, the justices may reduce uncertainty over whether some crimes can lead to deportation and even open the door to challenges to other nebulous immigration provisions, experts say.

BANKING & SECURITIES

Top House Dem Aims To Break Up Wells Fargo

A top House Democrat said Thursday that she will work to break up Wells Fargo & Co. because the $185 million fine that the bank paid to settle claims that employees created unauthorized accounts and other recent penalties have shown Wells to be too big to manage.

SEC Watchdog Sees Room For Improvement In Rule Reviews

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's Office of Inspector General has audited the agency's review of proposed rule changes submitted by self-regulatory organizations and found seven areas that need improvement, including better documentation of why changes are rejected.

ISPs Must Not Make Consumers Pay For Privacy, FCC Told

Online privacy advocates told the Federal Communications Commission on Thursday that it should bar broadband providers from using discounts to "coerce" customers into letting the companies use personal information, as part of the FCC's new privacy rules for internet service providers.

House Tacks On Tweaks To FCC Update Bill

The House and Senate now have to reconcile their two versions of the Communications Act Update Act of 2016 after representatives tacked on a series of measures that tweak small-provider net neutrality exemptions and other Federal Communications Commission rules in passing the House version Tuesday.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

The Politics Of Family Enterprises In America

Rep. Jim Sensenbrenner, R-Wis., has introduced a bill that aims to nullify the recently proposed transfer tax regulations for closely held and family businesses. The bill is a rare move and is most likely politically motivated, notwithstanding its accuracy from a tax perspective, says Steven Horowitz of Horowitz & Rubenstein LLC.

What You Should Know About EU Trademark Reform

European trademark law is currently undergoing the most fundamental changes since the introduction of the European community trademark system 20 years ago.

The approved reform package brings substantial changes not only to EU trademarks, but also to owners of national trademarks in the EU, says Ulrike Gruebler of DLA Piper.

Oral Advocacy And 'Vocal Fry'

In a sneak preview of the fall edition of Legal Communication & Rhetoric, Professor Michael Higdon of the University of Tennessee College of Law explores the negative reactions to "vocal fry," the accusations of sexism those reactions have engendered, and what all this means for female attorneys.

Trump Vows Immigration Ban On Terrorism-Linked Nations

Presumptive Republican presidential nominee Donald Trump on Monday vowed to ban all immigration from countries with a history of terrorist sentiment against the U.S. and its allies while likely Democratic nominee Hillary Clinton argued for stricter standards for assault weapons sales.

High Court Ends Puerto Rico's Restructuring Law

The U.S. Supreme Court refused Monday to revive a dormant law that would have allowed Puerto Rico to restructure a portion of its $70 billion debt, as the territory now looks to a proposal working its way through Congress for assistance as more defaults loom on the horizon.

Attorneys React To High Court's Puerto Rico Debt Ruling

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled Monday that a Chapter 9 Bankruptcy Code provision preempts the restructuring law that Puerto Rico, which is facing a $70 billion debt crisis, had enacted in 2014. Here, attorneys tell Law360 why the decision is significant.

2nd Circ. Lets SEC Proceed With Case Against Ex-S&P Exec

The Second Circuit on Monday allowed the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission to proceed with its in-house court case accusing ex-S&P executive Barbara Duka of mortgage-debt ratings fraud, after ruling Lynn Tilton had to face the in-house court in a similar case.

2nd Circ. Questions House Resistance To SEC Subpoena

Judges on the Second Circuit seemed skeptical Monday about the U.S. House Ways and Means Committee's efforts to escape a U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission subpoena probing insider-trading allegations involving health care legislation, questioning whether the committee can assert immunity in the case.

ANALYSIS

Puerto Rico Leverage Over Debt Further Limited By High Court

A U.S. Supreme Court decision blocking Puerto Rico's local restructuring law further limits leverage the territory may have had in managing tens of billions of dollars in municipal debt and appears to leave a congressional proposal creating a powerful new authority to oversee the commonwealth's finances as the only viable

EXPERT ANALYSIS

OSHA's Injury Reporting Rule Focuses On Anti-Retaliation

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration's new rules on recordkeeping and reporting of work-related injuries sends a clear message that the agency is increasing its focus on preventing retaliation against employees who file reports. Specific aspects, such as a longer statute of limitations and increased liability will significantly impact employers, says Adam Roseman at Greenberg Traurig LLP.

Employer Steps For ACA Nondiscrimination Compliance

A new rule issued by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services prohibits federally funded health programs from discriminating on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, age or disability. To ensure compliance, covered entities need to take several specific steps such as implementing more flexibility for certain types of care, like gender transitioning services, and providing meaningful access to individuals with limited English proficiency, say attorneys at McDermott Will & Emery LLP.

12 Ways To Ensure Compliance With New Food Defense Rule

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration's unique new Food Defense Rule, meant to prevent terrorism aimed at the U.S. food supply, adds to the already extensive requirements imposed on domestic and foreign food facilities. Hello Esther, Brad mentioned to me that the Goodman's were scheduled to speak at 1:30pm. I know that they will not be eating lunch so do you still need them to arrive at 1:00pm? I usually have Oscar arrive 10 minutes prior to speaking engagements.

Good morning all,

I would like to finalize the schedule for the Key Note luncheon on Monday, October 5 at the RIO.

The luncheon begins at 1:10 p.m. – 2:30 p.m. at the Miranda Ballroom.

Oscar Goodman and Mayor Goodman (along with showgirls) will be introduced by Brad Jerbic. The Goodmans will take the stage and speak about their life together as Mayors, Oscars life before Mayor and how they have raised a family and lived in Las Vegas. We would like them to speak for approximately 15-20 minutes.

Jack Eslinger and I will be in the RIO Registration area and will take you into the luncheon.

Please confirm.

THANKS EVERYONE!

Importance: High

Hello Cissy,

Oscar has this event on his calendar, but he said he is only welcoming group and not staying for lunch. He did not mention that he is a keynote speaker. How long were you expecting him to speak and was he to speak with Mayor Carolyn Goodman or separately? Can you please answer the below questions as well.

Spot/Arrival Time:
Speaking Time and Duration:
Rio Ballroom Location:
IMLA On-site Contact:
Rio Hotel On-site Contact:

Since this is a conference, the Host Committee would have Oscar's signature showgirls with him during welcome and the Rio hotel would need to provide his signature Bombay Sapphire martini with whole jalapeno.

Please advise at your earliest convenience. Thank you.

Carolyn-

PI has posted its 2018 Q1 and Q2 schedule of forums tackling key issues in government management and I wanted to see if you are interested in attending any or sending a representative (see below).

We've selected topics based on feedback from government managers and newly-issued budget, legislative and management mandates that have been issued. If there are topics we are missing that your programs are struggling with, please let me know so we can consider adding them down the line.

Advanced Performance Management for Government (Jan 29-31)
Opioid Epidemic: Data-Driven Strategies for Intervention (Feb 27)
Program Evaluation and Evidence-Based Innovation (Feb 1-2)
Data Analytics in Government (March 26-27)
Enterprise Risk Management (March 27)
Fraud Analytics (March 26)
Performance Budgeting (March 28-29)
Lean Six Sigma Process Improvement (April 16-20)

Each of these forums offer in-person and online attendance options, and we can also do a custom in-house version of the program for your team too.

Would you like to see the full agenda for any of these forums?

Let me know!

Thanks,

Steven Hughes

House Passes Bill To Modernize Federal IT Systems

The U.S. House of Representatives on Thursday unanimously passed a bill to establish several funds to help federal agencies upgrade their aging information technology systems, alongside legislation to broadly allow federal employees to use emerging transportation options like Uber for official travel.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE

Protesters Shout Down TPP-Stumping Gov't Officials

Protesters interrupted U.S. Trade Representative Michael Froman and Sen. Jeff Flake, R-Ariz., as the pair stumped for the controversial Trans-Pacific Partnership at a beltway-insider event Thursday in D.C., shouting out that the trade deal favors corporate interests over labor and environmental protections.

Conservative Groups Look To Head Off Anti-Trade Rhetoric

A fleet of free-market conservative groups on Thursday attempted to stem the tide of protectionism that has emerged from both sides of the aisle in this year's presidential campaign cycle, issuing a call for lawmakers to be strong advocates for trade liberalization initiatives.

Reps. Spar On US Response To South China Sea Ruling

Members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and a panel of policy experts engaged in an occasionally heated debate Thursday over the best response to an international tribunal's ruling that rejected China's claims of control over the South China Sea, with some pushing for a display of resolve and others arguing U.S. interests aren't at stake.

Trump Backs Ted Cruz's Fight Against Internet Transition

An effort led by Texas Sen. Ted Cruz to use this month's funding bill to block the transfer of the internet domain system's sole American stewardship earned the support Wednesday of GOP presidential nominee Donald Trump, whose campaign said congressional Republicans were "admirably leading a fight" against the transfer.

Let Consumers Trade Away Privacy, FCC Republican Says

Republican Federal Communications Commissioner Michael O'Rielly said Wednesday that the agency should not get in the way of consumers willing to trade their own data for lower prices, better service or more features, and not block broadband providers from providing incentives for information sharing.

Set-Top Box Plan Would Mandate Modem Fee, Charter Warns

Charter Communications stepped up its opposition Wednesday to what it says is a piece of the Federal Communications Commission's proposal to unlock set-top boxes and mandate cable television content be made available on third-party devices, warning a modem rentals provision will actually force the company to charge its customers.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

OPINION: Trump Wrong But Stop-And-Frisk Still Constitutional

Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump said he would reduce crime in black communities by implementing stop-and-frisk practices nationwide, claiming that they worked "incredibly well" in New York. It's almost too easy to point out why he is wrong, but criticism that stop-and-frisk is unconstitutional misses its mark. The practice was legitimized 50 years ago by the U.S. Supreme Court, says Katherine Macfarlane, a professor at the University of Idaho College of Law.

OPINION: CFPB Payday Loan Rule Ignores Existing Research

In its new regulations covering payday loans the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau asserts that compelled reborrowings associated with these types of loans are harmful to consumers. However, a careful review of the economic literature shows that this concept is manufactured in order to support what appear to be the CFPB's prejudices about how this market should operate, says Dennis Shaul, CEO of the Community Financial Services Association of America.

GCs Fall Short On Law Firm Budgeting, Metrics And Feedback

Legal budgets may be tight and expenditures growing, but a survey of Fortune 1000 general counsels shows they aren't exactly flocking to cost-cutting and productivity-boosting measures like e-billing, matter budgeting and formal outside counsel evaluations.

Brief Rip-Off Suit Could Inspire Copycat Claims Against Attys

The tale of Newegg Inc.'s copyright suit against a lawyer who allegedly copied a brief it filed in a patent lawsuit may seem like an anomaly, but experts say that hurling accusations of copied briefs and plagiarism at fellow lawyers may be a new weapon for vexatious attorneys.

DOJ Atty Performed 'Sex Acts' On Train, Kicked Officer: OIG

The U.S. Department of Justice's Office of the Inspector General issued an executive summary on Thursday substantiating reports that an unidentified DOJ trial attorney engaged in "sex acts" on a train, refused to disembark when ordered and kicked an officer while being forced off the train.

Law360's Weekly Verdict: Legal Lions & Lambs

Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati PC topped this week's list of legal lions after the Second Circuit toppled a $147 million price-fixing judgment against two of its clients while a Kellogg Huber partner landed on the lambs list when a judge lambasted his fee request in a $244 million class action against News Corp.

Pro Bono Firm Of 2016: Dechert

As state laws purporting to combat "voter fraud" pop up across the nation, Dechert LLP has been there to help smack them back down for improperly restricting voting rights, racking up a number of pro bono victories that also include freeing a Louisiana prisoner from 35 years in solitary confinement and landing the firm a spot among Law360's Pro Bono Firms of 2016.

Rainmaker Q&A: Kilpatrick Townsend's James Gilliland

One potential client said he was looking for the meanest SOB in town. I said he should not hire me, because that is not how I handle cases. He didn't. On occasion, you have to tell clients you're not the right person for a job, says James Gilliland, partner at Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton LLP.

Rainmaker Q&A: Podhurst Orseck's Steven Marks

Trial work is largely a referral business, so relationships are key. You have to distinguish yourself by your skills and expertise, but you also need to garner the right level of trust with other attorneys that you will serve their clients well, says Steven Marks, managing partner at Podhurst Orseck PA.

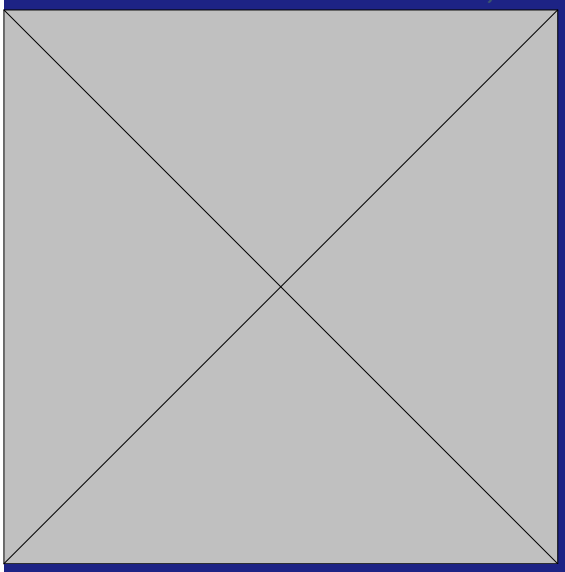
President of Veterans In Politics International, Inc. ® Sent an E-Mail to Columnist Jane Ann Morrison in response to a biased article

Dear Jane Ann Morrison;



I was taken aback by the last two articles you wrote about me and my organization. I only met you once and spoke to you once on the phone, and to my knowledge, we didn't have any negative interactions. So I don't understand why you are writing "hit pieces" on me, especially since they contain untrue statements that you clearly didn't bother to research or interview me about. And, the pieces seem to be coordinated with those who have an ax to grind against me and have pending litigation against me and my organization – not exactly unbiased sources.

For example, contrary to your claims, my organization is not a for-profit business. A simple search of the Nevada Secretary of State website would have shown you this. https://nvsos.gov/sosentitysearch/CorpDetails.aspx?lx8nvq=fOmt5ygxu32hk1HaKxHEuA%253d%253d&nt7=0 Donations to Veterans in Politics are not tax deductible because we endorse political candidates. Donations to any organization that is involved in politics are not tax deductible; that applies to PACS, associations that endorse, unions that endorse, etc. There is nothing new or irregular about that. None of us earn income from the organization, and we do not make profits – instead, I often have to put my own money into it just to make ends meet.

What's really ironic is that you work for an organization that endorses candidates (including judges), and is a for-profit business, and takes substantial sums of money from judges and judicial candidates every campaign cycle for advertising. To use your words, are you saying that the RJ's endorsements are, therefore "in fact a business plan?" Is that something the voters should be aware of? Are you saying that the judges in Nevada should recuse themselves or be disqualified from hearing a case involving the Review-Journal? What about recusing themselves from matters involving the unions, PACs, associations, and other entities that endorse them or organizations that they join while campaigning?

Jane Ann, you are a talented writer. Instead of looking for reasons to write about me, why not write about some of the crucial issues that we've been working so hard to bring to light – the unfair and unconstitutional treatment that Nevada citizens are getting at the hands of some of our family law judges? Moms and dads who are losing their children based on hearsay and false accusations with no demand for evidence by the judges presiding over their cases; people who are being required to pay tens of thousands of dollars to a mediator before they are allowed to even make a motion in court, depriving them of constitutionally guaranteed access to courts; what about parents who are kept from their children simply because they cannot pay a psychologist's inflated bill; what about parents who are ordered to take drug tests as part of a custody decision when that is outside the jurisdiction of civil courts to even order? Why not write about the lives that are being destroyed and the exorbitant fees charged by some family law lawyers who churn the proceedings to maximize profits even though it is not in their clients' interests to do so?

Simply writing opinions on me based on biased one-sided information from a former radio host and from a lawyer, both of whom have had their share of problems, does not seem to be the best use of your platform. See below:

https://www.courtlistener.com/opinion/3182766/in-re-discipline-of-stephen-stubbs/

I would appreciate it if you would correct your misstatements and consider not continuing to be used as a PR tool for those who have an ax to grind against me or Veterans In Politics. In my opinion, your talents and training should be used for a higher purpose and should reflect higher journalistic standards.

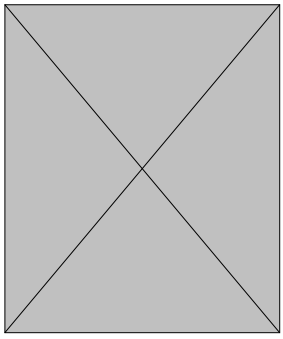
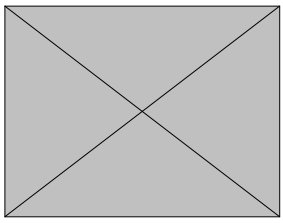
The Smart Grid for Water shows where your water is going in real time, how accurately it's being measured, characteristics of consumption & where you're losing dollars (leaks of water & data). The result is dramatic improvement in data integrity, protection & continuity of revenue & better customer service overall. See how to solve your non-revenue water issues & return revenue to your city.



Big Data or Big Hype?

The story of data analytics in state and local government is not new, but it has changed. Questions have been raised about the effectiveness and impact of analytics and whether its use is isolated to a few active jurisdictions. Should government focus its attention on open data or does it make sense to put resources into selective data sets for internal use? Is cloud computing the best infrastructure? Are open source tools as good or better than proprietary tools? This report will try to get to the bottom of these questions by investigating the projects and processes underway around state and local government, and include discussions with experts and practitioners to find out where data analytics is headed and the best practices that can help move it forward.



Time and Attendance Buyer's Guide

An effective, automated time and attendance solution streamlines routine tasks, reduces errors, and helps eliminate cost, productivity, and compliance problems that can result from using manual, semi-automated, or disparate systems. This guide outlines the best route to time and attendance success and provides helpful tips and actionable recommendations.

It's 1 A.M. Are you sending a business email? Why?

"Your late-night emails are hurting your team," by productivity consultant Maura Thomas on the Harvard Business Review website covers the common risks and the rare rewards of emailing round the clock. Says Thomas:

"Think about the message you'd like to send. Do you intend for your staff to reply to you immediately? Or are you just sending the email because you're thinking about it at the moment, and want to get it done before you forget? If it's the former, you're intentionally chaining your employees to the office 24/7. If it's the latter, you're unintentionally chaining your employees to the office 24/7. ... Being connected in off-hours during busy times is the sign of a high-performer. Never disconnecting is a sign of a workaholic. And there is a difference."

Thomas shares tips for finding a more productive solution. Read more

From: Jonathan Copeland
Subject: FW: Government Fraud Prevention mandates
Date: Tuesday, September 20, 2016

Hi Carolyn—

Pursuant to a number of new legislative and executive mandates, federal, state and local programs are starting to use fraud analytics. On October 26-27, the Performance Institute is hosting the Fraud Analytics for Government program that presents best practices on using existing government data streams and systems to detect and prevent fraud and improper payments.

Areas covered will include:

Procurement Fraud
Tax Fraud
Benefits Fraud
Improper payments

BONUS: You will also earn CPE and PDU continuing education and certification credits by attending the forum.

Attendees include: Auditors, Financial Managers, Program Managers, Procurement and Contracting Officials, Risk Managers, and Management Analysts from all levels of government.

Please let me know if I can send you an agenda, and I look forward to hearing back form you!

Best,

Jonathan Copeland
